President Li, U.S. Embassy Staff Leave Chungking

Fall of Nationalist Capital Reported Near; 2 Armies Said To Have Deserted

Hongkong, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Li Tsung-jen, acting President of Nationalist China, arrived here today for medical treatment and his associates said he had finally broken with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Li, suffering from ulcers and general fatigue, left the Chinese mainland as Communist armies closed in on Chungking and threatened to trap some government officials stranded without transportation.

The United States Embassy staff fled Chungking today, leaving the United States without an embassy in China for the first time in many years. United States diplomatic personnel at the Kunming consulate were expected to leave this week.

Reds Close to Chungking

Li's departure from China came as a severe shock to the refugee government in Chungking and officials there expressed fear it might hasten collapse of the Nationalist position on the mainland.

Americans arriving from Chungking said the Communist armies were "within a day and a half truck ride" from the capital and that they could enter the city any time they chose. They said an "even shakier situation" prevailed at Kunming.

The Americans said two Nationalist armies deserted to the Communists in the Chungking area and that the four remaining were disorganized, with almost no equipment or supplies, and out of touch with each other.

Li's secretary issued a press statement saying Li would return to Chungking as soon as he is cured.

Chiang Busy in Crisis

Chungking reports indicated Chiang Kai-shek had no immediate intention of assuming official leadership of Nationalist China despite Li's retirement. However, Chiang was busy behind the scenes trying to combat what Li's statement called "one of the gravest crises confronting China."

The Nationalist Central News Agency said Gen. Yen Hsi-shan, already premier and defense minister, took over the additional duties of Li's office "for the time being."

The party of seven Americans arriving here was headed by Robert Strong, charge d'affaires in Chungking. The group arrived here after nailing shut the doors and windows of the Chungking Embassy, leaving American interests in the hands of the British.

Strong said there were no plans to reopen the embassy anywhere else in China. He said 200 Americans remained in West China and Tibet, mostly missionaries who planned to stay indefinitely.

Porker's Route: From Gravel Pit To Barbecue Pit

Visions of a Thanksgiving barbecue were dancing through the heads of some members of the Arlington police force yesterday.

In custody, and still unclaimed last night, was a robust, 175-pound hog, rescued yesterday from a gravel pit in the 5500 block of Columbia Pike, where it was entangled in a wire fence. Efforts to locate its owner so far have been fruitless.

Police were called to the gravel pit by neighbors, aroused by the squealing of the trapped hog. Sergt. J. H. Morrisey and Pvts. C. H. Franklin, Walter Cauffman and Richard Frederick teamed up to liberate the porker, and then placed it in "protective custody" in the Arlington property yard.

Police said it hasn't been determined what will be done with the hog if its owner fails to show up—but the barbecue idea lingers on.

Kindley Field, Bermuda, Nov. 20.—Eighteen American airmen reached this sunny island today after 75 hours of battling 60-foot Atlantic waves with a prayer in each man's heart.

Only Sergt. Roy Coulter, 46, Beverly Hills, Calif., oldest in the crew of the B-29 that ditched Wednesday about 385 miles northeast of here, was not in shape to talk to reporters flown to Bermuda by the Military Air Transport Service from Washington. Coulter, suffering from shock and exposure, was hospitalized along with the others who were rescued.

Two of the crew lost their lives soon after the bomber landed in the trough of the heavy seas when the tail cracked off. The tail remained afloat five minutes, the rest of the plane, 15.

Lost was Corpl. Raymond Breit, Arlington, Calif. who was dragged to a life raft by Sergt. John Harris, Braddock, Pa.

China Policy Explored at Session Here

By The Associated Press

State Department officials disclosed yesterday that former Secretary George C. Marshall, Harold Stassen and other American leaders outside the Government have been called in to help find answers to the Chinese Communist upheaval.

These were among a group of 25 men who participated in a recent closed door, three-day session called to aid the work of shaping a current revision of American policy, which now is apparently in its final stages.

What to do about recognizing the new Communist regime and halting the advance of communism to the rest of the Far East were among questions put up to them by Secretary Acheson.

The State Department has had frequent meetings with representatives of organizations concerned with foreign policy, beginning with the Dumbarton Oaks conference on the United Nations in 1944 when there were 44 civilian consultants. But calling in leading Americans for advice while the specific policy is in a formative stage is a new departure.

In addition, a three-day conference under direction of Francis H. Russell, director of the De-

Poland Seizes 3 French Aides In 'Spy' Drive

Warsaw, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—The Polish government today announced the arrest of three French diplomats and an undisclosed number of Poles in what was described as the breakup of a big espionage ring centered around the French Embassy and consulates in Poland.

The government said its police had arrested Andre Simon Robineau, assistant attache at the French consulate in Stettin, and Aymar de Brassin de Mere and Fernand Reneaux, members of the French Embassy staff in Warsaw.

The announcement said Robineau was arrested Friday as he was boarding a plane to Paris. He has confessed, it said, and will be tried by a Polish court along with the Polish "confederates."

(In Paris, the French Foreign Ministry announced it has lodged a formal protest against the arrest of Robineau, after it had been informed of Robineau's arrest.

(The French Surete Nationale announced it had released three of six crew members of a Polish plane taken into custody when Robineau failed to arrive from Warsaw. It said they would be restricted to their hotel under tight surveillance.)

Panamanian President Bows to Coup

Panama, Nov. 20 (AP).—Police Chief Col. Jose Remon rose as the strong man of Panama today and forced the resignation of President Daniel Chanis, the surgeon-politician who had held office four months.

Vice President Roberto F. Chiari was sworn in as chief executive at 6 a. m. after a feverish night of plans for battle. Last-minute intervention of the Diplomatic Corps prevented the firing of a shot or the shedding of a drop of blood.

The deposed President observed his fifty-eighth birthday at his residence tonight. He said he resigned to avoid bloodshed.

He tried to force the resignation of Remon and two chief aides in a battle over monopolies. Instead, they threw him out of office in a

Bishops See Family Life Endangered

Catholic Hierarchy Warns of Attempts To Treat Man as Creature of State

By Charles E. Davis, Jr.,
Post Reporter

Family life today is faced with a lethal danger more fearsome than the atom bomb, the Catholic bishops of the United States declared here yesterday.

The bishops issued a statement at the close of their annual meeting which denounced "countless acts and agencies" in the world which are "steadily" moving to "disrupt family life and to destroy the home."

The bishops cited these developments in society as damaging to family life and the home:

1—Approval of divorce as a cure for domestic ills.

2—Acceptance of multiple marriages.

3—Sponsorship of planned parenthood by use of "unnatural and morally degrading means."

4—"Fumbling and inadequate" social legislation to provide suitable housing, decent material facilities and security in income and prospects.

The statement of the Catholic hierarchy said the world of today "acknowledges" God but wishes Him to stay in His heaven, and, as occasion permits, is willing to salute Him there.

Materialistic Evolution

"The Western world today still proclaims human dignity," said the bishops, "but in the main it treats man, physically, as the product of materialistic and mechanical evolution.

"It tends more and more to treat man, socially, as the creature of the state or of control-groups within the state."

The bishops deplored what they termed a "calculated attack upon family life."

"An unbelieving world professing recognition of the essential value of family life," they said, "actually discounts that value and moves to destroy what it claims to cherish."

'Basic Social Unit'

Declaring the family to be "a divine institution" and "the basic social unit," the hierarchy said "no nation can be greater than its families" and "any attack of the state on family life is suicidal."

"In vain," read the statement, "does the world that disregards the injunction of God loosen family ties and break up family life and then look to state schools to produce good citizens.

"At its best the school is only a strong aid to the home. Good citizens must first be good persons . . . Virtue is best developed in a good home where God is held in reverence. And virtue is the basis of good citizenship."

To exist in full effectiveness, said the bishops, family life must have permanence and this permanence depends chiefly upon the permanence of marriage.

'Divorceless Union'

"Strictly requisite," they declared, "is marriage that is monogamous and indissoluble: the marriage of one man with one woman in divorceless union that is broken only by the death of one of the spouses.

"Such a marriage is requisite, not for the mere begetting of offspring, but for the rearing and training of children until they come to full maturity.

"Any marriage which looks to dissolution or divorce, even as a

41,725 Jam Opening of Austrian Art Exhibition

39,000 See Famed Collection in 1st 3 Hours; Notables In Record Throng

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

More than 41,725 persons—notables, art lovers and just people—jammed into the National Gallery of Art yesterday to see the famous Austrian collection of treasures from Vienna.

In the first three hours a crowd of 39,000 was counted going from room to room filled with priceless paintings, sculptures and miniatures by some of the world's most famous artists.

By way of comparison, approximately 10,000 visitors were recorded at the National Gallery the preceding Sunday and when the collection of German-owned old masters opened at the gallery, March 17, 1948, an attendance of only 8390 persons was recorded. Before it closed, 40 days later, the German show had drawn nearly one million persons—a local record.

Approximately 10,000 invited guests were on hand for the opening of the Austrian exhibition yesterday at 3 p. m.

Diplomats Present

Among them were Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, Justice and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter, Justice and Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, Dr. Ludwig Kleinwaechter, the Austrian Minister, Baron Silvercruys, the Belgian Ambassador, and other Government and diplomatic leaders.

When the doors were thrown open at 5 p. m. to the general public other thousands surged into the galleries to see the treasures collected by the Hapsburgs in centuries past and now the property of the Austrian state.

The collection of 129 paintings by Titian, Correggio, Velazquez, Rubens and other old masters; tapestries, armor, Renaissance sculpture, goldsmiths' and silversmiths' work, and classical antiquities drew gasps of admiration and apparently disappointed none.

With the exception of certain objects too fragile to be sent on the long journey by sea, it is virtually the same collection that has been shown in most of the capitals of western Europe during the past several years.

To Memory of General Patton

Speaking at a luncheon at the home of David E. Finley, director of the gallery, preceding the opening, the Austrian Minister said the collection had been lent for exhibit in the United States "as a very modest gesture of goodwill."

"We Austrians owe it to the memory of the late General Patton, that great American soldier, to recall on this occasion that it was he

Head-On Crash

A young Alexandria construction worker died early yesterday of injuries suffered in a motorcycle-auto crash which, a few hours earlier, had claimed the life of a companion.

Lindberg Tyree, 21, of 203 Chinquapin Village, Alexandria, died of internal injuries and shock at Alexandria Hospital about 4 a. m. Fairfax County police reported. His companion, an Army corporal, Thomas R. Coleman, 28, of Fort Belvoir, was killed instantly. The collision occurred shortly before midnight Saturday on Franconia rd., about a mile east of Ward's Corner.

According to police, Tyree was riding on a motorcycle driven by Coleman. The motorcycle crashed head-on with an automobile driven by Thomas Steven Wray, police said. Several occupants of Wray's auto suffered minor injuries.

In the District, five persons were injured in traffic mishaps yesterday, one seriously.

Most seriously hurt was Oscar Lee Cooper, 8, of 110 K st. nw. He was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for head injuries suffered when he was struck by a cab in

'Senior Explorer' Scouts Get Lost On Virginia Peak

Nine red-faced "senior explorers" of Arlington Scout Troop 104 were led to safety by forest rangers last night after they wandered more than 14 hours in the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The boys, led by J. Heston Heald, sr., of 2018 15th st. N., Arlington, left the Herbert Hoover camp near Criglersville at 7 a. m. for a hike on Fork Mountain.

When they failed to show up by 8 p. m., word was flashed to all park rangers. About an hour later Ranger James Van Weelden, stationed at Big Meadow, saw a winking light on the Rapidan trail below him, and located the straggling group.

Van Weelden said the hikers told him they attempted to return to camp early by leaving the trail and cutting cross country, but got lost.

8 Firemen Overcome at Hyattsville

7 Companies Fight $30,000 Blaze in Engineering Plant

Eight firemen were injured last night in a $30,000 fire that wrecked the one-story plant of the Connor Engineering and Manufacturing Co., 4706 Rhode Island ave., Hyattsville, Md.

Lionel Connor, owner of the firm, which manufactures equipment for overhauling and testing Navy airplane engines, said that fortunately he had taken home with him Saturday night secret plans for Navy airplane engines.

Firemen from seven volunteer fire departments confined the blaze to the cinder-block structure. Unscathed was the next door District Oxygen Co., 4704 Rhode Island ave., where some 60,000 cubic feet of compressed gases were stored.

Seven firemen were treated on the scene after they suffered from smoke poisoning. Morgan Gassman of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad, tumbled several feet from a ladder after being overcome by smoke and was taken to Leland Memorial Hospital in Riverdale.

Charles W. Turley, Shoreham Hotel elevator operator, said he was driving past the plant about 4:30 p. m., en route home from the Bladensburg Volunteer Fire Department of which he is a member, when he saw smoke billowing from a structure. He ran to a gas station and asked an attendant to call the fire board.

Summoned to the blaze were the volunteer fire departments of Hyattsville, Bladensburg, Cottage City, Colmar Manor, Mount Rainier, Riverdale, Brentwood and the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad.

Electrical flashes and a small explosion punctuated the fire, fed by 20 gallons of heavy lubricating oil.

Connor said children had broken into the plant several times in recent months and he believed they might have been responsible for the blaze.

There was no secret Navy equipment in the plant at the time of the fire, the owner asserted. He explained he had been entrusted with secret plans for Navy airplane engines because he helped design equipment to test Navy airplane engines.

30 Children Aboard Missing Dutch Airliner

Oslo, Norway, Nov. 20 (AP).—A chartered Dutch airplane, reported to have as many as 35 persons aboard—including 20 to 30 Jewish refugee children—was missing and feared lost tonight on the last lap of a flight from North Africa to Norway.

The plane, a two-engined Dakota transport, was due at nearby Fornebu Airport after its midday departure from Brussels, where it had stopped for fuel. But radio contact with the plane was lost, and it disappeared into the cold, cloudy night without a trace. It did not have sufficient gasoline for prolonged flight.

Airport officials here said the plane, operated by the Aero-Holland Aviation Co., carried 30 or 31 children and a crew of four.

In Amsterdam, Aero-Holland officials said they did not know exactly how many children were aboard but believed there were between 20 and 30.

Red Cross auxiliary workers began a wide search around Oslo after there were reports from several places within the district of explosions in the air.

Chicken in Every Hand

GOP Discards 'Stuffed Shirt,' Schedules Buck-a-Box Supper

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Republicans last night confirmed plans to kick off their 1950 Congressional campaign at a dollar admission "Lincoln Day box supper" in sprawling Uline's Arena the night of February 6.

Disregarding the "stuffed shirt" approach, for a new "hands-across-the-table" motif, the 1950 GOP roadshow is expected to open to a packed house of 12,000, including State delegations hauled in by special trains and planes.

The "common touch," for which Republicans have been striving for nearly 20 years out of office, will be approached this time with fried chicken at a dollar a box and a strict two-minute limit on all formal speeches.

To whip up a convention spirit, bands, orchestras, singers and performing stars of stage and radio will vie with parades, floats and old-fashioned square dancing.

Confirming first reports of the "back to Lincoln" season's opener published in The Washington Post November 12, the League of Republican Women of the District of Columbia announced arrangements in a press release captioned: "That This Nation Shall Have a New Birth of Freedom."

Bus-riding Senator John Foster Dulles took much the same tack in his New York campaign against Herbert H. Lehman and the "welfare state."

Said Mrs. Carroll D. Kearns, league president, and Mrs. A. Burks Summers, general chairman:

"This (Lincoln Day supper) affords an opportunity to all those who believe in the principles of Lincoln, which are the salvation of America. Let us go forward by giving the Republican Party a rebirth of Lincoln's freedom . . ."

Collaborating with the league in the 1950 curtain-raiser are the Republican National Committee, the Republican Senatorial Committee, the Republican Congressional Committee and the District State Committee.

GOP National Chairman Guy George Gabrielson addressed a letter to party leaders throughout the country on this "demonstration of party spirit for the coming Congressional campaign." He called it "a homespun occasion, a contrast in program participation and price to the customary formal dinners."

A headquarters spokesman said Republican leaders are tired of "speaking to themselves" at limited guest-list dinners, that this was a bid for a broader party base.

Although speeches are billed by "key political figures," all will be held down to two minutes, and there will be no "main speech." In

U. S. Phone Official Reported Held Under Arrest in Hungary

Vienna, Nov. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Robert A. Vogeler said today her husband, an American representative of the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., was arrested in Hungary last Friday and is being held incommunicado.

She said she did not know why. Mrs. Vogeler said in an interview that her husband told her last Wednesday by telephone that he was being followed constantly by Hungarian police.

Vogeler, 38, son of Robert A. Vogeler of Jackson Heights, Long Island, N. Y., is assistant vice president of his company and its representative in eastern Europe.

He was last seen, his wife said, at 9 a. m. last Friday morning, when he left the American Legation in Budapest to return to Vienna. He was driving alone in a late model American sedan.

Austrian authorities have checked the frontier station on the main Vienna-Budapest highway, but there was no record his car had passed that point, Mrs. Vogeler said.

She said her husband told her Wednesday night that his exit permit and other papers were in order and that he would leave Budapest Friday morning.

When he did not arrive late Friday night, Mrs. Vogeler said she called his Budapest hotel, the Astoria. The hotel clerk, she said, told her Vogeler had checked out at 8:40 that morning.

A call to the American Legation in Budapest, she said, revealed he had left there at 9 a. m. The American Military Attache at Budapest was to have accompanied Vogeler to Vienna in another car. He told Vogeler to "go ahead and I will catch up with you."

The attache, Lieutenant Colonel Hoyne, arrived in Vienna Friday but said he had not met Vogeler anywhere along the road.

Socialite Son of Victim

Boy Seized in Holdup Admits Plot to Avenge Plane Bombing

Plainville, Mass., Nov. 20 (U.P.).—The socialite son of a wealthy New York family told police today that he staged a holdup here to finance a "revenge" trip to Canada to kill the man accused of causing his father's death by putting a bomb on an airliner.

Police identified the boy as Patrick J. Parker, 18, a Brown University student and son of R. J. Parker, vice president of Kennecott Copper Co. The elder Parker and 22 others were killed September 9 when a time bomb, allegedly placed aboard the plane in a plot by a Quebec city jeweler who wanted to get rid of his wife, exploded while the plane was in flight.

"I'm going to Canada to kill the man responsible for my father's death," police quoted young Parker as saying.

They arrested him last night shortly after a package liquor store here was robbed. In Parker's car, police said they found a .32-caliber automatic and $55.60 tucked in a hunting cap.

The boy, whose family lives in a $50,000 mansion at Rye, N. Y., was quoted by police as saying he needed the money to buy a plane ticket from Boston to Montreal.

Parker told police he bought the gun yesterday in Providence, R. I., and decided on the stickup when his money ran out here.

He apparently planned to use the same gun on J. Albert Guay, the jeweler who is accused as the master-mind of the time bomb plot.

Guay is being held without bail at Quebec City, charged with the first degree murder of his wife, one of the 23 persons who died in the crash of the Quebec Airlines plane. Mrs. Marguerite Pitre, 41, reportedly Guay's mistress, placed the home-made bomb on the plane a few minutes before take-off, allegedly on Guay's instructions.

Social Security Tax Goes Up 50% Jan. 1

A 50 percent increase in social insurance taxes will go into effect six weeks from now, raising 667 million dollars more a year.

Beginning January 1, employers and employes each will pay 1½ percent tax on wages and salaries up to a wage or salary maximum of $3000. The present rate is 1 percent. It has been in effect since the system of retirement and survivors' benefits was started 13 years ago.

The schedule of benefits will remain unchanged.

However, under a bill passed by the House and pending in the Senate, both the premium and the benefits would be higher.

Officials predicted the taxes will affect some 39 million workers and 2,700,000 employers next year, requiring employers and employes to share equally in tax payments as high as $90 a person per year. The present maximum is $60.

Under the pending legislation, the number of workers affected may rise to 50 million and the top employer-employe tax payment per person to $108 before 1950 is over, they said.

The House-passed bill, which a Senate committee is to take up in January, would apply the 1½ percent levy to earnings up to $3600, thus upping the combined contribution of employer and worker at that level another $18.

The higher levy to go into effect automatically on January 1 results from legislation passed in 1948 by the Eightieth Congress.

Hearings Due

CIO Moves To Oust 10 More Unions

By the United Press

Three special CIO committees yesterday completed preparations for full-dress investigations that may result in expulsion of 10 more left-wing unions from the national CIO. The unions have about 400,000 members.

The committees will hold hearings on charges that the unions, and nine of their leaders, followed the Communist Party line.

The charges, brought officially by President William Steinberg of the CIO American Radio Association, represent another move in a campaign to send the 10 dissident groups along the road already traveled by the United Electrical Workers and the Farm Equipment Workers, which were tossed out of the recent CIO convention.

Under new rules adopted by the Cleveland convention, unions and officers indicted by the investigating groups can be expelled summarily.

The investigating committees are loaded with CIO brass.

Emil Rieve, president of the Textile Workers Union, heads one committee. Joseph Beirne of the Communications Workers and Harry Sayre of the Paperworkers are the other members. The group will consider the charges against the Fur and Leather, Office and Professional Workers, Public Workers and American Communications Association.

The second group is headed by President Jacob Potofsky of the Clothing Workers. It includes Emil Mazey of the Auto Workers, and Joseph Curran of the National Maritime Union. It will look into the Furniture Workers, the Food and Tobacco Workers and the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

O. A. Knight of the Oil Workers, heads the third committee. Other members are James Fadling of the Woodworkers, and Joseph Fisher. The group will investigate Harry Bridges' Longshoremen, the Marine Cooks and Stewards and the Fishermen's Union.

UFW Will Support CIO Policies, Chief Says

Chicago, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Morris Pizer, president of the CIO United Furniture Workers, one of the allegedly left-wing unions threatened with ouster from the CIO, tonight said the union will "support the program and policies of the CIO and remain within the family."

Republican legislators were reported so intrigued with the idea that one reserved 500 tickets and another ordered 200.

Knowland Asks Release of Ward, Or U. S. Blockade

Taipeh, Formosa, Nov. 20 (AP).—Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.), told a press conference here today he had radioed to President Truman demanding a blockade of the Chinese Communist coast if the Reds fail quickly to free Consul General Angus Ward.

Ward and four consular employes are held incommunicado in Mukden on charges that they beat a Chinese workman in the Consulate six weeks ago.

The official Chinese Nationalist Central News Agency reported Knowland said he had radioed to Mr. Truman, proposing that the United Nations be asked to obtain release of Ward and the others and that, if the Reds refused, an American blockade be enforced until the Reds did agree.

A nonofficial reporter said the Senator proposed that Mr. Truman serve notice on the Reds to free Ward within 48 hours under threat of a total air and sea blockade. This reporter said Knowland advocated notifying the United Nations of the American intentions and asking member nations to join the blockade.

Showdown Seen on Coal Welfare Fund

By The Associated Press

A new showdown was indicated Monday between John L. Lewis and Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), over spending a reported 13 million dollars remaining in the miners' Welfare Fund.

Lewis, chairman of the three-man board of trustees administering the fund, has differed with Bridges, the neutral member, over tapping the money.

The New Hampshire Senator contends money collected since the United Mine Workers soft coal contract expired last June 30 cannot be used until a new agreement has been signed between Lewis and the operators.

There was no indication yesterday that any agreement was even close.

Unless there is a break in the next 10 days, the coal diggers are expected to walk off the job again December 1, ending a three-week truce.

White House intervention to get Lewis and the operators back together in direct negotiations was still regarded as a possibility this week.

But Lewis' main attention Monday had to be directed to the trustees' meeting he called Saturday. The operators have selected former Judge Charles I. Dawson of Louisville, Ky., to succeed Ezra Van Horn as their representative on the board. Whether Dawson would be seated in Van Horn's place may become an issue, too. Van Horn has not yet received court clearance to be relieved of the trusteeship. It is believed Lewis may demand such action.

New Free World Trade Group May Aid West in Cold War

Creation of a new world federation of free trade unions, to be organized at the end of this month, will give the Western democracies added strength in the "cold war" with Russia and its satellites.

Such is the conclusion of David Lasser, former ECA labor adviser, in a report on "Labor in World Affairs," published by the Foreign Policy Association, and released yesterday.

The free federation, to be set up in London at a conference beginning November 28, with the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations participating, will be a rival to the Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions.

The CIO and other labor organizations from the non-Communist countries recently withdrew from the WFTU because the latter organization had become an instrument of Kremlin-dictated policy.

The AFL, suspicious of the WFTU from its very origin in 1945, never did join that group.

The new organization, still to be named, will represent more than 50 million workers in the world, according to Lasser's report. The new federation's "chances of overwhelming" the WFTU are good, according to Lasser, even though the pro-Communist organization claims between 52 million and 62 million members.

The impending struggle between the two global labor groups will be "a new fact of the political diplomatic conflict between the Western and Soviet worlds," according to Lasser. He predicted the outcome of this rivalry "is likely to have a profound effect on the "cold war" between East and West in and out of the United Nations." Lasser declares:

"By its very act to regroup the non-Communist labor forces throughout the world, the new international places a very effective obstacle to attempts to utilize the international labor movement for Soviet purposes.

"The London spokesmen will try to expose the lack of freedom of the Eastern European unions to bargain collectively, point to the virtual prohibition of strikes and characterize the socialist emulation of labor as a harsh, undisguised speedup system."

Lasser warns that there is a danger the new international and the Western democracies may allow the WFTU to monopolize the slogan of "peace' among the workers and be forced into a defensive attitude toward the North Atlantic pact and military expenditures necessary for implementation.

"If this Communist propaganda is to be offset," Lasser said, "the workers must be convinced, through forceful education programs by the new international, that collective security against aggression is necessary to prevent war."

Denham Sees T-H Curbing Labor's Reds

By the United Press

Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, last night said the Taft-Hartley Act has "done much to reduce the influence of communism in the labor movement."

He referred to a section of the 1947 labor law requiring union officials to swear they are not Communists if they want to make use of the board's machinery.

Denham said he didn't think the non-Communist affidavits have "driven Communists or other radicals out of the labor movement," adding that many never have become or attempted to become union officers.

But he said the requirement "had definitely resulted in making most labor organizations Communist-conscious, so that they have been officially barring Communists from holding office and some unions now bar them from membership entirely."

FAO Parley to Rule On Bid for D. C. Site

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

America's bid for the location in Washington of permanent headquarters for the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization will be decided at the FAO conference that opens at the Shoreham at 10 a. m. today.

Delegates from 58 nations, with observers from a number of organizations, will meet for two weeks or more. On Tuesday the delegates will be addressed by President Truman.

Two of the most important issues facing the conference will be how to expand food production in some countries and how to keep disastrous farm surpluses from piling up in others.

Clearing House Proposed

For the first, delegates will review FAO plans for increasing food production by giving technical assistance to underdeveloped countries. For the second, the nations will consider the proposed International Commodity Clearing House or other means of solving the problem of surpluses.

If the procedures followed in previous conferences are followed, the conference will divide itself into three groups.

Commission I will consider international issues arising from the present world situation, including the ICCH proposal.

Commission II will deal with the technical work of FAC and with the technical aspects of member governments' efforts to reach production, trade and food consumption goals, including the Point Four program of technical aid.

Commission III will deal with administrative and financial questions affecting FAO.

Bids From 3 Other Nations

In the fight over permanent headquarters, Washington's bid is opposed by invitations from Denmark, Italy and Switzerland. In addition, the United Nations has offered FAO a permanent site in New York.

Many observers expect a bitter fight over the permanent location. Congress was asked to make a formal request, backed up with the offer of a loan of seven million dollars to build the necessary buildings. However, after being passed by the Senate, the measure was lost in the last-minute shuffle in the House.

Denmark has offered a palace at Copenhagen free of cost, Italy a building errected in Rome just before the war, and Switzerland a site at Geneva.

The conference also will act on applications for membership by four countries, Indonesia, Israel, Korea and Spain.

On Monopoly

FTC Accused Of Ducking Corn Case

By Robert S. Allen

A remarkable situation has developed within the Federal Trade Commission on the long-pending case involving 30 monopoly charges against nine major corn products manufacturers.

FTC lawyers are accusing the FTC commissioners of stalling the trial of the corporations.

At stake in the case is the price of hundreds of food products and industrial ingredients. Corn products and derivatives are vital in the feeding of infants, manufacture of candy, jellies and preserves, bakery goods and other foods; in brewing, laundering, textiles, paper, leather, soaps, adhesives and scores of other industrial processes.

The FTC lodged its original complaint against the nine firms on July 20, 1947, after a year of evidence-gathering. In the nearly 2½ years since then, the commission has still not set a trial date on the case prepared by its own investigators.

Only 3 Hearings

All that has transpired is three hearings on motions by the defendants to shelve the charges against them.

FTC attorneys contend these maneuvers are a deliberate stall, aided by the FTC commissioners.

"They do want the case brought to the light of day," Everett MacIntyre, FTC attorney, declared. "The corn products would rather have the press, the public, the trade journals and members of Congress believe that no charges have been made."

Three times the FTC commissioners have marched up the hill and down again on the issue of trying the corporations.

The first occurred on October 13, 1948, 15 months after the antitrust charges were filed. The commissioners held a hearing on a defense motion to "vacate the complaint." Nine months later, on July 12 of this year, the motion, finally, was rejected.

Undeterred by the rebuff, the nine companies popped right back with two motions to reverse the commissioners' ruling. This time, it took them only six days to act. On July 18, they again turned thumbs down.

Third Demand

Again, the defendant refused to be discouraged. On October 13, for the third time, they renewed their demand that the case be quashed. They justified this on the ground that two of the commissioners who had participated in the July hearings were still members of the agency. Of the other three, one had died and two had been replaced.

This argument carried the day, particularly with Acting Chairman Lowell M. Mason. At his instigation, the commissioners agreed to again consider the corn producers' motion to drop the case against them. Date for this hearing is December 20.

Note: One of the major charges against the corn products manufacturers is price fixing. It is claimed this was done through trade associations. Four of them were organized in 1932. FTC investigators learned that the four organizations had a common Chicago address and all were run by one official.

President Forced Out

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
DANIEL CHANIS, JR.
. . . Ousted in Panama

President of Panama Quits In Face of Bloodless Coup

middle-of-the-night coup while Panama slept.

Chanis said he ordered the police chiefs' removal because they held interests in virtual monopolies in the beef-slaughtering business and commercial bus routes. He said they refused to recognize a Supreme Court ruling throwing the business open to all.

Chanis' friends said he decided Friday night to act against Remon, even though it might mean his job. Remon heads the 2000 police, Panama's only armed force.

He was out of office in a little over 24 hours.

Remon, 41-year-old President-maker, rose from police ranks. He had been chief three years. In that time he is credited with building an officer corps intensely loyal to himself. He was educated in Mexico.

The republic's 700,000 people first learned of it this morning—when the excitement was all over, and newspapers were allowed to resume publication.

The chain of events began at 5 p. m. Saturday when the President summoned Remon to his palace and demanded his resignation. Remon said he refused to sign the resignation and for a time was held prisoner at the palace.

The President ordered Remon's aides, Deputy Chief Col. Volivar Vallarino and Third Commandant Saturnino Flores, removed. He named Col. Rogellio Fabrega, former consul in New York, Maj. Oscar Ocana and Maj. Manuel Pallau as successors to the three police chiefs.

He sent the three new officials, along with Minister of Government Albilio Bellido and Vice President Chiari to the central police station to take over. But Vallarino and Flores refused to surrender their offices and seized the presidential emissaries.

A strange and perhaps deciding factor was the release of Remon after he had been held about four hours. Apparently he was allowed to leave for the purpose of negotiating terms with his subordinates. Instead he went to police headquarters and assumed command.

Police patrols with helmets and rifles deployed throughout the city and took up positions isolating the presidential palace. They threatened to attack the palace if the President did not resign by 2 a. m.

Ten diplomats, including Peruvian Ambassador Ortiz Dezevallos, dean of the corps; Papal Charge d'Affaires Msgr. Berniere and United States Ambassador Monnett Davis, conferred with Remon and then with Chanis.

They achieved no concrete results but their intervention afforded a breathing spell at the ultimatum's deadline which opened the way to renewed negotiations.

Selling, Not Production, Called England's Task

New York, Nov. 20 (NYHT).—Selling, rather than production, is England's "big national task," Harold Wilson, president of the British Board of Trade, said today.

Wilson will head the British delegation to the Food and Agriculture Organizations Conference opening today in Washington and will also go "around various areas to see the possibilities of increasing exports from the United Kingdom," he explained.

"More and more," he said, "any increase in dollar exports will depend not so much on quantity of production as on cost, price, styling and selling."

The future, he said, would see British industry concentrating more heavily on the problems of merchandising, packaging and advertising, and it would see "more people coming over to see what is wanted and going back to see that you get it."

Wilson said tourism is England's greatest net American dollar earner. In the first nine months of this year Great Britain was visited by 85,000 American tourists, which represented a 30 percent increase over the 1948 period.

Reds View 3d War As Capitalist Doom

By Henry Shapiro

Moscow, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—The Communist organ Pravda warned today in an editorial as Russia observed its annual Artillery Day, that a third World War would be the graveyard of the capitalistic world. Pravda repeated the November 6 statement by G. M. Malenkov in which the Politbureau member said "it isn't we, but the imperialists who must fear war."

"Historical experience shows eloquently that if the imperialists unleash a third World War, this war will be the graveyard for the entire world of capitalism, not only for individual capitalist states, but of the whole of world capitalism," the statement said.

It was announced that one million copies of Malekov's speech had been published in the Russian language alone, not counting the probable millions in other Soviet and foreign languages.

The Soviet Union observed National Artillery Day with ceremonial meetings, fireworks and 20 artillery salvoes in 26 of the principal cities.

A Pravda editorial said Soviet artillery was the world's best, in quality and power.

Gen. I. Prochko, in an article in Izvestia, said Russia had pioneered many types of guns and mortars and developed rocket artillery back in the 19th century.

Now no other country in the world can produce artillery on a mass scale comparable with that of Russia.

The Pravda editorial as broadcast by Moscow radio and monitored in London said: Premier Josef Stalin himself had raised Soviet military science, already "the most advanced in the world," to "unprecedented heights."

"Contemporary bourgeois military science is enmeshed in contradictions and is hopelessly trying to extricate itself from a blind alley by means of all kinds of adventurist theories and plans," Pravda said.

Soviet Force In Yugoslavia Put at 12,000

Belgrade, Nov. 20 (AP).—Responsible non-Yugoslav sources here today said Russia has increased substantially the number of Soviet military men stationed in Almania.

While an exact figure of the number of Soviet forces in Albania is not obtainable, the best-informed guess places the number between 12,000 and 15,000, or about twice as many as there were four months ago.

Apparently authentic reports reaching Belgrade said the new arrivals appeared to be technicians, officers skilled in guerilla warfare, and training experts.

This could be more of the saber rattling that has been going on in the Cominform neighbors around Yugoslavia as a part of the war of nerves against the Cominform outcast—Premier Marshal Tito.

Tito has guarded against providing Russia any excuses despite more than a score of provocations of one sort or another. There is every reason to believe he will follow the same policy with regard to Albania, should anything develop there.

12 Men Go on Trial For Negro Floggings

The floggings took place at a small community just outside Trenton, Ga.

U. N. Approval of Statehood For Libya, Somaliland Seen

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—A plan to guarantee eventual statehood to Libya and Somaliland is promised decisive approval in the United Nations Assembly Monday against Soviet bloc proposals.

A final vote is expected after a morning debate, in time to clear the way for the appearance of the visiting Shah of Iran in the Assembly.

The Soviet Union's opposition to a majority plan, adopted by decisive vote in the 59-member political committee, is not counted serious.

Small states of Latin America and the Middle East have held together in a Moslem-Catholic bloc since they worked out the program in a task force of the political committee. The United States, Britain and China have urged quick approval for the majority outline. A fourth big power, France, is on the morning speaking list, along with Russia and Ethiopia.

The majority plan calls for independence for Libya after two years under a U. N. commissioner; independence for Somaliland after 10 years of U. N. trusteeship, with Italy as the administering authority; and postponement of what to do with Eritrea until further study next year.

The Soviet Union demands immediate independence for Libya and withdrawal of all foreign troops within three months; and independence within five years for both Somaliland and Eritrea.

Italy's Ambassador to Washington, Alberto Tarchiani, has sat in the committee meetings as a representative, speaking only when invited to. Throughout he has insisted on the new Italy's peaceful intentions.

Air Safety
...a remarkable record

The safety record of the scheduled Airlines of the United States is one of the most remarkable achievements in the history of public transportation, and may be pointed to with pride.

Here are the real facts, which will probably amaze you: in 1948, the scheduled Airlines flew *13 million passengers, (an all time high) for a total of 6 billion miles with a passenger fatality of 83. To this date in 1949, the scheduled Airlines have flown more than 13 million passengers for more than 6 billion miles with a passenger fatality of 63.

More than 13 million passengers flying in one year between thousands of communities in the United States means hundreds of huge airliners arriving at and leaving 500 important cities every minute of the day. When we clearly view this gigantic pattern of air travel in our country today, then the recent safety record of the scheduled Airlines emerges as an historic accomplishment in public transportation!

And . . . once you've seen the sheer greatness of this country of ours unfold below you its patchwork of farmlands and forests, mountains and rivers, tiny villages and great cities, . . . once you've experienced the clean comfort and swift convenience of travel via the scheduled Airlines you, too, will share the enthusiasm and faith of millions of Americans in flying as a better way to go places.

This advertisement is published as a public service and in a spirit of admiration for the achievements of the scheduled Airlines of the United States . . . also because of our firm faith in the future of air transportation.

who saved the Austrian art treasures from destruction and who had them returned to the Austrian people," Dr. Kleinwaechter said.

Secretary of State Acheson, a member of the gallery's board of trustees, who was unable to be present for the opening, expressed in a letter the "sincere appreciation, and the gratitude of the American people," for the opportunity to see the famous collection.

Finley said the opening was "one of the great days in the history of the National Gallery."

The exhibition which will remain at National Gallery until January 22, is expected to draw more thousands today. Gallery visiting hours are from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. weekday and 2 to 10 p. m. Sundays.

Following the Washington premiere, the collection will be exhibited in New York at the Metropolitan Museum, which has prepared the illustrated catalog for the show, and subsequently in Chicago and San Francisco.

Guarding the priceless exhibition here is the gallery's own police force, increased yesterday from approximately 80 to 110 men, and a 11-man detail of military police from the Third Infantry Regiment. Outside yesterday were specially assigned members of the District police to handle the traffic.

The exhibition is more spaciously arranged than was that of the German-owned collection, and the crowds yesterday were admitted in surging groups. Nevertheless, they milled and eddied at times, torn between the attractions of a dozen Titians, pageant armor, the Cellini salt cellar made of nine pounds of gold, and the 2680-carat emerald unguent jar.

Dr. Shapley Repeats Lecture

A lecture by Dr. John Shapley, professor of art at Catholic University and former president of the College Art Association, on the Austrian collection proved so popular that he repeated it to standing-room-only audiences.

Dr. Shapley pointed out that the exhibition represents one of the greatest centers of art collecting—Vienna—and that because Vienna lay a little to the east of the main stream of tourist traffic even in favorable time, Americans did not become as familiar with its artistic riches as they did with those of other capitals.

"To see these objects here is a source of particular satisfaction to those who either by study or residence in Vienna are glad to have Vienna's place in cultural life vindicated," he said.

Dr. Shapley described the Vermeer painting, "The Artist in His Studio," as having "almost legendary value and importance," and said of the group of eight paintings by Rubens that nothing of the artist's of "corresponding merit and quality is to be seen in American collections."

New to America

Anton Franz Maulpertsch, the Austrian painter, "is an important master new to the American public," Dr. Shapley said. Maulpertsch, who lived from 1724 to 1796, is represented by four paintings in the collection.

Among the objects dart he singled out for mention was the Burgundian Court Goblet of rock crystal with gold mounts. Dr. Shapley pointed out that it was made for Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy, who was the ally of the English in the the One Hundred Years War and whose troops captured Joan of Arc and sold her to the English. Because of this association, Dr. Shapley said, the goblet must have been present at many an historic conversation.

Perry B. Cott, assistant chief curator at the gallery, will speak at 4 p. m. next Sunday on the recovery of the Austrian works of art from the salt mines where they had been concealed during World War II.

Tintoretto's "Susanna and the Elders," painted about 1560, will be the gallery's "picture of the week." Miss Margaret Bouton of the gallery staff will discuss the Austrian-owned painting at 12:30 and 2:30 p. m. week days, except Thanksgiving Day, and at 2:30 and 6:30 p. m. next Sunday.

Man Gets Milk Bath, Injuries as Truck Overturns

Charles W. Kidwell, 51, of Route 1, Herndon, Va., got an unexpected milk bath Saturday.

Kidwell was doing some work for the Asplundh Tree Expert Co. about 8:30 a. m. yesterday on Route 211 near Chain Bridge rd., when a milk truck overturned, drenching him with 1000 gallons of county milk.

Kidwell, caught under the hood of the truck when it upset, was admitted to Arlington Hospital "soaked to the skin," with possible head and chest injuries.

His coworker, Paul Kent, 31, also of Herndon, suffered minor cuts in the upset. Milk truck driver Albert T. McIntosh of Aldie, Va., told Fairfax police the accident occurred when the car in front of him slowed down, forcing him to use his brakes and causing a too-sudden shift in his milky cargo, which upturned the truck.

New Loss of Industry Seen for New England

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 20 (AP).—Kent T. Healy, professor of transportation at Yale, tonight predicted industry will continue to move out of the New England area.

"New England," he said, "cannot maintain its old position of manufacturing the major share of many products for the whole country, but this does not mean all loss to New England and the East."

N. Y. Crash Kills Woman Called Spy By Bulgarians

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 20 (U.P.)—Miss Mellony Turner, who was accused of being an American spy during the trial of 15 Protestant clergymen in Bulgaria early this year, was killed in a two-car collision near here today.

Her father, the Rev. W. C. B. Turner, a retired Methodist minister, also died as a result of the crash.

Miss Turner was charged with spying for the United States by the Rev. Vassil Ziapkov during the Bulgarian trial last February 26. She had spent 24 years in the country, 18 of them as principal of the American School for Girls at Lavetch, before leaving by way of Greece a few months before the trial. At her Cato home, Miss Turner denied the espionage charges.

Reignited Ashes Of Burned Leaves Cause $3000 Loss

An executive-director of the World Bank for Reconstruction and Development incurred a $3000 lost yesterday, when the ashes of leaves he had been burning reignited.

Jose Barreda-Moller, 6804 Brookville rd., Chevy Chase, Md., lost his one-car garage and most of the new car that was in it.

Chevy Chase Fire Department officials said Barreda Moller had placed the ashes in a wooden box and set the box in his garage. The ashes burned through the box and the new fire started on the wooden floor of the garage.

Damage to the six month-old automobile was estimated at $1800 and to the garage $1200.

Barkleys Turn Up in Atlanta After Visit to Jackson Shrine

Atlanta, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Vice President Alben Barkley and his bride slipped into Atlanta on their honeymoon tonight.

The jovial Veep and his wife of two days arrived at the Ansley Hotel tonight in their new car.

They had motored today from Nashville, where they spent last night.

They left Nashville shortly after returning from a brief visit to the Hermitage, historic home of Andrew Jackson. There Barkley placed a wreath on Jackson's grave.

"I wish in my very soul that every American could live without fear of economic want," he said. "This fellow Jackson really knew how to live."

Bishops Warn of Peril to Family

possibility, cannot give to children the security they need . . . cannot breathe into children the spirit of true family life . . ."

The bishops said further that there must be "no undue intervening of the civil power in the domain of husband and wife." The state, they said, must respect the rights of the family.

They declared the state "must not fail therefore to provide for the adequate housing of families, for the requisite schooling of children, for the use of common benefits supplied through the taxing of citizens."

They said the state must not "oppress" the family, must not discount parental authority by invading the home and legislating upon matters which are of strictly domestic concern.

They said the state must not "usurp" the right of parents to educate their children and cannot force a child to attend "this school or that . . ."

"Nor," said the bishops, "can the state make discrimination among families, distributing common benefits to some and withholding them from others."

Needs Economic Security

The statement of the hierarchy said the family needs a just measure of economic security.

"When," stated the bishops, "in a wealthy and prospering nation, diligent and willing parents are forced to live in grinding poverty; when parents have no opportunity of owning their own home; when the aid of government is extended to those who raise crops or built machines but not to those who rear children, there exists a condition of inequity and even of injustice.

"Social legislation and social action must concur to improve man's economic opportunity, to enable him to marry early, to free him from the peril of unnaturally limiting his family, and to afford him some certainty of sufficiently gainful employment and some assurance that death or accident will not reduce his dependents to the status of public charges."

The bishops declared that "viewing our country and the world by and large, and noting the growing tendency to ignore God and His rights in society, the lethal danger to the family is neither chimerical nor remote. It is a present danger, more fearsome than the atom bomb."

Call for Return to Virtue

In closing, the bishops called for "an intensive effort to restore the virtues and practices guaranteeing family stability and peace."

In the name of the hierarchy, the statement was signed by the members of the administrative board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference who are:

Dennis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia, Edward Cardinal Mooney of Detroit, Samuel Cardinal Stritch of Chicago, Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York, and the following archbishops:

Francis P. Keough of Baltimore, John T. McNicholas, O. P., of Cincinnati, Robert E. Lucey of San Antonio, Richard J. Cushing of Boston, Joseph E. Ritter of St. Louis, Patrick A. O'Boyle of Washington, John M. Gannon of Erie, John F. Noll of Fort Wayne, Emmet M. Walsh, Coadjutor Bishop of Youngstown, and Michael J. Ready of Columbus.

Yukawa's Meson Theory and Son Born at Same Time

New York, Nov. 20 (NYHT).—Dr. Hideki Yukawa told 150 persons at a reception in his honor today at the Japanese-American Christ Methodist Church that the meson theory that won him the Nobel Prize a fortnight ago occurred to him as he nervously lay awake in bed awaiting his youngest son's birth.

Although the idea of a particle larger than the electron but smaller than the proton had occurred to him as early as 1933, Dr. Yukawa said it was during a sleepless night in September, 1934, that he saw the relation of the meson to the structure of the atom.

Dr. Yukawa, who leaves early next month for Sweden to collect his prize, is now teaching and studying at Columbia. He is working, he said, to discover theoretically whether the electrons, protons, and other elementary particles have any specific construction.

Gen. Eisenhower, Smith Cite Need For Reservists

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Gen. Dwight W. Eisenhower and his wartime chief of staff, Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, joined today in asking more enlistments in the organized reserve corps.

The two officers spoke to 10,000 reservists at the Kingsbridge Armory in the Bronx.

Smith said the country needs a reservoir of citizens already trained.

Saying the United States has sought peace through weakness and failed, Smith advised, "We might do well to seek peace through our own strength."

Eisenhowr stressed the benefit of training in developing the ability "to do the right thing at a given moment."

Without that, he said, the United States "cannot win the next war."

Iowa Goldilocks Sups, Sleeps, and Lands in Jail Cell

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Nov. 20 (AP).—An impromptu reenactment of the old fairy tale about Goldilocks and the three bears landed Clarence Bass, 43, in jail here.

Norman Staubs and his wife told police they returned home last night and found that someone had forced open the kitchen door. Then—just as in the fairy tale—they found that someone had been eating in their kitchen.

Then the Staubs went into the bedroom—and there lay Bass, sound asleep.

From there on things departed from the script. In the fairy tale Goldilocks jumped out the window and ran home. But Bass was persuaded, with the aid of a crowbar in the hands of Staubs, to remain where he was until police came.

Bass finished the night on a bunk in a jail cell. He was held for investigation.

Savings-Loan Group To Meet Here in '50

By Conrad P. Harness
Post Reporter

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Washington, D. C., has been chosen as the site of the next convention of the United States Savings and Loan League, now in session here at the Palmer House.

Fred A. Smith, president of the local chapter which extended the invitation, said an estimated 3800 delegates and wives would attend the Washington convention, expected to be held the second or third week of November next year.

Smith said delegates would stay at several hotels, with business conferences at two downtown hotels.

About 2800 delegates are attending the league's fifty-seventh annual convention but the Washington Sesquicentennial is expected to attrack a much bigger crowd next year, Smith said.

Post Reporter Wins Second Place in Contest

Chicago, Nov. 20 (Spl.).—Conrad P. Harness, real estate editor of The Washington Post, tonight was declared second prize winner in a contest for the best real estate news story in America in 1949.

The contest is sponsored by the National Association of Real Estate Editors, meeting here in connection with the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

First prize was awarded to Thomas McMorrow, of the New Bruswick (N. J.) Sunday Times, for a story on selection of home sites.

The winning entry by Harness was entitled, "Ten Rules for Building Your Dream Home," and was published in Parade, Sunday supplement of The Washington Post and other newspapers.

An honorable mention certificate went to Robert Lewis, real estate editor of the Washington Evening Star, for a story on remodeling of old houses.

Lauderdale Quits PUC Post Here

Lauderdale

The 44-year-old former people's counsel for the PUC will join the firm of Keane & Michelet, 910 17th st. nw.

Lauderdale was first appointed to the Public Utilities Commission by President Truman in 1946 to replace James Francis Reilly, who resigned. He was reappointed the following year to a full three-year term which would have expired June 30.

A native Washingtonian, and a page in the Senate during his high school days, he is a graduate of the National University Law School, where he received his degree in 1930. He was admitted to the District bar the following year.

After a short time in the real estate business, he practiced law for three years and then wa appointed assistant District corporation counsel in 1934.

Lauderdale served in that capacity for 10 years until President Roosevelt appointed him people's counsel, a position which had been vacant for five years. He had been recommended by the District Commissioners, the Attorney General, the District Bar Association and several Congressmen.

He heads a current $100,000 building and development fund drive for the National University Law School.

Lauderdale lives with his wife, Margaret, and their four children at 1424 Webster st. nw. He is a member of the Barristers Club and the Optimists Club.

Dr. Harris Starts Series of Lectures On Child Problems

A series of lectures on child problems will be presented by Dr. Thomas A. Harris, psychiatrist-director of the Fairfax Child Guidance Clinic, at the Oak Street School in Falls Church beginning today.

Today and next Monday Dr. Harris will address teachers at 4:30 p. m. and parents at 8 p. m. On December 5, he will speak before a joint meeting of the two groups at 8 p. m.

The program is sponsored by the Falls Church High School and the Oak Street, Bailey's Cross Roads, Madison, Dunn Loring, Franklin-Sherman, Chesterbrook and St. James elementary schools. Any interested person is invited to attend.

Sen. Anderson Sees Reelection Of Truman in '52

By the United Press

Senator Anderson (D., N. Mex.) today predicted the Democrats will increase their Senate majority in the 1950 elections and that President Truman will win the Democratic nomination and reelection in 1952.

Anderson, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, said a recent tour of several States left him more optimistic than ever.

He declined to estimate how great the Democratic gain would be.

Sawyer Report Due to Urge U. S. Transport Policy Board

By The Associated Press

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer soon will inform the President that the Government needs a central policy body to guide all Federal transportation activities, officials reported yesterday.

The report will suggest that coordination of Federal programs covering the air, rail, water and highway transport industries could save taxpayers part of the $1,500,000,000 now spent each year by a dozen Federal agencies.

Sawyer's report—due by December 1—may call for studies on whether the Government should impose "user charges" on the air and trucking lines, shipping firms and railroads that benefit from Federal outlays on highways, airports, harbor work and other facilities.

The high policy board, Sawyer will suggest, should develop a program aimed at an efficient national transport system—with high emphasis on military usefulness—at lowest possible Federal outlays.

Officials have in mind that it would resolve such questions as these:

Should further Federal help be given railroads, in view of steadily sagging earnings despite repeated boosts in freight and passenger rates? Or should the Government cut its subsidies to airlines, whose growth has hurt the railroads? Or adjust rates among the competing forms of transportation to relieve pressure on the railroads?

The railroad problem prompted Representative Walter (D., Pa.) last week to suggest creation of an over-all Government transportation agency.

School Ground Broken In Takoma Park, Md.

Ground for the school and convent of Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church, New Hampshire and Larch aves., Takoma Park, Md., was broken yesterday.

Completion of the school has been set for September, 1950, according to the Rev. James F. King, pastor of the church. The school auditorium, which will seat 600 persons, will also be used for religious services.

3 Firemen Overcome

Baltimore, Nov. 20 (AP).—At least three firemen were overcome by gas leaking from a broken main when they fought an apartment house fire in west Baltimore last night.

One of their officers, Lieut. Charles Crowley, rescued a 2-year-old girl from a smoke-filled room with the help of an off-duty policeman.

Flames and smoke drove 11 persons from the five-family dwelling, but no serious injuries were reported.

2 Scottish Rite Classes Combined

Consolidation of the short term and fall classes of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry for the Valley of Washington will give the rite its largest peacetime class in history.

Dr. John Palmer, director of work, said yesterday that merger of the two classes would make a total of 170 candidates for degrees in the rite. The classes will be combined for the conferral of the thirtieth, thirty-first and thirty-second degrees.

Dr. Mackie Will Speak

Area Boy Scout Field Executive Takes Post Dec. 1

Marion Hollingsworth has been named field scout executive for the Frederick Douglass District, effective December 1, Richard E. Shands, president of the National Capital Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, announced yesterday.

Hollingsworth at present is field scout executive for the South Shore District of Baltimore Area Council and formerly served as field scout executive for Steubenville, Ohio. He was a neighborhood commissioner before entering professional scouting.

The Frederick Douglass district includes Southwest, Southeast and part of Northeast Washington and 11 counties in Virginia.

Thanksgiving Service To Conclude Mission

A service of thanksgiving at 8 p. m. today at the Washington Cathedral will mark the conclusion of a nine-day mission conducted by the Rev. Bryan Green of Birmingham, England.

Besides the mission services, Mr. Green has spoken to church and college groups while in Washington and conducted noonday services at the Church of the Epiphany under the auspices of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Coffee Shortage, High Prices Likely to Continue for Years

The American housewife apparently will have to get used to paying more for coffee.

With prices now at an "all-time high," world supplies for the next few years are likely to remain about the present levels, the Commerce Department said yesterday.

The department published a 8500-word study of the world coffee situation by Albert M. Prosterman and Alice M. Taylor, of the food branch.

The two experts said Brazilian production has been going down since the depression years, when the South American country burned hills of coffee it couldn't sell.

Brazil normally supplies well over half of the world's needs. United States manufacturers use about half Brazilian coffee in blends to provide the varying flavors.

Adventists Report Largest Increase In Membership

The largest increase in the membership of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church since its founding was recorded last year, the Rev. J. L. McElhany, the denomination's president, reported yesterday from Takoma Park world headquarters.

A total of 63,014 baptisms were made in 1948 in Adventist churches throughout the world, he said.

Elder McElhany announced a record offering of $42,302,388 was given the Church by its members, which included a per capita gift of $135.70 from members in North America.

French General Strike Postponement Asked

Paris, Nov. 20 (NYHT).—The Christian Workers Federation (CFTC), the smallest of France's three major labor federations, asked today a postponement of the one-day general strike which has been called for next Friday.

A general strike order has been issued by the other two labor federations—Workers Force (FO) and General Confederation of Labor (CGT) and it had been generally accepted that CFTC would go along.

Peak Garages Again to Be Zoning Topic

The controversial question of what Lieut. Col. Lawrence I. Peak should and should not be allowed to do with his Georgetown alley garages will come before the District Board of Zoning Adjustment again Wednesday.

Last year, when Peak tried to remodel the garages in the rear of 3316 P st. nw., he stirred up a fuss among neighbors, who feared the structures would be converted into dwellings. The lots front only on an alley.

Peak, who lives at 1721 Rhode Island ave. nw., has appeared previously before the BZA to seek permission to devote the garages to some useful purpose.

In the present application he has asked permission to use the premises for any of 13 purposes, ranging from general storage space to a trade school.

Also on the board's docket of 32 requests for variances within one zoning classification is a request for permission to build the Shoemaker Retreat for Friendless Maiden Ladies at Military rd. and 27th st. nw.

The BZA turned down such a request in September because the property was in the wrong zoning classification. Since then, however, the Zoning Commission has rezoned the tract to a less restrictive classification.

Three Visits Scheduled by Bloodmobile

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit Arlington, St. Elizabeths Hospital and the Naval Masonic Lodge here the first three days of this week, the blood center announced.

The stop in Arlington to collect blood from volunteer donors will be from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Monday at the Wilson Boulevard Christian Church, Wilson blvd. and North Piedmont st.

On Tuesday, doctors, nurses and other members of the St. Elizabeths staff will have a chance to give their blood. The mobile unit will be stationed at Howard Hall from 9 to 11 a. m. and at the Medical Building from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m.

The Wednesday stop at the Naval Lodge of Masons, Pennsylvania ave. and 4th st. se., will be from 6:30 to 9:30 p. m.

Dr. Watson W. Eldridge is blood recruitment chairman for the St. Elizabeths employes unit; L. Malcolm Graham is chairman for this week's Masonic Lodge visit, and Colin Hamilton, for Arlington.

During the past week, a total of 603 pints of blood were distributed to neighboring communities covered by the bloodmobile.

Sen. Johnson On Secrecy

In an impassioned plea for secrecy about atomic energy developments, Senator Edwin C. Johnson told a television audience the other day that American scientists "already have created a bomb that has six times the effectiveness of the bomb that was dropped at Nagasaki." And being, apparently, in an expansive mood, the Senator also divulged that the scientists "have been trying to make what is known as a superbomb. They've been devoting their time to two things; one, to make a superbomb, and the other, to find some way of detonating a bomb before the fellow that wants to drop it can detonate it." And, he added, "we've made considerable progress in that direction."

Whether Senator Johnson supposed that this telecast was strictly off the record or that the entire audience had been carefully investigated and cleared by the FBI, we cannot say. The fact is, however, that the information he imparted, while long a matter of fairly common gossip, had never previously been released from any source as authoritative as a member of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy. The Senator himself described it as "top secret . . . the big secret that the scientists in America are so anxious to divulge to the whole scientific world."

"The scientists," said the Senator, a little harshly in our judgment, "all have a yen, like some old fisherwoman, to tell all we know." Of course, the scientists knew about atomic energy long before Senator Johnson had ever learned to distinguish a neutron from a neurosis, and no one ever found out about it from them by eavesdropping on a television program. The scientists, as we understand them, have merely been arguing that they ought to be allowed to talk with one another so that they can get on with their developmental work faster and more effectively and that the American people ought to be informed about matters that are not actually secret any longer so that they can act as responsible citizens in shaping their own national policies. Senator Johnson seems to be on their side. We think he ought to preach what he practices.

Looking Ahead

Barring the possibility that John L. Lewis may resume negotiations with the coal operators and call off the walkout scheduled for December 1, President Truman is committed to invocation of the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act whenever he decides that an emergency exists. It is our belief that John L. Lewis will welcome this intervention, for his miners have grown restive during the prolonged period of enforced strike idleness, preceded by short-time work. Mr. Lewis may well hesitate to risk rebellion in the ranks by ordering them to take another indefinitely long holiday. With the assurance that the President will at no distant date countermand Lewis' latest strike order, the miners doubtless will be amenable to instructions from their chief. And Mr. Lewis will be "sitting pretty" if they are enjoined from striking. For he can put money in the pockets of the miners by simply obeying the mandates of constituted authority and he will have the satisfaction of embarrassing the President.

So far as the public is concerned, the Taft-Hartley law appears to be a saver of health, if not life, and a timely protection against the menace of a coalless winter. However, the emergency provisions of the law merely provide a respite for shivering millions. There is no assurance that a settlement of the coal dispute would be achieved before expiration of the 80-day cooling-off period that would follow issuance of an injunction ordering the miners to return to work. To be sure, Mr. Lewis would be compelled to testify before the fact-finding board set up under the law on pain of incurring more fines if he refused to appear. But that board would have no power to make recommendations and the principals in the dispute would be under no compulsion to reach an agreement.

If Mr. Lewis remained obdurate and called out his miners again at the end of the 80-day period, the Administration would once more face the question of what to do. The only remaining weapon at the disposal of the President would be seizure of the mines as a desperate last-resort measure. Maybe that is Mr. Lewis' objective. For he has fared quite well in the past in negotiations with the Government, and it is obvious that he is fighting a losing battle against the adamant opposition of the coal companies. But seizure, too, would bring only a temporary respite from trouble and might lead to nationalization of the coal-mining industry—an outcome that the American people certainly would not welcome. Nevertheless, unless our labor laws are stiffened so as to provide for some form of compulsory settlement of disputes, nationalization of coal and basic industries will be the inevitable result of continued strikes threatening the national health and welfare.

Two-Sided Provocation

Those trigger-happy Americans who are demanding military action to bring about the release of Angus Ward, United States Consul General imprisoned in Mukden, would do well to note the speculation that Mr. Ward's arrest is a reprisal for the trial of Valentin A. Gubitchev in this country. It is a plausible assumption. Vindictiveness is one of the most common characteristics of any Communist regime. And neither the Russians nor their satellites are disposed to wait until a foreigner under their jurisdiction commits a crime if they wish to retaliate for the arrest of their nationals in other lands. They are all past masters at inventing charges to suit their own purposes. If they wished to strike back because of the arrest of Mr. Gubitchev, their most likely maneuver would be to have a satellite regime arrest several Americans on some trumped-up charge such as beating a Chinese worker.

To be sure, there is not much similarity between the Ward case and the Gubitchev case. Mr. Gubitchev is not in this country as a representative of Soviet Russia but as an employe of the United Nations. He was arrested on suspicion of conspiracy to steal secret documents for transmission to Russia, and we have no doubt that he will be given a fair trial on that charge. But the fact remains that Russia is in a position to retaliate for any punishment of one of her nationals in these circumstances, and it is naive to suppose that she will not do so, regardless of the guilt or innocence of the accused.

Of course, it would be easy to build up increasing tension through reprisals and counterreprisals until war would be inevitable. But the conscience of humanity cries out against it. If we are going to do our best to keep the cold war from getting out of hand, we shall have to avoid provocative incidents while upholding our rights. We shall have to seek amicable solutions instead of making idle threats, as the American Legion would have us do. In the Gubitchev case, for example, we can see nothing to be gained by punishing him as a spy if he should be found guilty. It would be sufficient to expel him from the United States, meanwhile working through the U. N. for some more satisfactory means of handling charges against U. N. employes.

It is not a question of kowtowing to Moscow or of abandoning any sound principle. Rather it is a question of strengthening our position before the world by not giving the Kremlin even the slightest excuse for retaliations similar to the arrest of Mr. Ward. The hot-tempered Americans who are advising another course ought to remind themselves daily that the causes to which their country is committed are those of peace and justice, not competition in provocation.

As FAO Meets

Hopes of many nations for improved standards of living are centered in Washington today as the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization begins its fifth annual conference. FAO has been perhaps the most active of the U. N. specialized agencies in providing technical advice, and its program touches directly a principal source of world tension—empty stomachs.

Of the three main considerations before the delegates from the 58 member nations, the most controversial is the proposal for an international commodity clearing house. This is the plan expounded by the FAO's Director-General Norris E. Dodd, whereby agricultural surpluses could be traded to needy nations either for payment in dollars at cut prices or for soft currencies which would be held as a credit until they were convertible.

Within the Administration, the clearing house proposal has had a decidedly tepid reception. Some of the objections have been rooted in the fear that the scheme would create many fiscal problems, that Congress would not appropriate the large capital required, that the additional debts which the plan would entail for importing countries would merely postpone the realization of currency convertibility. More than this there has been a feeling in the Department of Agriculture that for the most part, American surpluses are temporary. The real answer to hunger, the department feels, is an increase of food production in underdeveloped countries.

This last point is closely related to a second consideration to come before the FAO delegates—further participation in the U. N. program for technical assistance. The need for a great deal more of such assistance is emphasized by the growing disparity in living standards shown in the FAO's new world food survey. Technical assistance also is related to the third issue before the conference—where to locate the FAO's permanent headquarters. The choice is between Washington, the U. N. site in New York and various points in Europe. Much of the technical assistance envisaged must come from the United States. Thus, although there is some danger that the FAO may be submerged in Washington, there would be logic in locating its headquarters here because of the ready access to facilities of the Department of Agriculture.

If the United States, as the world's best-fed country, is to play its rightful part in FAO, there must be more than the negativism implicit in the "reserved" position of the American delegation. If the clearing house is not the answer to aggravating food surpluses, there is still need to come up with some plan to put them to useful purpose in meeting the widespread want. Furthermore, the biggest boost the technical assistance program could have would be a concrete proposal for vigorous action on Point IV.

U. N. And Point IV

Without a dissenting vote, the General Assembly of the United Nations has approved plans for providing technical assistance to undeveloped countries on a permanent and expanded basis. The implementation of President Truman's Point IV program (assuming Congress approves it) would be greatly facilitated by a survey of this kind. For it would not only enable the United States to fit its program into that of other nations, thereby avoiding duplication of effort, it would also give us access to the special knowledge and experience of the experts of other U. N. countries.

Exhaustive studies based on first-hand acquaintance with the economic, social and political conditions of backward countries is an indispensable preliminary to formulation of developmental programs adapted to their special needs. President Truman has emphasized the fact that the success of any plan to aid backward nations depends primarily upon their own efforts. They must provide most of the labor and materials needed to establish a basis for continuing economic development and future prosperity. Hence the chief objective of the U. N. and Point IV programs is to help people to help themselves by striking at the root causes of poverty: Ignorance of the technical processes that prevent efficient utilization of resources and the companion evils of malnutrition and disease that handicap workers.

The remedy for substandard conditions will not be found by pouring foreign capital into backward countries and forcing the pace of industrialization. Capital so employed might, indeed, result in an unbalanced development creating more problems than it solved. The remedy lies rather in sharing our knowledge of technical processes with backward peoples, showing them how to increase their industrial output and improve their agricultural methods, helping them to control infectious diseases and raise health standards. That kind of self-help program, which costs comparatively little, will provide a solid foundation for future expansion and will pave the way for entry of private capital to supplement inadequate domestic resources.

The technical aid program, therefore, merits the enthusiastic reception accorded it by United Nations delegates. Moreover, if the Point IV program is enacted, our efforts to improve the economic condition of the underprivileged of the world will be greatly furthered by joining hands with other members of the United Nations to formulate an over-all plan that is both politically feasible and adapted to the particular needs and circumstances of the aided.

28th Accident

Hugh D. Gravitt, driver of the car that ran down and killed the author of Gone With the Wind in the streets of Atlanta, had 26 prior charges of traffic violations chalked up against him by the police, including charges of speeding and driving while intoxicated. The twenty-seventh accident led last week to his conviction for involuntary manslaughter and a jail sentence of a year to 18 months. The next day Mr. Gravitt, still driving the fatal car, collided with a truck, and he and his wife were slightly injured. Since no charges were preferred against him, he may not have been to blame in this instance. But this twenty-eighth accident is only a postscript to a story of recklessness that emphasizes the need for sterner disciplinary action to protect the public from the menace of incompetent and drunken drivers and speed maniacs.

Georgia's highway patrol excuses its delay in revoking the Gravitt license by explaining that it was waiting for formal notification of conviction before taking action. That might be a valid reason, if the accident that cost Miss Mitchell her life had been the only black mark against the culprit. But it does not explain why a chronic violator of traffic regulations was not deprived of his driver's license long ago. Whether the blame lies in defective safety regulations or lax enforcement, the incident sharpens the responsibility of State and local officials to rid the public highways of drivers whose records show them to be a menace to life and property.

MANSIONS

They said he built it for his bride,
And they envied her the things inside.
The white leather studded doors,
The priceless rugs on parquet floors.
The crystal chandelier held high,
From frescoed ceiling cupped like the sky.
It had everything that gold could buy
But happiness had passed it by—
This, the house he built for his bride.
And they envied her the things inside.

This house stood in the other part of town,
This homey house worn rusty brown.
But from behind the shabby door
Children romped on the paint scarred floor.
The joyous bark of the dog was heard,
And the singing of the canary bird.
When the cloth was spread the eager brood
Offered thanks for the given food—
It stood in the other part of town,
This homey house worn rusty brown—
In my Father's house when life is done,
Are many mansions like this one.

War Trial Precedent

I note in your issue of the November 15 instant that in the current debate in regard to the Russian proposal of a "Big Five Peace Treaty" Delegate Vishinsky, the prosecutor in the 1937 Red purge trials, "charged that the United States and Britain were piling up weapons and plotting aggressive war against the Soviet Union." (Italics supplied.)

This declaration serves notice on both the United States and Britain that in the event war ensues and the Reds are victorious they will reenact the performances that took place at Nurenberg, one of which was to hold that the matter of who was the aggressor was not to be discussed, as the traversers were held, in advance, to be such. In other words, only a limited defense was permitted.

Now, the question is, where will those now engaged in policymaking "get off" if we, and the Lord forbid, be the losers in any war that may develop in connection with the settlement of the present problems in Europe? We helped set the principle that the victors can fix the terms on which trials of war offenders may be permitted to make defense. Doesn't it mean that we may be hoisted by the petard of our own making, or to be more specific, swung by the rope of our own making?

GEORGE W. WILLIAMS,
Washington.

Transit Compromise

In connection with the music in transit vehicles' controversy: Why not instruct the Capital Transit and radio station engineers to give us volume control which will enable the front of the vehicle to have no radio (as the operator is supposed to have none) and the rear of the vehicle to have radio (as in some cities smoking in the rear seats has been allowed)?

SAMUEL EARNSHAW,
Washington.

In regard to the transit radio fuss, there seem to be a few points which need to be cleared up before either side has the final say.

If the Capital Transit Co. pays for, and receives title to each and every streetcar and bus, why can it not put radios in them without some sandbrain putting up a squawk?

If the PUC does rule that transit radio is illegal, how could the public make the restaurants get rid of the jukeboxes?

Palestine Arabs

It is quite evident from Cora Goold's letter of November 16 where her sympathies are with respect to the Arabs.

I should like to remind her that each dunam of land owned by the Jews in Israel was bought and paid for. Secondly, those Arabs now in concentration camps were not pushed from their farms—but fled in panic in spite of being reassured that if they remained they would suffer none of the ignominies of war. The Jews of Israel urged their Arab neighbors to remain—but they deserted their homes.

Many of those Arabs in camps today are not Palestinian Arabs, but those who filtered in from the other Arab countries waiting for the inevitable outcome of the war—or so they thought. Now their parent nations cannot or will not take them back and have therefore put the onus of responsibility on the Jewish nation.

There is evidence today throughout Israel of compatible Arab-Jewish living, just as there was during British rule. The new democracy is attempting to take back as many displaced Palestinian Arabs as possible while at the same time attempting to feed, clothe aand house 70,000 of their own people who have been homeless for many years.

"Washington's Traffic"

Your excellent editorial of November 17 properly declares that no one change will settle all of Washington's traffic problems, but a series of sound reforms will at least serve to lessen the troubles.

One of the soundest plans would be to bar all parking, except during actual delivery of supplies, in the whole downtown area, say from K street to the Mall and 20th to 5th, sts. This was put into effect during the Shrine convention of several years ago and in times of other large gatherings here.

Of course, there would be immediate protests of some of those who would be directly inconvenienced, but their numbers would be insignificant as compared with the vast numbers favorably affected. Those living at real distances could drive in and continue to work by the buses, for, as you say, most of the present difficulty is the number of private cars that are now being used and are parked most of the day in the areas where the congestion is greatest.

Even business would profit, for housewives would find the plan suggested as an actual gain, as they would not be compelled to circle and circle in the hope of finding space for parking.

GI Education

Your November 13 issue carried a very significant story about the connection between higher education and the family's income. The story was a summary of a report issued by a subcommittee of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report, which stated in part: "Educational opportunity in the United States, at least beyond the grade-school level, still greatly depends upon the income status of the child's family."

It takes quite a bit of money to obtain a higher education these days. This being the case, you would suppose that the Federal Government would encourage the growth of the type of school where the student can get an education and work at the same time. I can report from first-hand experience, however, that the Government does everything possible to stifle this type of education.

I am a GI student at Benjamin Franklin University, a school of accountancy and financial administration. The Veterans' Administration gives me only one half of my subsistence. I am penalized because I did not attend a liberal arts school where, for the same business administration courses offered at Benjamin Franklin, the GI student gets full subsistence.

The Office of Education does not list Benjamin Franklin University in its booklets, so that the outsider gets the impression that Benjamin Franklin University is some sort of fly-by-night venture established for quick profits. All the officers of the D. C. Board of Accountancy are graduates of Benjamin Franklin. The school has been in existence for almost 50 years and last June had almost 2500 students.

A Plea For Amateur Football

The announcement by Coach Harvey Harman of Rutgers, that a great majority of football coaches are up in arms against the "platoon system" of unrestricted substitutions in regular games, comes with rejoicing and relief to untold numbers of university graduates who (like myself) have long resented the growing commercialization of this great collegiate game.

There is much more to be said against this unfair and unethical practice than merely that it is "hurting the smaller teams without the wealth of manpower and coaching personnel to make it work"—the main objection of coaches, as quoted in your issue of November 15. Certainly some consideration should be given to an element or factor beyond those of team or institutional supremacy, and the seemingly prime consideration of pleasing the crowds that pay the money. I refer to the "human element"—the individual players themselves.

The way I understood it—when on the campus over 30 years ago—the prime objective of football and all other collegiate sports was to develop the physique and stamina of young men, so that they would be better equipped to apply their mental talents to the benefit of society in later years. In other words, sports were not a thing in themselves, but merely an adjunct to the prime purpose of acquiring an education in some definite profession. How things (and practices) have changed! Now one would think that sports (especially football) comprised the "matriculation motive," and classroom study was merely an extracurricular activity. It's certainly time this abuse of "higher education" was corrected.

The greatest harm, from pitting half a dozen teams of huskies against one eleven and a comparatively few substitutes, stems from the physical strain inflicted upon the hapless students on the outnumbered squad. Not only is this practice unsportsmanlike and unfair, but it is inhumane and inconsiderate as to the welfare of the "underdogs," to put it mildly.

Many among us "neutral observers" in Babe Ruth Stadium at Baltimore recently were both disgusted and incensed as we watched team after team of fresh Notre Dame players pile on the tired and struggling—but hopelessly outnumbered—Navy boys, valiantly fighting to make a fair showing against a "national football institution." To be honest, I could not repress my innate satisfaction when the midshipmen occasionally treated some of their "professional opponents" to the same roughhouse practices which the South Bend boys used too regularly—such as four of five players piling on one opponent after he was downed.

Yes, it is time to return collegiate football to its proper place in the lives and activities of those on the campuses—and in the minds of the interested public. Let it once more become an expression of fair and sportsmanly competition on equitable and humane bases—with victory to the best team and acclaim to the proud alma mater. Above all, let's put an end to the sad state of affairs, whereby the reputations of some ambitious and highly paid coaching staffs, and the desires to finance bigger and better "bowls," take precedence over the future mental and physical well-being of the students in uniform. More American Disarmament

THE AMERICAN DISARMAMENT program entered a new stage last week, with the reduction of naval aviation by 35 squadrons. The bland announcement by the Defense Department emphasized the resulting economies. No mention was made of the more important fact, that wartime control of the Mediterranean has probably now been cast away.

This sacrifice upon the twin altars of business-as-usual and political expediency in turn involves another, even deeper issue, which the Defense Department also signally failed to discuss. Having cast away the chance to hold the Mediterranean, we may also have disastrously reduced the value of our strategic air arm. Since present defense planning allots so great a role to strategic air power, this surely might have been explained, at least in passing.

The effects of these latest economies are easily demonstrated. Although most people assume that the strategic air arm is entirely composed of "intercontinental" B-36s, 10 of the 14 strategic air groups are actually equipped with planes of much lesser range—modified B-29s and B-50s at present. In order to attack targets within the Russian land mass, these 10 strategic air groups must operate from overseas bases.

AS EVERYONE knows by now, B-29 and B-50 groups have been stationed at British bases ever since the peak moment of international tension, in 1947. Very few people understand, however, that these British bases meet only about one third of the total requirement. This is because only the most westerly of the Soviet industrial centers are within reasonable range from airfields in Britain.

Owing to the wartime and postwar transfers of Soviet industry, the more important target systems are now in the Urals and beyond the Urals. In order to reach and hit these distant vital centers, it is necessary to have bases in North Africa, the Middle East, and perhaps even northern India. Without such bases, the strategic air arm cannot do its assigned task, either now or in the future. For it must be understood that the already obsolescent B-29s and B-50s will be replaced with B-47 jet bombers of equal range, if our disarmament program allows them to be replaced at all.

The requirement for North African and Middle Eastern bases inevitably establishes a secondary requirement for wartime control of the Mediterranean. For if the Mediterranean is totally undefended, any bases in the Middle East or North Africa will obviously be untenable.

The bases we need are freely available. Our own Air Force is already using Tripoli and Dahran in Arabia. The British hold Cyrenaica. And it is understood on the best authority that the Egyptian government long ago intimated to Admiral Richard Conolly, commander in the Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean, that there would be no objection to the establishment of American air bases on Egyptain soil. In short, the only difficulty is to hold the needed bases, once they are secured and made ready.

FOR THIS PURPOSE, the late Secretary of Defense, James V. Forrestal, included the maintenance of 16 ready aircraft carriers in his plans, when he made his great effort in 1948 to persuade President Truman to give us real defense. The 16 carriers, it must be understood, were to be paid for within the total outlay of $16.9 billions, which Forrestal fruitlessly urged the President to approve.

Besides providing a minimum of carrier aviation for the Pacific, and allowing for vessels under repair, the Forrestal plans were to put eight carriers into the Mediterranean in time of war. With a force of eight carriers, it was considered possible to keep the Mediterranean open from Gibraltar to Suez, and to hold the African shore. But with the immensely reduced carrier force that will result from the economies of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, nothing of the sort will be conceivably possible.

It is tragic that Admiral Arthur W. Radford did not present his case against Secretary Johnson in these terms, instead of making a blunderbuss attack on the whole idea of a strategic air arm, and on the entire defense concept of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. No doubt the case has just been forcibly presented to Secretary Johnson by Admiral Forrest Sherman, who is actually proving the most effective advocate the Navy has had since the war. But presentations within the Defense Department do not remedy the inherent vice of the present situation.

This vice is that the security of the United States, and the safety of the free world, are being daily impaired; yet smart talk of economy is all the explanation we get. Surely we have, as a people, a sort of minimum right to know what is being done to us.

Ecclesiastical Law

In determining which should give way when ecclesiastical law meets civil law, doesn't the case turn on whether by "ecclesiastical law" one means the by-laws of a church, made by the church itself for its own members, or else the church's interpretation what God's laws, made by Him for all men, are and mean? A judge has no right to subject us to the former, no right to excuse us from or help us evade the latter.

Peacetime Uranium Needs Are Outlined

Lake Success, Nov. 20 (NYHT).—Four atomic piles, operating at perhaps 5000 kilowatts or less and using a total of 80 tons of natural uranium each year, could supply the world's present needs for peaceful atomic products, two former Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic engineers said today.

In a letter to United Nations General Assembly delegates, the engineers, Cuthbert Daniel and John L. Balderson, jr., both now in commercial work in New York, said such small plants would require 10 to 20 years each—even working at full capacity—to produce enough plutonium to make a single bomb.

An atomic control compromise, they said, might enable such plants to be operated safely by nations even under the period "Mondays and Thursdays" U. N. inspection proposed by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky—so long as U. N. checkups made sure the world's uranium and thorium wasn't being used anywhere else.

For Medicine

The only present peaceful use of atomic energy, they contended, is the production of radioactive materials for research and medicine.

The engineers' analysis, limited to the technical and early-year phases of the atomic problem, urged thorough U. N. study of Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo's recent appeal for "a short-term atomic armistice, accompanied by an adequate inspection system."

In their letter, the atomic engineers said the Oak Ridge national laboratory reactor, built in 1943 at a cost of 12 million dollars, is producing all the radio isotopes shipped by the United States Atomic Energy Commission for use at home and abroad—2644 orders last year, probably 4000 this year.

No Bomb Diversion

"Four such low-level reactors could produce all the radioistopes the world could possibly require in the next few years. Under no circumstances would it be possible to divert, them into A-bomb plants. They could be located anywhere in the world without constituting any military threat whatever," they said.

"Isotope piles—operating at perhaps 5000 kilowatts or less—could be checked on by an international force on Mondays and Thursdays and the world could still be safe from surprise atomic attack. Moreover, the isotope plants could safely be operated by national rather than international authorities.

"In sharp contrast to the vast and dangerous Haford-type installations, radioisotope plants make very moderate demands on the world's limited uranium resources. We estimate that about 20 tons of natural uranium per year would be needed in each such plant—80 tons a year for the whole world.

Extension Planned

Regional Study Plan May Grow

Biloxi, Miss., Nov. 20 (AP).—Extension of the 2-year-old Southern regional education plan into new fields was recommended today by four study commissions.

The commissions, named by the board of control for the program, outlined their recommendations to a group of 60 Southern educators serving in an advisory capacity.

The reports will go before the board Monday at a joint session with the Southern Governors Conference.

The regional program of education was sponsored by the Southern Governors to improve the social and economic level of the South. It calls for Southern colleges and universities pooling their resources to make their facilities available to all.

The commission made the following recommendations:

1. That the regional program be extended to social welfare in the same manner as the medical, dental and veterinary medicine programs are now operating.

2. That the board consider establishing an accredited course in forestery in a southern Negro institution.

3. That the various Southern States name their own commissions to study human and natural resources, with the board of control acting as a coordinating agency.

4. That other methods of collaboration be considered such as the 26-institution collaboration on nuclear studies, exchange of students in the same course of study and joint faculty members to serve several colleges.

The regional education program makes it possible for students wanting education not available in his State to get it in another State within the region without paying out-of-State fees.

Legislatures of 12 States have made available $1,526,000 for the program for the 1949-50 biennium. Of the 388 students enrolled, 181 are Negroes.

Grounded Officer Threatens to Kill Wife, Child, Self

Wichita, Kans., Nov. 20 (U.P.)—An Air Force officer, facing the loss of his commission, police said attempted to kill his wife and threatened to kill his 4-year-old daughter and himself last night.

Lieut. Arthur E. Chatham, 32, of Rural Hall, N. C., officer in charge of Air Force reserve flight training in this area, was talked out of his alleged plan by a detective and an Army officer friend.

Police said Chatham shot three times at his wife as she peered around the kitchen door into the living room where he sat with their daughter, Irene.

Mrs. Chatham told officers her husband received notification Saturday from Washington that he was being relieved from active duty as part of the Air Force's cutback program and was grounded, effective at once. He began drinking, she said, and his separation from the service preyed on his mind.

During the day, police said she from the service preyed on his told them, he suggested the "way out" was for him first to kill her, then Irene and then himself. From that time on, she said, he kept her in the kitchen and the little girl with him in the living room.

Disabled Ketch Asks Coast Guard For Escort Aide

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—The 60-foot ketch Tonga asked Coast Guard assistance today, reporting she was leaking badly 100 miles northeast of Cape Henry.

Tonight the Tongo radioed she had rigged new pumps and was in no emergency, but still desired an escort.

The ketch gave no information as to the number of persons aboard.

Coast Guard headquarters here dispatched the cutter Marion from Norfolk and a patrol vessel from Chincoteague to the Tonga's assistance.

Two Coast Guard planes, sent to the Tonga's position, were ordered back to their base, however, when the Tongo reported tonight she was in no emergency and was proceeding toward Cape Charles.

Women Can't Master Chess, Says Expert

The foremost female chess player in three States admitted yesterday that the game isn't for her sex.

She said it is "definitely anti-social" and one that requires the use of wits, "something women have never had to do."

She is Mrs. Mary D. Selensky, who has beaten the best of her sex in Delaware, New Jersey and in her home State of Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia Wins

She was in Washington yesterday as the nonplaying captain of the 20-man Mercantile Library Chess Association, which defeated the Divan Club in its headquarters, 2445 15th st. nw. The score was Philadelphia, 13½; Washington, 6½.

Rated No. 1 among the top 10 women chess players in the country, Mrs. Selensky was quite candid in her observations about the game.

"If Lana Turner were to walk in this room now," she said, "I doubt if more than a couple of the 40 chess players would realize it.

"Something like this is discouraging to a woman who likes to be considered for her attractiveness as well as her ability, and few women can stand the cold penetration of a seasoned chessman."

She said, too, that championship chess playing requires much time and study, which most modern women can't give. Mrs. Selensky learned from her late husband, she said.

As to the matches, Philadelphia took its first victory in three attempts. The games went according to regulation rules, which meant that at least 40 moves had to be made in the first two hours, and 20 moves for each hour after that.

Howard Head to Study Gandhi Peace Methods

Dr. W. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, plans to leave this week for India, where he will take part in a study of the methods of the late Mohandas K. Gandhi and the possibility of their wider use in achieving world peace.

Dr. Johnson said last night about 75 persons from all over the world will take part in the discussions, sponsored by former associates of the late Indian leader. They will be held during the first week in December at Bolpur, India.

One on the Aisle—

An Award Awaits Howard Travelers

By Richard L. Coe

A NATIONAL AWARD for "international public relations" will be presented by the American Public Relations Association to the Howard University Players on their return from Europe.

The Howard group has met with success the Oslo Arbeiderbladet describes as "beyond all expectations" in its tour of Scandinavia. It is now in Germany and will be home around the first of December.

Although both Howard and the State Department have carefully avoided exploiting any political angles of the group's tour over the same ground Paul Robeson covered so loudly last spring, the fact remains that this has been a gesture of the upper echelon. These young people and their three splendid faculty members have counteracted both extremes of overseas opinion about the American Negro, with apparently brilliant success.

Ironically, the impressed public relations group would like to present the Howard Players in a Washington theater on their return. President Truman is known to have been particularly interested in the Howard venture and, as Drew Pearson reported the other day, he and the First Lady were about to be invited to their "welcome home" performance in Washington.

The question became the old "Where?"

Spalding Hall, the Players' home on the university campus, is little more than a large room and would hardly afford space for such an event. In a few years, Howard expects its building program to afford a real theater, but ground's not even been broken yet.

An appeal will be made to President Cloyd Heck Marvin of George Washington University to open Lisner Auditorium to the group. Technically he always has left the door open for such a venture and one can imagine no more impressive gesture on the part of the college George Washington founded than to extend its hospitality to its sister university. Recent editorials in The Hatchet suggest that the university body would welcome such an invitation.

Reviews from the Norwegian press indicate a firm knowledge of the American theater scene on the part of the newspaper critics.

They appreciate, as the man in "Sjofartstidende" wrote, that "the rejuvenation of the living theater must come from the professional theater, from Broadway itself. But the amateur theaters can, through their activity of creating a theater milieu, make growth of the theater possible with infection love for good theater and enthusiasm for the art of speech and performance. The Howard plays have shown us a chapter of America's actual history."

Travelers' Reports Splendid

It is on this level that the Washington group was cheered in scores of performances throughout Scandinavia. It was observed that the interest of American universities in the drama was a new and stimulating aspect of our culture and one of which their audiences had had little previous knowledge.

Reports from Americans who've seen the group overseas, either Government officials or touring civilians, indicate that the trip, made possible by the generous donation of ANTA board member Blevins Davis, was a sure diplomatic triumph. The visitors frequently lodged in families' homes and their speech-making and sightseeing was covered and applauded everywhere they went. To those who believe that mutual respect on a cultural level can be a key to one world, this aspect of the Howard tour is indeed heartening.

It is for these reasons that the American Public Relations Association will be making its unique award next month.

CAA, CAB Differ On Crash Reports

By Commander

Instruments Blamed for B-29 Crash

(The following is the first eye-witness account of the crash-landing of the B-29 Superfortress in the Atlantic. It is told by the plane commander.—Editor's note.)

By Lieut. Col. John Grable, Jr.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 20 (U.P.). Due to faulty navigational equipment and radio compass, we got off our course.

We flew around hoping to find the island (Bermuda) beneath every cloud.

We got together all our stuff to prepare for ditching and got the wind direction and drift.

The ocean swells were 20 feet high.

We made a fairly lucky landing and stayed afloat for about 15 minutes.

During the landing the tail broke off and sank in about five minutes. Everybody got out of the plane and it was every man for himself.

If it had been a calmer day I feel we could have picked up all 20.

The largest life raft in the tail sank when the tail broke off, leaving us with only two rafts.

The hardest part was the crowded condition in the life rafts.

Nobody turned into an evangelist. But we were doing plenty of thinking and praying. I think we'll go to church the first thing we do.

What did we talk about? Well—"Will you please move over and give me some room?"—only we didn't say please.

NYHT News Service

An astonishing welter of seemingly contradictory Government actions in an air collision case which originated nearly three years ago came to light yesterday in the wake of the Eastern Air Lines-Bolivian P-38 fighter plane mid-air crash at National Airport November 1, with fatal results to all 55 occupants of the passenger craft. The paradoxes involved at least a clew to how long-drawn-out final official findings may be in the more recent accident.

On December 19, 1946, an Eastern Air Lines Douglas DC-4, collided in flight with a twin-engined Universal Air Lines Douglas DC-3 near Aberdeen, Md. Both craft subsequently landed without further mishap. But the legal aspects of their brush in the dark still remain unsettled.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, which investigated the accident, held in its published report on October 22, 1947, that the "probable cause" of the collision was "lack of vigilance on the part of the pilots of both aircraft." Long before this decision, however, the Civil Aeronautics Administration, which enforces the CAB's flying regulations, filed a complaint against the EAL pilot, holding he alone was legally at fault.

Under the law, such complaints have to be heard before the CAB and they came up initially on January 8, 1948, with both EAL and the Air Line Pilots Association opposing the CAA's charge. On May 26, 1948, the CAB, despite its accident report of the preceding October, held the EAL pilot, Capt. Joseph B. Kuhn, was guilty as charged and ordered his license suspended 40 days.

Exceptions were filed by Eastern and the ALPA and the CAB set a new date for a rehearing but confirmed its original findings on February 4 of this year. The usual motions for a stay and reconsideration were filed and granted but the CAB stuck to its guns and announced its "final decision" against Captain Kuhn on September 2. Counsel for Captain Kuhn gave notice of their intention to appeal the case to the United States Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia.

The CAB consented to this move on September 14 and the case is now pending in the Federal court with indications it will be shifted, with the CAB's consent, to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia for trial. Captain Kuhn, meanwhile, has gone right on flying for his airline.

As if these moves were not confusing enough to the average layman, Universal Air Lines, Inc., a non-certificated air carrier, sued Eastern Air Lines for $500,000 damages in the United States District Court here. It alleged, as had the CAA, that Captain Kuhn was at fault and that his DC-4 had run down the DC-3 which had been dispatched ahead of the bigger and faster plane over the New York-Washington airway. After an initial mistrial, the case finally was heard over a period of eight days by Judge Jennings Bailey and a jury.

The latter, disregarding Universal's claims, decided last June 24 that Eastern should be awarded $8500 damages. Counsel for the plaintiff immediately entered notice the decision would be taken to the United States Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia and the legal formalities to this end are still under way. In spite of all the decisions, neither Captain Kuhn nor Universal will know the final answers on the penalties assessed against them for a long time to come.

B-29 Survivor Not Bothered By Sunburn

Following is the story told by one of the B-29 survivors of their three days at sea in life rafts.—Editor's note.)

By S/Sergt. Manuel R. Oropeza

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—One thing about it, we didn't get sunburned.

The sun never shone from the time we hit the water.

I was braced between the top turret and a bulkhead when the crash came. The turret was smashed. The jagged edges cut the side of my shoulder and my head.

I was grabbing everything I could to get out of there. I cut my legs badly getting out. The salt made them mighty sore. One thing, though, it stopped the bleeding.

My Mae West inflated all right. But the tail part of the plane had broken off and it was coming toward me. It hit me and I dived under it.

I came up close to the life raft. But I couldn't go very well. My right hand was hurt. I swam with one hand the best way I could.

Neal (Corpl. Bryce W. Neal, 20, ground crew, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.) pulled me out and onto the raft. Then I just rested and started getting sick. One thing I was thankful for—I had insurance for my wife and two children back home in Globe, Ariz.

I didn't let myself feel that they wouldn't pick us up. I did a lot of praying.

the 900 block of 1st st. nw. around 2 p. m. Police listed the cab driver as Wayne E. Tollinger, 40, of 1303 Madison st. nw.

George W. Poore, 21, of 4011 Chesapeake st. nw., was admitted to Georgetown Hospital with multiple head cuts and bruises, suffered when his auto struck a pole on the Whitehurst Freeway near the 29th and K st. overpass around 5:30 a. m.

Mrs. Lula Pendleton, 30, of 1214 3d st. sw., suffered head cuts when she was struck by a cab driven by Willard Steinberg, 32, of 7224 16th ave., Takoma Park, at 3d and M sts. sw., at 2:15 a. m. She was admitted to Casualty Hospital, where she was reported in good condition.

Two persons suffered minor injuries when a taxicab collided with an automobile and overturned at Potomac and Kentucky aves. se. around 10:45 a. m. Arthur L. Kroll, 39, of 601 Raleigh pl. se., a passenger in the cab, was treated at Casualty Hospital for bruises. Mrs. L. M. Revis, 63, Clinton, Md., an occupant of the auto, was treated at Prince Georges County Hospital for chin cuts.

Police said the cab was driven by James S. Sollers, 47, of 600 20th st. nw. and the auto was operated by Calvin J. Yountz, 38, Clinton, Md. Both were uninjured.

Four Yearlings Die as Train Crashes Truck

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 20 (AP).—A freight train crashed into a van loaded with eight yearling horses here today, killing four of the animals. Four others were injured, and some of them may have to be destroyed.

The yearlings were all thoroughbreds, and were to be trained as race horses. They were purchased recently by Charles C. Cameron of Cumberland at the Keeneland sales division of the Breeders' Sales Association, Lexington, Ky.

The accident occurred at a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad crossing within 100 feet of Fairgo, the Cumberland race track which was the van's destination.

State police Lieut. William E. O'Hara said the low-slung trailer section of the tractor-trailer van caught on a slight rise in the road at the crossing, and the driver was unable to move either backward or forward. The trailer lodged about the same time a diesel-pulled freight train came thundering down the track.

B-29 Airmen Fight Waves With Prayer During 75-Hour Float on Small Rafts

ing it and the next thing I knew he was gone," said Harris.

Also lost was Pfc. Robert Dobson of Decatur, Ill., last seen, crewmen said, struggling to reach the life rafts as those aboard paddled desperately in the terrific seas to reach him.

The pilot was Lieut. Col. John Grable, jr., of March Air Base, Calif., who told his story:

"Due to navigation and radio equipment failure, we couldn't find Bermuda. We cruised around looking for the island between clouds but finally had to throw everything overboard and land in the huge swells. Both men who were lost got outside and had Mae Wests on. If it had been a calm day we certainly would have gotten to them. We lost one big life raft in the tail when it cracked off, and had to crowd nine men into one raft built for six.

"That was the worst thing. We were miserable from crowding but not thirsty, due to the constant rain and the use of salt-water purifier. The third day we spread out emergency rations and kept cranking the Gibson Girl distress wireless.

Raft Overturns Twice

"On two occasions one of the life rafts we had tied together was overturned by high seas but we managed to drag everyone back in. We knew they'd have lots of planes looking for us and we saw flares the second night. We never gave up hope, though, even if we did get rather discouraged. I think we're all going to church first, then celebrate a bit.

"Nobody turned evangelist but we did a lot of thinking."

Grable said the men threw their GI shoes overboard on the second night because salt-water sores were swelling their feet.

Sergt. William Johnson of Beverly Hills, Calif., bearded like his companions, lay in his hospital bed here and told reporters that "on the last day on that raft the boys were settling down to some real serious praying."

He added that "the praying was not only orally, either, but inside, too."

Sergt. Charles Cox, Riverside, Calif., stretched his legs under the cool hospital sheets, clutching a glass of milk in one hand and a glass of orange juice in the other.

"The worst deal of all," he said, "was to see those planes come over and then fly away."

B-17 Spotters Praised

Cox and others praised the crew of the B-17 that dropped the 28-foot plywood lifeboat within 100 feet of the two rafts.

The men helped each other into the boat but hardly had time to unpack rations before the Canadian destroyer Haida, which brought them into Bermuda today, hove into view.

Lieut. Commander Edward T. G. Madgwick of Ottawa, skipper of the destroyer, told how his ship found the tiny life rafts in the treacherous seas, ending what has generally been regarded as the biggest Atlantic Ocean rescue search. It involved a thousand men, including Canadians and Air Force and Navy planes from two American bases in Bermuda.

Madgwick said: "We were part of a task group, including the Canadian carrier Magnificent and the frigate Swansea, en route to Charleston, S. C., when we were told to enter the search Saturday morning. Firefly fighters took off from the carrier to enter the search although waves were breaking over the flight deck of the 18,000-ton vessel.

"Then we saw a B-17 orbiting and figured they were over the life rafts. We turned on full speed and saw smoke from floats set out by the men when about a mile away. We spotted two yellow rafts and finally one big boat with all 18 aboard.

Whaleboat Launched

"We launched our whaleboat, which was able to come alongside the other boat although the waves were running 50 to 60 feet high, and managed to get all 18 men into our boat. This was about 2:45 p. m. Saturday, Eastern time.

"The men were so exhausted they could barely speak. We were able to get a medical officer from the carrier aboard our ship and he treated them for shock. By noon today all but four could eat lunch at the ship's table.

"Most of them had suffered only superficial lacerations and salt water burns."

Just about the time the men were safely aboard the Canadian destroyer, the sea began to calm and the skies to clear, the officer said.

As the Haida hove into St. Georges Harbor just before two this afternoon with the carrier standing outside the harbor, the Canadian crew stood alongside the rail as four men were carried on stretchers to the rescue whaleboat taking them dockside.

Feel Perky Ashore

After a wash and a whack at milk, coffee, orange juice and soft drinks, virtually all the rescued men were feeling perky. The chief complaint was the cramped quarters on the rafts.

Said Sergeant Cox: "It was impossible to sit without putting your feet in someone's face. We tried to get under tarpaulin to keep off the rain but it was too crowded. One night we rigged a sail and tried to paddle but soon gave that idea up."

For the Canadians who rescued them, the 18 had the highest praise.

B-29 Log Lists Story of Crash

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 20 (AP). Here is a log of the U. S. Air Force B-29 from the time it first reported trouble Wednesday morning until rescue of 18 survivors yesterday.

7:07 a. m. (local time), Wednesday—Pilot reports to Kindley Field, Bermuda, his radio compass is out of order and asks for bearing.

8:40 a. m.—Informs field he has only 2 hours' fuel left at maximum cruising-range speed.

9:30 a. m.—Reports ditching surplus equipment.

11:45 a. m.—Says he is lost, altitude about 900 feet, radio equipment out of order, weather prevents reading on position, and he is "going to ditch" in 5 minutes.

6:45 p. m., Thursday—Search plane spots two red flares in ocean 240 miles northeast of Bermuda. Another plane reports hearing faint radio signals from exact area of flares.

9:28 a. m. Friday—Search plane picks up call signals on radio while about 290 miles northeast of Bermuda.

11:19 a. m.—Searcher sees floating debris and hears SOS.

11:30 a. m.—Yellow debris sighted. Additional debris reported 11:47 a. m., 12:09 p. m.

2:31 p. m.—Search pilot reports seeing what he believes piece of aluminum and other wreckage. No signs of life. All spotted 40 miles southwest of where red flares were seen.

3:10 p. m. Saturday—Air Force B-17 sights two life rafts with survivors 250 miles northeast of Burmuda. Pilot drops airborne lifeboat near rafts.

4:38 p. m.—Canadian destroyer Haida reports it has picked up 18 survivors from rafts.

Salonika Transmitter To Boost 'Voice's' Power

By The Associated Press

A new radio transmitter now nearing completion at Salonika, Greece, soon will enable the Voice of America to speak with greater volume behind the Iron Curtain, the State Department announced yesterday.

The transmitter will be operated jointly by the United States and Greek governments. It is expected to start by early next year.

The "Voice" will use it during the evening to relay American official broadcasts to Communist Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania, and also to Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia.

Another Group Hospital

Washington Sanitarium and Hospital, Takoma Park, has become the twenty-first hospital in greater Washington to offer benefits under Group Hospitalization, Inc., Joseph H. Himes, GHI president, announced yesterday.

Unions' Employes Seeking Pensions

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

It's not only management which is feeling the pinch of employe demand for pensions and social insurance.

The unions are getting the same kind of pressure from their own employes.

Fact is, it's not only the employers who at times have labor difficulties. Unions sometimes run into the same problems.

For example Joseph Curran, the powerfully built, powerful-voiced president of the CIO National Maritime Union, last week fired a dozen or so "port policemen"—union dues collectors—and the next thing you knew, the headquarters became the scene of a Donnybrook because the discharged union officials protested rather vehemently that the action was unfair and illegal.

Union politics—especially fierce and bitter in these days of Right versus Left, anticommunism versus procommunism—leaves little possibility of job stability within the union itself.

Many unions—despite their own campaigns to win job security for their members within the particular industry—offer little or no job security to their own employes.

Little Real Bargaining

Many unions simply try to overlook the matter of collective bargaining with their own employes; and even where there are locals representing the administrative and clerical workers of a union, there is as a rule little genuine collective bargaining.

On one occasion, the waiters at the vacation camp operated for its membership by the AFL International Ladies Garment Workers struck for higher wages. According to union folklore, ILGWU President Dave Dubinsky was more hungry than angry when he acceded to the strikers' demands. Such strikes by union employes, however, have been extremely rare.

The ILGWU has what is probably one of the best welfare programs for union employes. It has a contributory pension system for officers and employes, with the international union contributing 2½ percent of the payroll into a retirement fund; the local putting up 7½ percent; and the officers and employes putting in 5 percent. Twenty-five years of service at the voluntary retirement age of 60 or the compulsory retirement age of 65 will bring a pension equal to 50 percent of the employe's salary.

Social Insurance Provided

The Garment Workers Union also provides and bears the entire cost of a social insurance program; and even pays the employes' share of employer-employe contribution to Federal Social Security. Clerical employes of the union belong to the AFL Office Workers.

The Congress of Industrial Organizations, which made management-financed pensions its major demand of the recent fourth round of postwar contract improvements, instituted a noncontributory retirement plan for its own employes some three years ago.

The CIO adds 6 percent to each employe's salary and converts the money into savings bonds. Employes who quit or are discharged receive the bonds upon severance from the organization. Otherwise, the money, invested and reinvested in bonds, becomes available upon retirement at the age of 65. A special fund has been set aside for the "old-timers," so as to permit them to retire on $100 a month, including Social Security. The employes finance their own group health and hospitalization programs.

Guild Represents CIO News

CIO administrative and clerical workers belong to a right-wing local of the left-wing United Professional and Office Workers. The editorial staff of the CIO News is represented by the Washington local of the American Newspaper Guild.

The American Federation of Labor has a free social insurance program for its employes, but a joint contribution pension plan. The AFL matches employe contributions of 2¾ percent of annual salary up to $3000, and 5½ percent on earnings of the next $4000. AFL office employes are members of the AFL Office Workers.

The AFL International Typographical Union, which is seeking pensions from the publishers and printing houses, rejected in a recent referendum a pension program for the union's own employes. The issue was not clear cut, since there was also involved the political issue of pensions for elected international officers.

Machinists Bargain With CIO

The International Association of Machinists, although an unaffiliated union, collectively bargains with the AFL Office Workers, representing its clerical and administrative employes. The Grand Lodge—international staff—provides pensions for its employes who have served at least 15 years. Pensions for the union staffer are on a contributory basis, 6 percent of salary by employes and by union, and are administered by the Railroad Retirement Board.

Other we-work-on-the-railroad unions also take advantage of the Railroad Retirement Act to provide retirement protection for its employes as well as for its members. The IAM provides no social insurance for its employes.

CIO Local Industrial Union 1670 recently won $4 a week wage increase for the office staff of the CIO Communication Workers of America. The local plans to negotiate for a pension program. CWA pays for a group hospitalization plan for its employes.

The United Mine Workers maintain an optional contributory pension plan, run for the union and its employes by a private insurance company. UMW employes pay for their own social insurance program.

Georgetown U. Host to Conference

Georgetown University will be host this week to delegates from 100 colleges meeting Friday and Saturday in the annual Middle Atlantic regional conference of the American Association of International Relations Clubs.

The meeting will close with a reception at the British Embassy, following round-table discussions on world problems and addresses by prominent persons in the field of international relations.

Dr. Howard E. Wilson, of the Carnegie Endowment for Peace will speak Friday morning after a greeting by the Very Rev. Hunter J. Guthrie, S. J., president of Georgetown University.

Others to be heard during the sessions will be Dr. Alberto Lleras, Secretary-General of the Pan-American Union, and John Martin Gates, State Department.

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

A number of boys and girls in the neighborhood have started a drive for old toys. They plan to collect and repair the toys, then send them to needy children overseas.

I think the spirit of sharing is a wonderful thing among youngsters—and grown-ups, too. It's this same spirit that prompts neighbors to share rides, or lawn mowers, or telephone party lines.

Party lines are a good example of how sharing can pay dividends. When we use our party lines with courtesy and consideration for "the other fellow," we can be pretty sure he'll do the same for us. By not interrupting when the line is being used, except in an emergency . . . by allowing a little time between calls so that others have a chance to use the line, we're really helping ourselves as well as our neighbors to better telephone service.

Shah Likens Iran's Plan To Fair Deal

New York, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—His Imperial Majesty, the Shah of Iran, came to town today. He was met by Grover Whalen, a brass band, and a company of bobby-soxers.

Three private railroad cars brought the Shah and his party—and 140 trunks—from Washington, where he had been the guest of President and Mrs. Truman.

A police escort whisked the Shah from Pennsylvania Station to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where he held a press conference. He came out strongly for peace and the United Nations, and things were a bit dull until somebody asked him about Iran's seven-year plan.

The plan, he said, was something like President Truman's Fair Deal program, only more so.

"Because your social and economic conditions are better than ours, I have to go a little further, and use a little more drastic measures," he said.

The "drastic measures," he said, were for use against big landholders in order to bring about the "necessary reforms on the agrarian side." He said he wanted big estates broken up, agricultural cooperatives set up, and modern farm machinery introduced.

The plan envisioned purchase of large estates by the government and reselling the land in smaller parcels to the peasants, he said.

To a reporter who asked if this didn't smack of communism, the Shah replied gravely, "I think it a very consirvative form of transaction."

Asked if he intended to introduce socialized medicine, His Majesty replied:

"That is a wonderful prospect to imagine and wish. We will do out best but it will take a long time."

Tonight the Shah was entertained at a Waldorf reception by Nazrollah Entazam, Iran's U. N. delegate. Monday he goes to City Hall for an official reception and then to the United Nations, where he will address the Assembly.

Princess Arrives in Malta

Valletta, Malta, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Princess Elizabeth arrived at this strategic British base late today, in time to spend the evening of her second wedding anniversary with her husband, Prince Philip.

The elder daughter of King George VI was greeted at the airport by a group of officials headed by Philip, here on naval duty, and Rear Admiral Earl Mountbatten, Philip's cousin and commanding officer.

Before leaving London, Elizabeth confided her year-old son, Prince Charles, to the care of a nurse.

Philip, whose ship—the Destroyer Chequers—is now laid up in drydock, will stay with Elizabeth and the Mountbattens during her visit.

The princess expects to return to England in time to join the royal family for Christmas at Sandringham, the King's country home in Norfolk.

Desertions Reported From Franco's Falange

Madrid, Nov. 20 (AP).—The newspaper Arriba said today a number of high officials have deserted the Falange, Spain's totalitarian state party.

Arriba, the Falange organ, in a front page editorial on the occasion of the thirteenth anniversary of the death of the party's founder, Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera, who was shot during the civil war, did not name the "deserters."

British Role In European Revival Seen

London, Nov. 20 (AP).—Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, today declared "there certainly is nothing in Britain's position in the sterling area to prevent us from playing a full part in the economic integration of western Europe."

Speaking on a British Broadcasting Corporation European service program, Sir Stafford added:

"The United Kingdom is ready and able to go along with other countries of western Europe in tackling the economic problems which lie to hand so as to build up the expanding economy of western Europe.

"This is the fundamental objective of all of us—wide markets, increasing production, full employment for our peoples."

Through Britain, he continued, European nations will have a "link with the sterling area, to which of course we must preserve our responsibilities. In this way we can give western Europe many benefits of wide multilateral trade that we have developed and preserved at great cost within the sterling area."

Three weeks ago in Paris, Sir Stafford took issue with proposals by Marshall Plan chief Paul Hoffman for the integration of Europe. He declared then that Britain "could not integrate our economy into that of Europe in any way that would prejudice" British responsibilities toward the sterling bloc.

'Murder Mystery' Is Product of Woman's Purse

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 20 (AP).—"I'll never live to get back to Evansville," said a note found on a road near Worthington, Ind.

It started State police on a search for Mrs. Allane Griffith of Evansville, whose name was found on another scrap of paper nearby.

But the search ended when Mrs. Griffith was awakened at her home by officers early today.

She explained she had written the note to a friend at a convention at Indianapolis when it ran past lunch time and she was becoming famished.

Then, motoring home, she had decided to clean out her purse along the highway.

Over-the-weather flying gives you greater year-round dependability on United's DC-6 Mainliner 300s

Perhaps you've already had the experience of taking off in a United Mainliner on a rainy day—and suddenly emerging into clear sunshine a few minutes later! The 4 powerful engines of your DC-6 Mainliner 300 have carried you swiftly upward, thousands of feet above the weather. Sunshine is seldom more than 15 minutes away.

Because of its pressurized cabin which affords low altitude comfort, United's DC-6 Mainliner 300 can fly at 16,000 feet or higher where the air is nearly always clear and smooth. This is one reason why United's schedules are now so much more dependable.

No transportation system—surface, sea or air—has ever achieved 100% on-time performance, but United's on-time dependability has increased steadily. During the past year alone, United's on-schedule dependability increased 33%.

United flies the route where weather is best—To utilize the long range of the DC-6 Mainliner 300, United uses systems of multiple airways. From a wide choice of such routes, one or more will usually be open and your pilot and dispatcher pick the route that's best. Your United pilot navigates accordingly and keeps you informed during your flight, using the plane's public address system.

United uses the newest electronic aids Radio range stations provide a network of beams which mark every airway. No matter which route is chosen, your Mainliner is always precision-flown. And new electronic aids—including the Instrument Landing System and Precision Beam Radar—permit Mainliners to land on schedule under conditions of visibility that formerly "closed in" airports. ILS, illustrated at left, provides an electronic "highway" descending gently from the sky to the runway.

United's Operations Control Center monitors your flight—At Denver, the progress of all flights over United's 10,700-mile system is monitored. Weather reports, not only from ground stations all over the country, but from planes in flight as well, provide an accurate, up-to-the-minute picture of flying conditions everywhere.

United's experience—United has flown more than 12 million passengers over 6 billion passenger-miles. From this background come seasoned, highly trained men and women—including veteran pilots who have been flying for years under all conditions. These are the all-important people who make the system work!

WHAT DOES IT ALL MEAN TO YOU? JUST THIS:

Year-round air travel is here. No longer need you forego the speed and economy of flying because weather "looks bad" to you. Now you can FLY UNITED, with a new assurance of comfortable, dependable travel the year around. For reservations call United or an authorized travel agent.

Redskins' Rally Falls Short, Bears Win, 31 to 21

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

GRIFFITH STADIUM, NOV. 20.—Mr. George Halas, who owns and operates the Bears, figuratively thumbs his nose at the Redskins in the kick-off preliminaries. As his cocaptains for the day, the impish Halas sends out Fred Davis and Paul Stenn, a couple of Redskin cast-offs, to witness the coin toss.

POVICH

There are wide open spaces in the stands, and perhaps the Bears are fading as a gate attraction. Or maybe it is the Redskins who are losing their customer appeal. Or maybe it's that $3.60 minimum in these days of the new economy. Anyway, only 30,148 were pre-ent.

Well, it's not going to be 73-0, Bears, because it's 7-0 Redskins after three minutes of the opening quarter. They just scored a touchdown on a pass that Johnny Lujack couldn't get away. Tereshinski knocked Lujack loose from the ball and Herb Shoener picked it up on the Bears' 33. Shoener had nobody in front of him, and the wind with him.

Lujack completes a pass to Kavanaugh deep in Redskin territory, and Bob Goode jumps on Kavanaugh's neck. The head linesman calls it piling on, but the referee calls it no play because the Bears were in motion. If it was no play, Kavanaugh must have dreamed up that headache he's got.

TOUCHDOWN, BEARS. In the best Boone tradition, J. R. Boone outwits the Redskins, takes a pass from Lujack, gives Demao the slip on the Redskins' 20, backtracks away from Dowda on the Redskins' 10, and bivouacs in the end zone.

10-7, Bears. They just sent in their field goal platoon, with Blanda kicking and McAfee holding from the 15-yard line. They had a first down on the Redskins' 7-yard line, but after three Lujack passes found no receivers the Bears submitted their three-point plan.

Dick Poillon moves into the game on fourth down to punt for the Redskins, and winds up playing safety man. Boone took the kick 37 yards to the Redskins' 44 before he was hauled down by Poillon, who represented the Redskins' last line of defense.

17-7, BEARS. Jim Keane dropped a pass from Lujack on the goal line, so on the next play they tried it all over again, and Keane didn't drop Lujack's pass. The play covered 26 yards, and the Redskins can't say they are being nibbled to death.

Sammy Baugh is in the game for the Redskins finally, and comes up with what amounts to a trick play. On third down, Baugh takes off on a line plunge against the astounded Bears and makes a first down.

24-7, BEARS. Johnny Lujack fades back to his 5-yard line to pass and heaves the ball 55 yards to Ken Kavanaugh who is in his solitude on the Redskins' 45-yard line. Three Redskins catch up with Kavanaugh and then bite the dust, and it's an 81-yard touchdown play 44 seconds before the half ends.

For Redskin fans the doleful fact is that except for their touchdown play on Lujack's fumble, the Redskins didn't come within 50 yards of another score during the first half.

Real live, performing, tight-roping Bears comprise the half time show, but the Redskin producers missed a bet when they didn't bring in the visiting Shah for what could have been an Iran-man stunt.

31-7, BEARS. The second half has started. Sid Luckman came out of retirement, disengaged his throwing arm from his beard, and pitched the ball to Keane who was standing on the goal line 17 yards away and unattended.

The Redskins make their deepest penetration since scoring their opening touchdown. Sammy Baugh completes two passes, and Tommy Mont reaches the Redskins' 40, after shaking off two Bears and four photographers on a dash around right end.

A bit later the Bears get the ball and are forced to kick. Blanda boots the thing to the 50-yard stripe and it takes a queer bounce back to the Bears' 42 before rolling outside. It was one of the Redskins' best punt returns of the season.

OF ALL THINGS, the Redskins are now operating with three quarterbacks, Sammy Baugh, Harry Gilmer and Tommy Mont, in the same backfield. That's as sensational as Truman, Dewey and Browder running on the same ticket.

And that backfield is doing all right, too. Baugh just pitched one 30 yards into the end zone, and the Bears' lead is pared to 31-14, with Mont making the catch.

And you can say that all over again, because Baugh and Mont just did it all over again, this time for 26 yards, and the Redskins have pulled up to 31-21. The Redskins aren't winning, but at last they're getting exciting.

Rams Score Twice in 4th Period, Tie Cards, 28-28

By Charles Chamberlain

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Los Angeles Rams turned a recovered fumble and a stolen pass into a pair of final-quarter touchdowns and then failed on an 11-yard, last-play field goal to deadlock the Chicago Cardinals, 28-28, in a National Football League thriller today.

It was the Rams' second tie of the season (they battled Pittsburgh 7-7 earlier) and kept them one game ahead of the Chicago Bears in the Western Division title scramble.

The Cardinals' hero for a Comiskey Park crowd of 34,100 fans who huddled in freezing temperatures was Rookie Tom Wham, 210-pound end from Furman.

Wham Blocks Kick

After Tom Kalmanir scampered 51 yards in the last seconds to the Cardinal 28 and Bob Waterfield passed to Tom Fears for 24, there was only time for one play.

Waterfield, the kicking specialist, tried a field goal from the 11 and Wham popped through the Ram line to block it as the game ended.

The Cardinals took a 7-0 first-quarter lead. They marched 80 yards on eight plays and broke Elmer Angsman over to score from the 6. Pat Harder booted the first of his four extra points.

The Rams tallied twice in less than three minutes in the second period for a 14-7 edge. Gil Bouley filched Jim Hardy's pass to set up one thrust on the Cardinal 36. Dick Hoerner and a 19-yard gallop were sufficient. Then Don Currivan stole another Hardy aerial to reach the Card 30. Waterfield eventually shoveled a 13-yard payoff pass to Fears.

But in the last minutes the Cards knotted it 14-14 on a 77-yard parade topped by Hardy's 8-yard toss to Mal Kutner.

Rams Knot Count

Bob Nussbaumer stole two Waterfield passes in the third. That started a pair of Cardinal cou — which gave the home club a 28-14 margin. Hardy, a former Ram, tossed 6-yards to Charlie Trippi for one. Hardy sneaked over from the 4 for the other, after Nussbaumer ran back an interception 29 yards.

On the last play of the third, Frank Hubbell recovered Elmer Angsman's fumble on the Ram 40. From there Norm Van Brocklin from Oregon took charge of a 60-yard Ram surge. Hoerner's 3-yard scoring burst climaxed the drive.

The Rams' tying touchdown midway in the last period was nearly a gift. Hardy, on first down in his own end zone, elected to try to pass. George Sims intercepted it on the 12 and raced across.

Before the game ended, the Cards speared to the Rams' 28, and Harder attempted a field goal which was deflected by Fred Naumitz. Then came Waterfield's try, which Wham broke up.

Los Angeles outrushed the Cards 187 yards to 169 and overwhelmed them through the air with 278 yards to 89.

BEAR HANDS—Ken Kavanaugh, Chicago Bears end, leaps high into the Griffith Stadium air to haul down a 12-yard pass from Johnny Lujack against the Redskins yesterday. Kavanaugh later caught a touchdown pass from the same Mr. Lujack. That's Harry Dowda of the Redskins tackling Kavanaugh with Bob Goode, also of the Redskins, coming over to help out. The Bears ran up a quick 24-7 lead, then let up a bit, but won handily, 31-21

Lujack Hurls 3 Scores; Baugh Hits Mont for 2

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The quarterbacks stole the show yesterday as the Chicago Bears, to the amazement of nobody, ground out a 31-21 decision over the Redskins before 30,148 observers at Griffith Stadium.

Johnny Lujack pitched enough touchdown passes and kicked enough extra points—three of one and four of the other—to outdo the Redskins in the scoring department.

George Blanda booted the 15-yard field goal that gave the Bears their first lead.

Sammy Baugh got off two scoring passes for Washington in a futile last-period effort to overcome a 31-7 deficit.

And Tommy Mont caught both of Baugh's payoff tosses.

It was the first Washington showing of Lujack, Notre Dame's All-America of 1946 and 1947, and he made it a gala one. The Bear sophomore completed 13 of his 31 aerials and rolled up 286 yards for the forces of George Halas. But the loudest cheering was for Mont, overlooked third-string quarback of the Redskins, who finally got a chance to sparkle and made the most of it.

Next to the quarterbacks, the ends were most in evidence as the Bears remained in the race for Western division honors in the National Football League and the Redskins dropped still further out of competition in the East. It was their fifth setback against three victories and a tie.

Alert Shoener Scores

First, there was Joe Tereshinski, rough-house tackler of the Redskins, who smeared Lujack on the Bears' seventh offensive play of the game, causing him to fumble.

Then there was Herb Shoener who picked up the fumble and raced 33 yards for the touchdown that led to a 7-0 lead for Washington at 3:07 of the first period.

Finally and unfortunately for the Redskins, there were such Bear wingmen as Jim Keane and Ken Kavanaugh. Keane caught two of the winners' 6-point passes, Kavanaugh the longest on an 81-yard play.

Completing the scoring were a couple of "outsiders"—neither quarterbacks nor ends. Halfback J. R. Boone was the whirling dervish who grabbed Lujack's first touchdown toss. Dick Poillon, the Redskins' combination halfback and fullback, had just three chances at extra points and clicked on all of 'em.

Cumberland Honors Ball

The afternoon's show started with Cumberland, Md., rooters for Herman Ball, who used to coach at Cumberland's Alleghany High, presenting gifts to the new Redskin head coach and his former start at Alleghaney, Mont.

A few minutes later the Redskins were leading Chicago's big, bad bears for the first time since 1946. Lujack had whipped the Chicagoans from their own 24 to the 45 with the opening kickoff before Tereshinski barged into the advance.

The big Georgian, later helped from the field with a redamaged

Virginia Star Killed in Car Crash

GENE EDMONDS
... Va. Halfback killed

Special to The Washington Post

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—Gene Edmonds, University of Virginia halfback, was fatally injured early today when an automobile he was driving went over a small embankment.

Attendants at a hospital here said he died of a broken neck.

The 25-year-old senior, Marine veteran and father of a 1½-year-old daughter, scored Virginia's second touchdown in yesterday's game which Tulane won, 28-14. A regular halfback, he was completing his fourth year on the varsity.

Police said the accident occurred on Stadium road, about ¼ mile from Virginia's football stadium, at about 2:30 a. m.,

Another occupant of the car, Willard L. Wade, jr., of Clifton Forge, Va., was not injured.

According to reports, the jar of the car going over the embankment forced open a door and Edmonds fell out. He was partially pinned beneath the car, which was only slightly damaged.

University officials reported that friends who had been with Edmonds during the evening and immediately before he left his home said Gene had not been drinking.

Funeral services will be in Hampton, Va., Edmonds' home, Tuesday.

Virginia Head Coach Art Guepe and football Capt. Johnny Thomas, of Charleston, W. Va., will go to Hampton for the rites.

Guepe, visibly distressed by Edmonds' death, said "it is the saddest thing that has happened during my coaching experience."

He married Miss Virginia Lee Potter, of Newport News, in 1943. Mrs. Edmonds is employed here at the present time as a secretary in the office of Norton G. Pritchett, the university's director of athletics.

Lakers Swamp Olympians, Set Mark, 121-95

Minneapolis, Nov. 20 (AP).—Cracking professional basketball's all-time scoring record, the Minneapolis Lakers romped to a 121-95 National Basketball Association victory over Indianapolis Olympious here tonight.

George Mikan with 29 points led the Lakers to a rout that at one time amounted to a 33-point margin. The Lakers scored a record-breaking 60 points in the first half, leading 60 to 44. When they wound up the Lakers had crashed the all-time mark of 118 points set last season by Anderson in a January 17 victory over Denver in the old National Basketball League.

The Lakers got only token opposition from the former Kentucky All-Americans after the half, although Ralph Beard totaled 24 points and Alex Groza 21.

All 11 Lakers got into the game, 10 of them into the scoring column. Jim Pollard counted 22 points for the Lakers. A crowd of 7762 saw the encounter.

Graham's Passes Beat Yankees, 31-0

By Harold Claassen

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Otto Graham's passes brought Cleveland a 31-to-0 verdict over the New York Yankees today and gave the Browns their fourth straight All-America Football Conference title.

The triumph was the eighth for the Browns compared with one defeat and two ties. In the first three years of the A-A, the Browns won their title by winning the East-West playoffs. This year the circuit is not divided.

While it was Graham's passing and generalship that brought the Browns another title, he was aided by a pair of outstanding ends in Mac Speedie, who set a loop record by catching 11 passes, and John Yonakor, a defensive whirlwind.

The crowd of 48,009 saw Graham pass to only one actual touchdown—the first. But each of the four Brown touchdowns and the just-for-fun 30-yard field goal by Lou Groza were set up by his lengthy aerials.

In all, Graham threw 34 passes that gained 382 yards. Nineteen tosses reached their mark. Speedie caught passes for 228 yards, another loop mark.

The Browns got their first touchdown after seven plays that covered 75 yards, all but nine in the air. The payoff was a 24-yard Graham flip to Bill Boedecker.

The second came less than three minutes later and was scored on the ground on a 1-yard blast by Dub Jones.

The Browns got their final two touchdowns in the second quarter, Jones going over from the 1-yard line for his second and Marion Motley scoring from the 2 for the last. A 21-yard Graham pass set up the Jones tally while a 49-yard flip to Speedie made the second possible.

The Yankees got to the Brown 1-yard line twice in the third period and were only inches from tallies twice in the fourth.

Van Buren Paces Eagles' Rout Of N. Y. Bulldogs by 42-0

By Ralph Bernstein

Philadelphia, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Philadelphia Eagles treated 22,165 fans to a brilliant exhibition of high-powered offensive and defensive football today as the National Football League champions pulverized New York's hapless Bulldogs, 42 to 0, at Shibe Park.

The NFL's leading offensive and defensive combination had a "statistical party" in romping as they pleased to six touchdowns, each augmented by automatic Cliff Patton's extra-point toe. Dynamic Steve Van Buren led the way to Philadelphia's eighth win in nine league outings and another vital step toward the club's third consecutive Eastern Division title.

Here is how the Eagles did it:

1. Van Buren climaxed an 80-yard first period drive by smashing over from the one.

2. Clyde Scott, who later suffered a separated shoulder and will be out for at least three weeks, streaked around left end and sidestepped would-be tacklers for 15 yards and a six pointer 34 seconds into the second period.

3. After Russ Craft recovered a Bulldog fumble on the New York 24, Van Buren plunged for 9 and Tommy Thompson passed 15 yards to Jack Ferrante to make it 21-0 with only two minutes of the second quarter gone.

4. Van Buren bounded over again from the 3 at the start of the three-touchdown third quarter. That made it 28 to 0.

5. Pat McHugh intercepted a Bobby Layne pass an draced 21 yards into the end zone.

6. Frank Reagan set up the final score by returning an intercepted pass to the New York 17. McHugh picked up 5 and after Van Buren lost 3, substitute Quarterback Bill Mackrides flipped 16 yards to Neal Armstrong for a touchdown.

Georgetown Will Make Bowl Trip Despite Loss

Despite the 28-7 lacing at the hands of George Washington U. Saturday, Georgetown intends to find its place in the Sun—Bowl.

The Hoyas will keep their January 2 date at El Paso with the Border Conference champion, probably Texas Tech. Its bowl commitment, that had to be made before the game with traditional rival GW, was on a win, lose or draw basis.

Rev. Cornelius A. Herlihy, faculty director of athletics at Georgetown, said, "We're committed, we've signed a contract and we'll be in El Paso.

Georgetown's record is 5-4. In 1947, VPI went to the Sun Bowl with a record of three victories, three losses and three ties.

Tripucka, Dudley Lead Lions To Surprise Win Over Giants

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Led by Frank Tripucka and Bullet Bill Dudley, the alert Detroit Lions drubbed the favored New York Giants, 45-21, today to register their highest scoring total in their 16-year history in the National Football League.

Tripucka, former Notre Dame backfield star, passed to three touchdowns, and Dudley accumulated 15 points on a touchdown, a 24-yard field goal and six conversions.

Kelley Mote pounced on a Bus Mertes' third-period fumble on New York's 12 and Dudley bulled over from the 2 for a score. Achille Maggioli picked up a fourth-quarter bobble by Jack Salscheider and raced the remaining 7 yards for another touchdown.

Bob Pifferini intercepted three aerials by New York's Chuck Conerly, two of them setting the stage for Lion touchdowns, with New York leading 21-17 in the third quarter. The San José State alumnus grabbed the ball out of Bill Swiacki's hands on the Giants' 24 and Detroit scored in four plays with Camp Wilson knifing through right guard to put the Lions in front, 24-21.

Pifferini set up the last Detroit touchdown, intercepting a lateral on the Giants' 34. A Tripucka pass to End John Greene from the 6 gave the Lions their record-breaking 45 points.

Tripucka accounted for Detroit's first two touchdowns. He climaxed an 80-yard drive in the first period, passing 17 yards to Cloyce in the end zone to put the Lions ahead, 7-0. After the Giants had tied the score at 7-7 in the second period, Tripucka and End Bob Mann collaborated on a 41-yard pass play to regain the lead, 14-7. Dudley's 24-yard field goal four seconds from the end gave Detroit a 17-7 halftime lead.

Interceptions also played a major part in the Giants' three touchdowns. After Cletus Fischer intercepted a Tripucka pass on Detroit's 37, the Giants marched 63 yards for their first score. Choo-Choo Roberts rammed over from the 1

Tech's Title Hopes Rest on Fox

McKINLEY TECH'S RAY FOX
Interhigh's Leading Scorer With 90 Points

Wilson Must Halt League's Top Scorer Friday

By West McLean
Post Reporter

SUGAR RAY FOX, a converted end who blossomed as the leading scorer of the interhigh league this year, will be the big gun for the McKinley Tech Trainers when Tech meets Wilson in the interhigh championship game at 8 o'clock Friday night at Griffith Stadium.

Friday night's game pitting the Northern Division champs (Tech) against the winners of the Southern Division (Wilson) is sponsored by The Washington Post and the Board of Education.

Fox, an 18-year-old senior, was a good but not exceptional end last year, but this year Coach Ed Solomon, confronted with a surplus of good ends but lacking a hard-running back, shifted the 6-foot, 176-pounder to the fullback position.

Fox responded notably and went on to lead the interhigh scoring parade with 15 touchdowns for 90 points and stands a good chance of passing the 100 mark in Friday's game.

Ray has scored 15 touchdowns and he passed to two scores.

Ray has also tallied four touchdowns and passed to two others with End Dick Gaskell as his favorite target in nonleague games.

Ray attributes his success to an extremely long stride which makes it hard for opposing linemen to grab his legs together when trying to tackle him.

Tech followers are calling Fox the best back at McKinley since the days of Andy Davis and Bugs Thompson.

A truly fine all-around performer, Ray does the punting for the Trainers as well as passing and running. He isn't afraid to block either and gets out and opens up a path for the other Trainer backs.

Pittsburgh Rolls Over Packers, 30-7

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 20 (AP).—Pittsburgh's single-wing power, helped by the passing of Bobby Gage and Joe Geri, gave the Steelers a 30-7 National Football league victory today over Green Bay.

The victory moved Pittsburgh into second place in Eastern Division standings.

A slim crowd of 5483 fans, smallest in Packer home history, watched the tussle.

Geri and Gage, a pair of freshmen halfbacks from Georgia and Clemson, respectively, handled most of the aerial acrobatics when the Steelers chose to take the overhead route. Geri tossed for two touchdowns while completing six of his nine attempts. Gage connected on the only two he tried and then whipped around end to score the final Steeler touchdown.

Pittsburgh scored late in the second period on Geri's 37-yard pass to Val Jansante, who went 10 more for the touchdown, and Jerry Nuzum put the Steelers two touchdowns up right after half time with a 64-yard burst over left guard on a reverse.

The Packers got into the ball game briefly after the return kickoff, driving all the way on 11 plays with Earl (Jug) Girard scoring from the 1 on a quarterback sneak and Ted Fritsch converting.

After that Pittsburgh took command for keeps. Carl Samuelson crashed through to block a Girard punt for a safety after Geri's 82-yard quick-kick pushed the Packers back to their own 14. The Steelers drove right back with the kickoff, Geri's 8-yard pitch to Nuzum paying off in the end zone. Then Gage, after picking up 31 yards on a pair of passes to Elbie Nickel, skirted end for the final tally. Geri kicked all four extra points.

Sale of Indians Announcement Due Today

Cleveland, Nov. 20 (AP).—Sale of the Cleveland Indians to a group of local businessmen apparently is scheduled for tomorrow.

A news conference at 11 a. m. (E.S.T.) Monday was announced by the club's public relations representative, Marshall Samuel, who said it would be concerned with the many reports that the world champions of 1948 were being sold.

Ellis W. Ryan, 45-year-old insurance executive, heads the syndicate which has been negotiating with Bill Veeck, the Tribe's president and largest stockholder.

There have been frequent reports that the price will be $2,200,000, compared with a reported $1,250,000 sale price when Veeck and his associates bought the outfit from Alva Bradley in 1946.

Some of the present stockholders, including Comedian Bob Hope, a former Clevelander, are expected to retain an interest, said the newspaper.

It reported that Veeck would arrive tomorrow from Chicago to close the deal in his office at the stadium, turning over 95 percent of the stock, including that held by Robert Goldstein, New York movie executive who often has been reported an active bidder for the club.

Ryan said tonight he does not intend to sell his insurance business, but "I do intend to devote myself to the ball club. I have able associates who can operate the insurance business."

Colts Lose 10th Game of Year to Dons, 21 to 10

Taliaferro Scores Two Touchdowns

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 20 (U.P.).—The Los Angeles Dons kept alive their mathematical hopes of gaining an All-America Conference playoff berth today by drubbing the last-place Baltimore Colts, 21 to 10, before a crowd of 19,503 in Base Ruth Stadium.

Led by rookie halfback George Taliaferro's sparkling passing, running and kicking, the Dons had little trouble punching holes in the weak Baltimore line and handing the Colts their tenth defeat in 11 games.

From the Colt 35 in the first quarter, Los Angeles scored four plays after runs by Billy Grimes and Hosea Rogers and the final touchdown thrust by Taliaferro. Bob Nelson added the extra point.

The Colts tied it up later in the same period after a 60-yard touchdown march climaxed by a pitchout to Billy Stone, who circled left end for the touchdown from the 33. Rex Grossman added the extra point.

However, the Dons snapped back three plays later when a pass from Grimes to End Dick Wilkins was caught but fumbled on the Colt's 42, then scooped up by Taliaferro, who ran for the score. Nelson again converted.

It was all Los Angeles again in the second period as the Dons marched 58 yards for their third score. Rodgers' spurt from the one accounted for the touchdown and Nelson booted the extra point.

The Colts added their final score of the game in the same period on Grossman's 44-yard field goal, the longest in the conference this season.

GOING UP?—George Taliaferro's spirits were never higher than on this play against the Baltimore Colts in Baltimore yesterday. The Los Angeles Dons halfback goes high into the air trying to leap over Bob Nowaskey (52) of the Colts. He came down just as quickly as he came up. Taliaferro paced the Dons to a 21-10 victory over the hapless Colts, the defeat being their tenth in 11 starts

Mason-Dixon Harriers Run

Bridgewater, Va., Nov. 20.—Seven teams have entered 52 runners in the eighth annual Mason-Dixon Conference cross-country meet here tomorrow.

Roanoke College, led by Alvin Smith, Bruce Davenport and Red Crockett, who finished second, third and fourth last year, defends its team title.

Main threat to Roanoke will be the Shoremen from Washington College, Chestertown, Md. Larry Vandenburg, Fillmore Dryden and Meredith Bowie, fifth, sixth and seventh place finishers in last year's championship race, lead the Shoremen.

American University is the only Washington, D. C., team entered. Loyola and Johns Hopkins of Baltimore and Randolph-Macon and Hampden-Sydney from Virginia round out the field.

Golfing Notes . . .

Jules Winkleman won the Woodmont Country Club Handicap championship yesterday, defeating Lester Rosenberg, 2 and 1.

The winners in a nine-hole turkey tournament were, Ed Wortman, 38-4—34; Dr. L. J. Thomas, 50-15—35; Howard Nordlinger, 37-2—36; Dr. E. Aaronson, 43-8—35; and Sam Pocker, 47-12—35.

PRINCE GEORGES—Jim Kinder fired a 76 to take down the low gross in the mens turkey tournament. Barry Ford, 81-11—70 won first net while George Hohman, 84-12—72 and Charles Hutson, 87-15—72 split second net.

Mrs. Jack Smith, 92-15—77, won the ladies' turkey tournament with Mrs. Fred Lewis, 92-12—80, taking second.

BETHESDA—Jerry Hart fired a 35-37—72 to win low gross in a turkey tournament while Ed Williams was the low net winner on a draw. Williams, 78-9—69, was pulled out of the rut over Art Rabuck and Charlie Lacey, who also had 69s.

Harvey Thorson, 91-11—80, won the blind bogey, on a draw over Frank Huseman, also with an 80 net.

Jolson Will Come Back for Celebrities Golf

At a Variety Club dinner at the Statler Hotel Saturday, where he was given an award for being the personality of the year, if he would like to play in the 1950 Washington Post Celebrities Golf tournament, Al Jolson enthusiastically replied, "If I'm alive, sure, I'll be there."

"It'll be my first golf game in five years. "Bing Crosby and all the boys are in that one," he mused.

Richmond Rebels Dare Redskins To Play Them

RICHMOND, VA., Nov. 20 (AP).—The Richmond Rebels, new champions of the American Football League, today dared the Washington Redskins to play them an exhibition game.

Harry Seibold, president of the Rebels, sent the following telegram to Redskin President George Marshall as Richmond was walloping Jersey City, 54-7, today to clinch the AFL title:

"We will pay you $10,000 and option of 50 percent of net gate for exhibition game here Sunday, December 11 or 18. You bring a squad of 22 men of regular team to play our squad of similar number. If dates not satisfactory advise alternate dates."

There is a "grudge" between the Rebels and the National Football League Redskins. Recently, Seibold claimed that the Redskins were attempting to "steal" Joel Williams, big center under contract to Richmond.

Loube Paces Phillips Over Ornstein's 41-38

Bobby Loube tossed in 15 points to lead Phillips Radio to a 41-38 win over Ornstein Construction in the first day's play in the Jewish Community Center's A league yesterday.

In other games, Pilrollers beat the Dark Horses, 37-25; Phi Alpha downed Cardozo, 33-27; Super Service trounced Camotops, 40-27; Columbia Tigers defeated Ugly A. C., 42-37, and Mitchells won over the Old Timers, 48-37.

leg, flattened Notre Dame's pride far behind the line of scrimmage and when the loose ball stopped bouncing, Shoener had it hugged to his chest. It was a romp for the ex-Iowan to the goal, 33 yards away.

The Bears had to wait until the second time they got the ball after that to tie it up. Then they started at their own 42, moved 18 yards, mostly on Lujack passes, and used the same effective method to cover the last 40 yards in one play.

Boone was at the Redskin 20 when he took Lujack's offering in a cozy group which included Redskins' Al Demao and Harry Dowda. Just under 13 minutes of action had elapsed when he found his way into the end zone, Lujack knotting the count with a placement.

Blanda's field goal, coming at 2:43 of the second quarter, capped a 40-yard Bear drive that fizzled on the Redskin seven. The 10-7 lead looked important for slightly less than five minutes, but then the Bear touchdown passes started in earnest.

Before the half, two of them spotted Chicago a 24-7 lead. On the end of a 44-yard march, Lujack slanted a 26-yarder to Keane, who caught it over Bob Goode's head, and just before intermission came the big heave to Kavanaugh.

This time Dowda, Clyde Goodnight and Herb Siebert were in the group around Kavanaugh when he picked Lujack's shot out of the air and raced the last 45 yards of the 81-yard play.

It was Luckman's turn as the second half opened. The Bears had thundered 37 yards down field to the Redskin 17 when old Sid, perhaps making his last appearance as an active player here, found Keane being guarded by Howie Livingston only 5 yards from the goal line. Keane had no trouble evading the former Giant star, broken finger and all, and went into the end zone easily.

The Redskins finally groped their way into Bear territory midway of the third period but nothing came of a Baugh-inspired move to the 42. Chicago's first punt of the game shortly after that, however, seemed to affect the hosts favorably.

They started at the Bear 41 and by the time the final period started they were only 30 yards short of a touchdown.

All three Redskin quarterbacks—Baugh, Mont and Harry Gilmer—were in the backfield when Baugh, after three misses, fired toward the flying Mont. The former Maryland ace, playing his first offense of the year, made a spectacular catch over Ed Cody's head and had 6 points for himself after only 20 seconds of the last quarter.

Blanda missed a second field goal from 37 yards out and four Lujack passes in a row were knocked down by Redskin defenders before the final scoring was credited to the same twosome, Baugh and Mont.

From the Bear 49, Washington stepped up to the Bear 23, but it was on fourth down, with 7 yards sorely needed, that Baugh finally located his understudy. Sammy was completely surrounded by snarling Bears, but the calmest man in the park, as he watched Mont tear toward the end zone. Mont made a diving catch to come up with the score.

In the last five minutes, Coach Ball, following his system of trying anything to win, had Baugh lateralling to Mont and the latter doing the passing. It didn't work, but nobody could say Ball and the Redskins didn't try.

To Daughter

Bo Rowland's 'Little White Lie' Wasn't

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

ANDY DAVIS, Al DuGoff and the Shah of Iran weren't the only heroes of George Washington's stunning 28-7 upset of Georgetown Saturday. Four-year-old Nancy Rowland, daughter of G. W. Coach Bo Rowland, had her little hand in it also . . . Last Monday, after the Colonials had taken consecutive drubbings from Maryland and Duke, she asked her father: "Daddy, aren't we ever going to win another game?" . . . Daddy Bo promised her the Colonials would and that it would be against Georgetown . . . "At the time, I was telling her a little white lie," the beaming Rowland said yesterday . . . As for the Shah of Iran, who served as G. W.'s honorary captain, that gentleman is doing quite all right for himself. The Colonials are going to vote him a varsity letter . . .

WHY did Virginia elect to kick off and not receive after winning the toss against Tulane Saturday? . . . "Because Bob Davis (Tulane punter) hadn't been kicking well all season and we gambled on his making a poor punt with the wind against him," Cavalier Coach Art Guepe explained. The Greenies, Sugar Bowl-bound, forestalled that strategy by matching 69 yards with the opening kickoff for a touchdown which put the previously undefeated Cavaliers in a hole to stay . . . And the illegal substitution in the second quarter gave the Green Wave a first down on the Cavalier 14 and set up their second touchdown? . . . "I must have blacked out on that one," Guepe added. Although Tulane won, it wasn't impressive. The general impression of observers who had seen all three teams play was that Maryland could lick both Tulane and Virginia.

FOR 15 MINUTES Saturday, Maryland was the new Southern Conference football champion. The Terps' hold on the title was shortlived, however, as North Carolina overcame a first quarter 6-0 deficit and went on to outpoint Duke, 21-20, in a tobacconland thriller . . . Champ Pickens' annual Blue-Gray game Christmas Day in Montgomery, Ala., is back in business, bigger than ever. Its death was predicted after last year's financial flop, but sponsors have already obtained the services of North Carolina's All-America battery—Charlie Justice and Art Weiner—for this year's attraction. And, by the strangest of coincidences, Coach Carl Snavely, of N. Carolina, is on the coaching staff . . .

Pompeii Beats Marlboro, 4-3

Pompeii beat Marlboro, 4-3, in an overtime Stewart Cup soccer game yesterday. Pershing Mondorff led Marlboro, scoring all three goals for the losers.

Hank Cellozzi scored the winning goal in the overtime to give the Baltimore Club the victory.

Martin's Bakery and Williamsport fought to a 3-3 tie which was called because of darkness after an overtime period.

Autlitz defeated Uncle Billies, 4-2, in another overtime battle, scoring twice in the overtime period to take the game. Joe Thybenko, playing his first game for Autlitz tallied early in the overtime and Joe Cadder added another goal in the 20 minutes period.

Bills Whip Chicago's Hornets

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 20 (U.P.).—A 79 yard touchdown run by Bob Livingstone, through ankle-deep mud and a 17-yard field goal by big Chet Adams today gave the Buffalo Bells a 10 to 0 victory over the Chicago Hornets and fourth place in the All-America football conference.

Livingston picked up the ball on his own 21-yard line after a Chicago punt and shot through a gaping hole down the right sideline. He slithered past the Chicago defenders at midfield, sidestepped another on the 45 and was off for the goal line.

Adams made the extra point and Buffalo had a lead which its gallant defensive line protected to the end.

The two teams fought through a scoreless third period before 18,494, and as the fourth period opened, the Bills recaptured their sea legs again for a sustained drive from their own 27 to the Chicago 10. There the drive stalled, but the mud-encrusted Adams dropped back and booted the ball wobbly straight for the game-clinching field goal.

Chicago tried hard but couldn't dent the Buffalo defensive line.

Forget Bowls At This Time, Tatum's Advice

Jim Tatum may be bowl-minded himself, but he's taking great pains to see that his Maryland football players aren't—not at this time, anyway.

"Disregard anything you hear or read about Maryland and the bowls," he told his squad yesterday. "We have West Virginia to play here Thursday. That's plenty to think about."

West Virginia's record may not be impressive, but Tatum does have a slight fear of Coach Dud DeGroot's squad, and he has a right to be. They've lost to Maryland only once in six meetings, yet they've been the underdogs each time.

The Maryland coaches won't have to extend themselves to getting the squad "up" for the Turkey Day clash. Dud DeGroot relieved them of that chore recently when he predicted "Boston University (which flattened West Virginia, 52-20) would murder Maryland."

The Terps defeated the then unbeaten B.U.'s, 14-13, and will be certain to remember Degroot's prediction when the headknocking begins in Byrd Stadium at 2:15 Thursday.

Langdon Wins, 20-0

Car Credit Tied, 7-7, by Anacostia

Four-year undefeated Car Credit and the Anacostia Eagles unlimiteds battled to a 7-to-7 deadlock yesterday afternoon at Gonzaga Field in the second game of a Metropolitan Amateur Football League double-header.

In the first game the undefeated Lions clinched the Metro League's 160-pound Eastern division crown by humbling the Wasco Bullets, 20 to 0.

The powerful Riverside Rollers moved a step closer to the Western division title at Hearst Playground, defeating the Brookland Merchants, 21 to 7.

In other Metro League games, Eastern A. C. edged Casbah Restaurant, 6 to 0, at Magruder Park, Hyattsville, and Southwest Merchants routed Great Falls, 42 to 0, at Jefferson Playground, in the Marylanders' season finale.

After a scoreless first half, when Anacostia's Paul Blaine, 26-year-old son of Coach Ben, tossed a 30-yard pass to End Gene Marshall in the end zone to give the Eagles a surprising 6-to-0 lead in the third quarter. Sonny Morrissette kicked the extra point.

The Creditmen, bidding for their forty-second victory since 1946, were held off by Anacostia's powerful line until late in the final period. Steve Orsini led a sustained drive of 70 yards to the 1-foot line where Jack George plunged over. Gil Buckingham kicked the extra point to tie it at 7-all.

Trial Race Features Today's Bill

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

A pair of $10,000-added events provide the chief action of the first full week of fall racing at nearby Bowie. Thursday's Thanksgiving Day show is topped by the Endurance Handicap, with 2-year-olds slated to compete at a mile and 70 yards. Next Saturday's gala offering is the W. P. Burch Memorial Handicap for all ages at 6 furlongs.

Today's feature is the Leonardtown Purse, arranged by Racing Secretary John Turner, sr., as a trial for the Endurance. Six of the juveniles in the line-up also are nominations for the Turkey Day test. They are Syracuse Lad, Oilomacy, Arcave, King Freedoms, Speedy Jo and Eastern Flyway.

Eastern Flyway on View

Eastern Flyway, owned by Taylor Leatherbury of Shadyside, Md., will be watched with interest by Maryland fans, providing he gets off the "also eligible" list and into the actual competition.

This colt began his career here this spring, winning by six lengths in fleet fashion before turning back his opposition decisively in the Kindergarten Stakes. After that the son of Roman tailed off, although he was second in the Spalding Lowe Jenkins at Laurel.

The adage "horses for courses" seems to work out consistently on Bowie's deep cushioned track and many believe Eastern Flyway will show a return to winning form this week.

Should Eastern Flyway win today, he still will have a tough assignment in the Endurance where he will meet Jess Linthicum, Prunor, Greek Song, Puppet and others who have shown keen races in recent weeks.

Royal Governor Back

Mrs. Ethel duPont Weir's Royal Governor, fourth with Light Excuses in last Saturday's Lynch Handicap, will have a chance to make amends in this weekend's Burch Memorial Handicap. While he will not be opposed by Brandywine Stable's Cochise, he will meet formidable sprinters.

Sugar, Cotton Bids at Stake

Saturday Is Day of Decision For Bowl Game Operatives

By John Chandler

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—With California and Ohio State awaiting official nods for Rose Bowl designation, college football turns this week to several ancient rivalries and conference scraps from which additional New Year's bowl teams will emerge.

Topping the rivalry list is Saturday's affair at Philadelphia, where Army presents its undefeated record to Navy and asks the Middies what they're going to do about it. Both Army, the Nation's No. 4 team, and Navy were idle last week.

And Philadelphia gets another humdinger Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, when Cornell and Pesnsylvania clash in their annual game—this time for the Ivy League championship.

Big Ten officials are expected to give Ohio State the "go ahead" signal for the trip to Pasadena and the big bowl prize January 2, but the faculty representatives aren't bound to the Buckeyes.

Minnesota, which beat Ohio State earlier this year, 27-0, dumped Wisconsin, 14-6. Had Ohio State lost to Michigan, the conference fathers could have sent Minnesota westward—and there is still a bare chance.

Half a dozen conference championships remain to be settled this week. The Rice Owls and Baylor Bears meet Saturday at Houston for the Southwest Conference crown, and a spot in the Cotton Bowl. Down in New Orleans, Tulane faces Louisiana State, with an eye on the Sugar Bowl and the Southeastern Conference title.

All Tulane must do to clinch the conference crown and probably get the Sugar Bowl bid is beat Louisiana State at New Orleans Saturday. Under a special ruling, Kentucky's game with Miami (Fla.) University, at Miami Friday night, will count in the standings for Kentucky. A Kentucky victory coupled with a Tulane loss would leave the teams tied in the conference standings. Kentucky had been unable to schedule the required six games with conference members.

Maryland also has bowl hopes. Beaten only by powerful Michigan State, Maryland must get past West Virginia Thursday at College Park, Md., and Miami, Fla., December 2.

With a Sugar Bowl bid virtually assured, unbeaten Oklahoma tackles Oklahoma A. & M. Saturday at Norman. The Big Seven title already has been clinched by Oklahoma.

Santa Clara Enters Orange Bowl Picture

Oklahoma City, Nov. 20 (AP).—Santa Clara, although twice defeated and once tied, may receive a bid to the Orange Bowl game, a Miami spokesman said here today.

Oklahoma turned back the Californians, 28-21, in their intersectional battle Saturday. Van Kussrow, Orange Bowl scout, said he was favorably impressed

Santa Clara's consideration is based on its showing against Oklahoma and California, both undefeated this season.

Bill Bennings at Bowie Track

Dear Folks: At Bowie.

Jockey Bobbie Strange has stopped riding and will be out until late this week due to a broken rib suffered in an auto accident. Strange has been in the saddle since, but has been complaining of pains in the chest. Don't cash tickets for strangers. Several attempts were made to pass bogus cardboard at Pimlico, but the job was so crude cashiers had little trouble detecting the ticket. In all cases, the culprits talked newly made "friends" into presenting the alterations for pay-off. Joe Marinelli is the latest jockey to forsake saddle ranks and turn trainer. MARYLAND FARM BUREAU insurance salesman Earl P. Zepp, Jr., speaks for Sunoco Dynafuel quality by saying, "Driving 25 to 30 thousand miles a year over rural roads proves to me that there's nothing better for performance, mileage and economy."

"AMAZING MILEAGE and wonderful high-test power defines Sunoco Dynafuel for me," says Catonsville, Md., matron Kathryn Brown. "I won't use anything else in my Chevrolet because Sunoco Dynafuel just can't be beat."

HENRY L. VOGT, President of the Reading, Pa Junior Hosiery Mills, Inc., has used Sunoco for 15 years. He says, "In my '47 Pontiac Dynafuel gives me plenty of anti-knock power, excellent mileage—and real economy."

You, too, will get top performance at less cost per mile with Sunoco Dynafuel

Subject: Anti-Knock Distribution Tests
Dynafuel vs. Premium-priced Gasolines

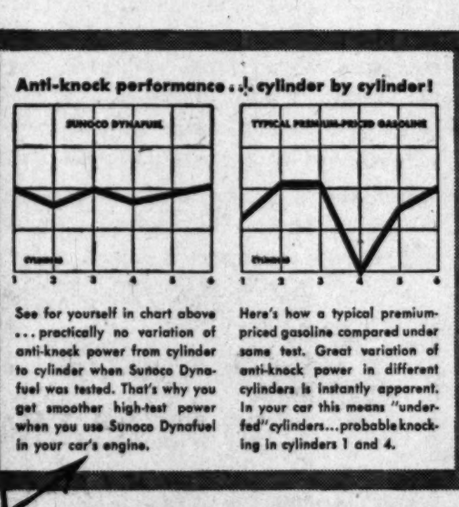
Gentlemen:

We have examined and hereby certify to Report No. A-6 of your Research and Development Department covering the anti-knock distribution tests in which Sunoco Dynafuel was compared with seven (7) leading premium-priced gasolines.

These tests were made under our supervision, using samples of premium-priced gasolines purchased by us at retail service stations in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Boston, and Detroit.

Sunoco Dynafuel proved superior to all seven (7) premium-priced gasolines — in uniformity of anti-knock performance in all cylinders — as measured by the ASTM Standard Motor Method.

Very truly yours,
PITTSBURGH TESTING LABORATORY
Lawrence K. Jones,
Manager - Special Test Section



See for yourself in chart above . . . practically no variation of anti-knock power from cylinder to cylinder when Sunoco Dynafuel was tested. That's why you get smoother high-test power when you use Sunoco Dynafuel in your car's engine.

Here's how a typical premium-priced gasoline compared under same test. Great variation of anti-knock power in different cylinders is instantly apparent. In your car this means "underfed" cylinders . . . probable knocking in cylinders 1 and 4.

"WINTER-SAFE" YOUR CAR AT SUNOCO—10 FALL CHANGE-OVER SERVICES AT A COMBINATION PRICE!"

HERE'S WHY:

First, These tests prove that Dynafuel gives your car smoothest anti-knock performance in all cylinders . . . beats 7 of America's top-selling premium-priced gasolines.

Second, it costs you up to 2¢ less a gallon than premium gasoline . . . saves you money every mile you drive.

For top performance at less cost per mile . . . buy Sunoco Dynafuel!

Save up to 2¢ a gallon over other high-test gasolines

THE DECEMBER BOOK-OF-THE-MONTH...

—SAYS DR. JAMES B. CONANT, PRESIDENT OF HARVARD UNIVERSITY

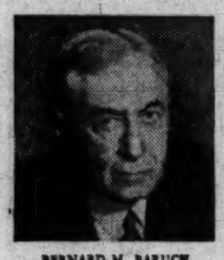
Modern Arms and Free Men

BY DR. VANNEVAR BUSH

DR. VANNEVAR BUSH

GEN. GEORGE C. MARSHALL

GEN. GEORGE C. MARSHALL:
"I was intimately associated with Dr. Bush during the war years... I know of no one better qualified to analyze the influences of science on war material and war making in the past and the prospects for the future. This unusually complete discussion comes at a most critical time in our history and should wipe out many fallacies and promote well founded conceptions as to our future security... The book should exert an important influence on public opinion."



BERNARD M. BARUCH

BERNARD M. BARUCH:
"Our minds have been filled with frightening visions of dread weapons of the future—rockets, guided missiles, atomic bombs, germs, poison gases. No man is better qualified to put these scary visions into orderly place, calmly appraising their limitations as well as their potentialities, than Vannevar Bush. He is one of that truly remarkable group of scientists who were taken out of their laboratories and plunged into the political jungle of war-time mobilization and functioned so well."

DR. JAMES B. CONANT

DR. JAMES B. CONANT:
"There have been so many extreme and dogmatic statements on the subject of new weapons... that it is a significant event in our history when one who has had access to official technical information for many years speaks his mind. Dr. Bush treats of vital subjects in a forthright and challenging manner. His definition of democracy as well as his analysis of modern arms cannot fail to be welcomed with enthusiasm by the American public."

DAVID E. LILIENTHAL

DAVID E. LILIENTHAL:
"The applications and the role of science in protecting the common defense and security are of interest to everyone, in a very direct as well as in a very broad sense. In MODERN ARMS AND FREE MEN Dr. Vannevar Bush, richly qualified by training and experience, with a distinguished record of achievement in the last war, analyzes the past and reviews the future. This is a sober, fact-filled book to give heart to those who wonder about the ability of a democratic system to defend itself."

IT TELLS WHAT WE NEED—AND NEED NOT—FEAR IF THERE IS ANOTHER WAR

SINCE Hiroshima the public has been presented with a great deal of hysterical literature about the horror of a future war, evoking in every one of us visions of cities and populations wiped out by atomic bombs or by manufactured disease.

Now for the first time we have a responsible appraisal of what we may be obliged to face, "written by the one man in the United States and probably in the world who is most familiar with the scientific implications of modern total war."

The grave human matters that Dr. Bush deals with in his book will come up in every serious conversation you have. When such talk does take place, among your friends and in your family, how important it is that you correct any misinformation being disseminated; and, above all, that you spread none yourself!

If ever there was a book you should guard yourself against missing, this is one! Every thoughtful person in the land, man and woman, will want to read it—read it carefully—and spread its enlightenment and encouragement.

The Kind of Life-and-Death Questions Answered

How justifiable is the fear of "destruction of our civilization" by atomic energy or any other present weapon?

WHY is it unlikely that a lone bomber, carrying an atomic bomb, could reach one of our cities or industrial centers?

IS mass-bombing from fleets of airplanes—carrying atomic bombs or any other kind—on the way to becoming obsolete?

WHAT are the chances of atomic bombs being carried in suitcases by enemy agents and planted in strategic spots?

IN what respects are the fears engendered about manufactured disease as a war weapon exaggerated and uninformed?

WHAT defensive weapon will make it practically impossible for tanks to break through ground defenses?

WHY are the days of the great battleships probably over, and the world's navies facing changes that will be revolutionary?

WHY may the submarine turn out to be the form of warfare most to be feared by us?

WHY are offensive and defensive methods virtually deadlocked between enemies of approximately equal power—even assuming the presence of atomic bombs in moderate quantity on both sides?

WHY will Soviet Russia remain for a long time relatively weak, militarily, against the United States—if the two systems do not change their essential characteristics?

—and many other vital questions like these

WE SUGGEST YOU JOIN THE CLUB NOW AND GET THIS AS YOUR FIRST BOOK...AS A NEW MEMBER, YOU WILL RECEIVE without charge ANY ONE OF THE SETS LISTED BELOW

Membership means you may take as few as four books a year among the Club's selections

Two highly important things, to every book-reading family and individual, are demonstrated here:

First, that membership in the Book-of-the-Month Club means that you will actually get and read particular outstanding new books—such as this one by Vannevar Bush—which you are anxious not to miss. Time and again, either from busyness or simple procrastination, you neglect to buy such books. If you want them, as a member of the Club, they would be infallibly delivered to you by the postman. If not, the unique system provides that you can keep any unwanted book from coming to you.

The second important thing demonstrated is—the marked economy. You pay only for the books you decide to buy, never more than the publisher's retail price—and frequently less. (Last year, on the average, it was 23% less.) And then, by your purchases, you earn other books you are anxious to include in your library—through the Club's Book-Dividend system. You receive a valuable Book-Dividend with every second selection you buy after your first purchase.

This is a unique profit-sharing system similar to the workings of a consumer cooperative; except that—because books are earned, instead of cash—the value you receive as a member is magnified many times over. Over $50,000,000 worth of books (retail value)—books such as those shown below—were received by members during the past four years alone.

Hundreds of thousands of book-reading families now use this sensible service. We suggest you try it for a short time, and see how advantageous it is in every way.

Two More Assistant Secretaries to Be Asked For Interior Dept.

A realignment of top Interior Department offices is slated early next year.

1. The President will ask Congress to create two more assistant secretaries in the department in line with a recommendation of the Hoover Commission.

2. The duties of Interior's "little cabinet" members will be changed. As tentatively planned, assistant secretaries will be placed in charge of these activities: administration, minerals, land, and power and water. That's assuming, of course, that two new assistants will be added. The proposed new assistant for administration would have charge of personnel, budget, etc.

The Krug system of assistant secretaries for geographical areas is to be junked.

Oscar Chapman, Interior Secretary designate, is known to favor the plan of placing assistant secretaries in charge of spicific functions. He'll have an opportunity to carry them out after he's confirmed by the Senate in early January.

STORY: Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the Mint, made a speech in which she said that a million dollars in gold weighs about a ton and that it could be fitted into an ordinary woman's hat box. And then she added with a smile:

"Anyone here can see a million dollars in gold by going to one of our mints—and you can have it if you can carry it out."

Mrs. Ross assumed her statement was safe enough. But early the next morning there was a knock on her door. The director was greeted by two serious-looking men . . . "All we want," the spokesman said, "is just one little chance to get away with a million dollars in gold."

ANNUAL LEAVE: Don't underestimate the talk of revising the annual leave system for classified workers. The matter was discussed at length the other day by several top personnel officials.

No definite action was taken but a majority of the policy-makers present were reported to favor a graduated plan for annual leave based on years of service. A dozen such proposals were debated, such as 20 days for the first five years of service; 25 days for the next 10 years, and 30 days for all employes who have 15 or more years of service. Classified employes are now given 26 days of annual leave on a uniform basis.

The Administration won't propose any revision of annual leave. If it's to be taken up, Congress must do it. But when the Congress requests the Administration to comment on bills to adjust the vacation system, it's a good bet that a graduated system will be recommended.

There is also talk of a uniform 20-day vacation for all Federal employes along with a reduction in the work week to 37½ hours. The controversy is sure to be considered by Congress next year when it debates various bills to increase the annual vacations for postal employes from 15 days.

MEDICAL CHANGE? The activities of the Army-Navy medical divisions are likely to be curtailed in an economy move.

A recommendation is reported to have been sent Defense Secretary Johnson to limit functions of the medical staff solely to support of the armed forces. If it's made effective, the medical units would have to get out of research, postgraduate educational training, and other such activities.

If the armed services adopt such a policy, it could easily be extended to other Federal agencies such as the Veterans' Administration, Indian Bureau and other agencies that operate hospitals.

The report to the Defense Secretary is said to have pointed out that the Public Health Service now carries on broad medical research and that all Government medical research should be centered there.

ELITE 400: Federal agencies have recommended that fewer than 1000 jobs be allocated in the three new super grades, General Schedule (GS) 16, ($11,200 to $12,000), GS-17, ($12,200 to $13,000), and GS-18, $14,000.

By law only 400 jobs can be placed in those grades, 300 in GS-16; 75 in GS-17, and 25 in GS-18. In his January budget message, the President is sure to urge Congress to lift the 400 restriction.

3 Luncheons Today Open Chest Drive's Sixth Week

Mrs. Truman to Be Residential Unit's Guest and Present Workers' Awards

Three luncheon report meetings today will start the Community Chest Federation's sixth week of campaigning for 1950 funds. The drive reached 69.15 percent of the $3,991,719 goal last week.

Highlight of the report luncheon of the residential unit at 12:20 p. m. at the Willard Hotel will be the appearance of Mrs. Harry S. Truman as guest of honor.

Mrs. Truman is expected to present "Red Feather Oscars" to several section and division chairmen and solicitors, who have done outstanding work in enrolling subscribers.

The residential unit workers, who had reported 65.74 percent of their quota by last week, will hear Arthur H. Kruse, executive director of United Community Services, speak on "Everybody Benefits if Everybody Gives." The UCS is the Washington unit of the Chest Federation.

Mrs. Wedel to Preside

Mrs. Theodore O. Wedel, unit chairman, will preside, and Dr. George Schnabel of the Albright Evangelical Church will make the invocation. Music will be furnished by Miss Dorothy Byrd, 18-year-old singer of 28 Froude cir., Bethesda, accompanied by Mrs. Mark Harrison, and by the Army Medical Center Band.

Judge Frank Hammett Myers of Municipal Court will address the report luncheon meeting of the Government unit, scheduled for 12:20 p. m. at the Washington Hotel.

John S. Graham, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and vice chairman of the unit, will preside.

Business No. 1 Unit Lunch

General Campaign Chairman Frank J. Luchs will preside at the third report luncheon today, that of the Business No. 1 unit, at 12:20 p. m. at the Washington Hotel. The unit has reported 67.23 percent of quota.

A guest of honor will be Ronnie Leslie, 9-year-old boy, who will represent the Central YMCA boys branch. Ronnie, who lives at 1618 18th st. nw., will be accompanied by Milton Groesbeck, associate boys worker and the Central branch.

Everett J. Boothby, president of the Washington Gas Light Co. and a former member of the Community Chest budget committee, will be the speaker. Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden of the First Baptist Church will give the invocation.

Music will be provided by Jack "Jive" Shafer and his band, sponsored by Local 161, American Federation of Musicians (AFL).

General Meeting Wednesday

A general report meeting on Wednesday will provide an indication of whether Chairman Luchs' recent appeal to step up solicitation efforts is bearing fruit.

Campaigners in the four nearby counties of Maryland and Virginia, which have been lagging behind the general campaign progress, were especially urged to renew their efforts.

All four units were below 50 percent of quota last week, with Fairfax County reaching 49.52 percent; Arlington, 40.67 percent; Prince Georges, 31.03 percent ,and Montgomery, 30.95 percent.

Alexandria alone among the suburban units has equalled the progress of the general campaign, having reached 70.89 percent of quota for a standing in the drive that is second only to the Government unit.

Amnesia Girl's Kin Still Fail To Appear

Police and Gallinger Hospital authorities were still waiting yesterday for appearance of the family of Carol May Harrison, 21, of New York City. She has ben in the hospital since November 2 as an amnesia victim.

The girl identified herself Thursday during a "truth serum" experiment and later confirmed the identification. Simultaneously, Ransford Harrison of New York telegraphed police he had identified the girl as his daughter from The Washington Post picture and he would come here.

Police said yesterday that if Harrison doesn't show up by this morning, they will begin a check with New York authorities.

Saturday she was transferred from the psychiatric ward to a general medical ward. Physicians said she is in good physical condition but appears not yet completely normal mentally.

Materialism Menaces U. S., Students Told

An America that has "drifted from its traditions and forgotten its origins" is menaced by the materialism which has degraded men in the East, Dean Yates of Georgetown University Graduate School said yesterday.

He was addressing the annual fall convocation of the Graduate School on the university campus. Father Yates shared the platform with Prof. Francis G. Wilson of the University of Illinois, who spoke on democratic theory.

The Very Rev. Hunter Guthrie, president of the university, presided and greeted the assembly of several hundred students and faculty members.

If democracy stumbles and the world waits in vain for American leadership to appear, said Father Yates, it is because we have forgotten our ancient ideals and the American creed.

Dean Yates charged Georgetown scholars with the duty of trying to "reinvigorate American society" through scholarship and renewal of ancient truths.

Professor Wilson said the war did not resolve any debates on philosophical principle or social theory, and sharpened the argument over the nature of democracy.

Democracy has been an adventure in faith, he said, and has been, historically, very close to religious ideas.

Trio Plays Kodaly Work At Gallery

By Richard Keith

A chamber concert composed entirely of the works of the contemporary Hungarian composer, Zoltan Kodaly, was presented last night at the National Gallery. The performers were Joseph Druian, cellist; Yvonne Druian, pianist, and Louis Gesensway, violinist.

Although all three compositions were written over 30 years ago, two of them, the Sonata for Cello and Piano and the Sonata for Solo Cello, were played for the first time in Washington.

Drenched With Rhythm

Kodaly has devoted much of his life to the study and promotion of the Hungarian folk idiom; these early works are drenched with the somewhat exotic rhythms and melodies of the Magyar. Plaintively rhapsodic throughout, they generally suffer from long-windedness and lack of thematic development. In comparison with the works of his colleague, Bela Bartok, they seem tame and rather conventional. One has a feeling, at least in these youthful compositions, that Kodaly is dominated by the folk style, whereas Bartok always uses it only insofar as it serves his own personal style.

Much Originality

Nevertheless, there is much originality in the melodies, rhythms, and color effects of Kodaly's music.

The Druians and Mr. Gesensway gave splendid performances of these difficult works. They allowed the more passionate passages plenty of freedom but kept them well within the bounds of reason. The delicate moments emerged clear and vibrant. Mr. Druian and Mr. Gesensway managed remarkably to synchronize the highly rhapsodic wanderings of the Duo for Violin and Cello which closed the program.

Cab Boycott Of Airport Threatened

1500 D. C. Drivers Protest Enforcing Of Rule Banning Pickup Fares

A large group of Washington cabbies yesterday threatened to stop taking passengers to National Airport, or to hike the fare there in protest over a recent order forbidding passenger pickups at the airport.

The protest was addressed to Bennett H. Griffin, airport director, by the Combined Cab Service, Inc., representing nine District companies and some 1500 cabbies.

In his letter to Griffin, Jack H. Royer, jr., president of the taxi group, charged that a cabbie who took a fare out to the airport and was asked to wait for a return ride could be fined $500 and given six months in jail.

Many Ask to Wait

Royer said Washington cabs transport thousands of passengers a year who ask drivers to wait while they pick up reservations, see friends off, meet incoming airline passengers or have dinner at the airport.

Others, Royer said, prefer to call cabs from Washington, when they get off an airliner.

Although he hadn't received the letter, Griffin last night said, "there has to be exceptions to any rule." Griffin said flexibility would be used in interpreting the rules unless taxi men abused them.

The row began on November 7, when Airport Transport, Inc., the limousine and taxi concessionaire at the airport, decided to take advantage of that part of its contract which gives Airport Transport exclusive taxi pickup rights.

Waived Exclusive Clause

For about two years before November 7, Airport Transport had waived the exclusive right and outside cabs were allowed in. The recent change came about, Griffin said, because the outside cabbies abused the privilege.

Griffin said substantially the same rules and provisions for punishment of violators have been in operation continuously but he allowed outside cabs to make pickups because of the concessionaire's waiver. Since November, Airport Transport has been operating its own cabs as well as the limousines.

Royer said that unless the rules are changed within the next 10 days, Combined Cab Service operators would either quit taking fares to the airport or "increase the rate from the District line to the airport to such an amount that the operator will be properly compensated for the jeopardy in which he is placed."

Book Fair Opens Sunday At Arts Club

Talks by more than a dozen Washington writers will feature the 13-day annual public book fair of The Arts Club of Washington, opening Sunday.

Several hundred new books, selected by leading publishers, will also be on display at the fair, to be held in the clubhouse, 1721 I st. nw., according to Miss Patricia McGerr, mystery story writer and literary chairman of the organization.

The schedule of speakers, who will autograph copies of their books:

Saturday, December 3, 4 p. m.—Roundtable, with four newspapermen who contributed to "Dateline: Washington:" Cabell Phillips, Thomas L. Stokes, Hugh Morrow and Duncan Aikman.

Sunday, December 4, 6:30 p. m.—Dr. Raymond S. Stites, author of "Art and Man," curator of education division, National Gallery of Art, speaking on new book, "Masterpieces of Sculpture from The National Gallery."

Monday, December 5, 8 p. m.—Harry Neal, author of "Writing and Selling Fact and Fiction."

Tuesday, December 6, 4 p. m.—Grace Tully, author of "F.D.R., My Boss"; 8:15 p. m.—Signora Franco Bounos, "From Her Side."

Wednesday, December 7, 4 p. m.—Louise Young, "Understanding Politics: A Practical Guide for Women."

Thursday, December 8, 8:15 p. m.—Mannix Walker, "Magnolia Widow."

Woman, 26, Near Death After Plunge

A 26-year-old woman was unconscious and in critical condition at Gallinger Hospital yesterday after she fell or jumped, police said, from a second-story window to a concrete walk.

She was identified by officers as Martha Clark, who police said lives with Thomas McBride, in two rear rooms at 1411 Morse st. ne. He is a soldier attached to Andrews Field.

McBride told officers the couple returned to their rooms Saturday night after having a few drinks. He went to the bathroom, he said, when he heard a noise in the kitchen. Going to that room, he saw a window open and Miss Clark on the walk below.

Hospital authorities said she suffered a fractured skull and broken right arm.

Freezing Temperature Due To Strike D. C. Tonight

By Henry Hohland—The Washington Post

A WEATHER EYE—Jack Alexander takes advantage of yesterday's balmy weather to take pictures of his pretty wife, Louise. Couple lives at 1800 S. Eades st., Arlington

The beautiful weather of yesterday which brought out motorists and some picnickers in the parks is due to be gone with the wind today.

The Weatherman said that it will be considerably cooler and cloudy today, with the mercury doing a small nosedive toward evening. High of about 48 is expected during the day and a drop to 28 in the city tonight. Some snow flurries are expected in western Maryland, but forecasters were doubtful that they will reach Washington.

The high yesterday was a comfortable 69 at 2:55 p. m., and the low was 48 at 4:15 a. m. Relative humidity was exceptionally low, highest point being 48 percent at 6 a. m., and lowest 30 percent at 4 p. m.

This, plus sprightly winds, caused a rash of brush and grass fires to break out and burn vigorously in the Washington area. A dozen fires were reported in Montgomery County, 16 in Prince Georges, a dozen in the District, and 10 in nearby Virginia, including Alexandria.

No serious damage was done, but fire equipment, particularly in rural areas, was kept on the run. One fire at the McIntyre farm near Kensington, Md., threatened a dwelling for a time, but three fire companies extinguished the blaze before it reached the house.

VA Hospital at Soldiers Home Is Disclosed as Possibility

The Veterans' Administration would construct its projected nine million dollar hospital here on the grounds of Soldiers' Home, if plans under consideration materialize, it was learned yesterday from an official source.

All central office activities of VA would also be located on the reservation, eventually.

One legal snarl is that the home is a trust for the benefit of United States Army personnel, with the Army Secretary as trustee.

VA Could Make Claim

The plan under consideration calls for the Army Secretary to declare some or all of the property surplus. Then VA could make a claim for it.

An alternative would be an executive order to effect the transfer, it was said.

VA would run the home like the 13 domiciliary homes VA now maintains throughout the country for veterans unable to earn a living who require only minimum hospital care.

Standard 500-Bed Design

The hospital would be designed along the lines of the "standard 500-bed design" currently being followed in other VA construction projects throughout the country, it was learned.

This plan would make available the Nevius site in Arlington, which the Government bought for $1,691,748. One idea is to use this for an addition to Arlington Cemetery.

Some quarters anticipated strong objections to the VA plan.

It was pointed out by these sources that the home was long supported by deductions from the pay checks of the regular Army. Fines and forfeitures of soldiers also were directed to the home.

A board of governors composed of retired Army officers now runs the home.

Budget Director Frank Pace, jr., and Soldiers Home Governor Howard K. Loughry could not be reached last night for comment.

Reproduction

Mt. Vernon Slave House To Be Built

Within the next few weeks work of reproducing the greenhouse and slave quarters at Mount Vernon, as they were when George Washington lived there, will begin.

The original building, with greenhouse in the center and slave quarters in two wings, was built in 1785 and destroyed by fire in 1835.

Directing the work will be Architect Walter M. Macomber, who has been guided by George Washington's own sketches and hand-written instructions.

Charles C. Wall, resident superintendent, said plans for erecting the building had been prepared when the war broke out and the project had to be delayed.

Much of the work, he said, will be done by the men who work on restoration and upkeep of the shrine constantly. The cost, he said, cannot be estimated at this time.

Work on the original building, he said, was done by Washington's indentured laborers who prepared the timbers from trees in the surrounding woods and burned the bricks on the grounds.

The Mount Vernon Ladies' Association of the Union, which has owned Mount Vernon since the 1860s, will direct the reproduction of the old building. It will take about a year to complete the work.

A greenhouse unit, erected in the 1860s on the site of the original building, will be torn down to make room for the new building. It was built on the same foundation as the 1785 building which burned.

Virginian, Slain In Alleged Rape Attempt, Buried

Berryville, Va., Nov. 20.—With a crowd of several hundred persons attending, Charles Kenneth Ellyett, 22, was buried here this afternoon at Green Hill Cemetery.

Funeral services at the Emders funeral chapel, conducted by the Rev. Dargin Lucas, pastor of the Boyce (Va.) Baptist Church, preceded the burial.

Ellyett was shot and killed early Friday near here after a 10-hour auto ride by Miss Therese Koenig, 19, of Arlington, Va., a Navy employe. She charged Ellyett kidnapped her at gunpoint, threatened her with death by shooting yand a dynamite explosion, and tried to rape her. Police found dynamite in the car. She is free on $1000 bond on a manslaughter charge.

Get Sojourner Grant

Thirty Army Medical Center officers have been granted a charter to form a chapter of National Sojourners, Masonic-military organization, to be known as Walter Reed Chapter No. 303, according to Brig. Gen. Oscar P. Snyder, first president.

Police Have No Trace Of Chef Who Vanished

The whereabouts of Rene Marshall, Mayflower Hotel chef, who disappeared at Hains Point Thursday night, are still a mystery, police reported yesterday.

Marshal has not been heard from, as far as police are aware, since a park policeman questioned him about a car collision with a lamppost that night.

The policeman said Marshal vanished after he was told to wait for the officer.

72 Seized Here By Vice Squad in 'Fish Fry' Raid

Arrests Follow Work Of Undercover Men; Corn Whisky Found In Two Other Hauls

Police vice squad members worked into the early hours yesterday sorting out, booking and releasing on bail 72 persons whom they caught in a raid on a "fish fry" at a home in the Southeast section. Police also staged two other raids early yesterday.

Patrol wagons, carrying 10 passengers a trip, hauled s ven loads of persons from 1119 2d st. se. to the Fifth Precinct Station, where 70 were booked on disorderly conduct charges. Each of the 70 elected to post $5 collateral and forfeit it.

$500 Bond for Each

Two others, George Swann, 26, of 458 Maryland ave. sw., and William Henry Diggins, 46, of 1128 3d st. nw., were charged with keeping and selling whisky without a license. They are free on $500 bond each for Municipal Court appearance today.

Police last week picked up a man who had a card in his pocket advertising the "fish fry," they said. They became interested. Saturday night, according to Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the vice squad, they sent two undercover men into the place. Lieutenant Blick said both men made buys of whisky, and then signaled to five other vice squad men who waited outside.

Shortly afterward, vice squad officers went with a search warrant to the home of Mrs. Gertrude Mary Bryant, 40, of 1242 Half st. se. They said undercover men had made purchases of liquor there on two previous days.

Corn Liquor Found

In the place, Lieutenant Blick said, the officers found 52 half-gallon jugs of untaxed "corn" whisky. He said it was the largest haul of its kind in several years.

Mrs. Bryant was arrested and released on $1000 bond on four charges, two of keeping and two of selling untaxed whisky. She will face United States Commissioner C. S. Lawrence today on those charges. She also will face Municipal Court today on charges of keeping and selling beer without a license. Bond on those charges was $500.

In a third raid, the vice squad men followed instructions they received in a mysterious telephone call, according to Blick.

"Ring Doorbell 3 Times

The unidentified caller told them to "go to 1743 Pennsylvania ave. nw., second floor, ring the doorbell on the ground floor three times, and you'll find something interesting."

They complied. They rang three times, Blick said. The door was opened. Then someone shouted that police had arrived. A violent commotion ensued upstairs, Blick said, but when he and his men arrived, there was no evidence of any vice law violations. In view of the commotion, he said, seven men were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. Each one elected to forfeit $25 collateral.

In Hunting

Son Suffers Accident Like Father

A 21-year-old White Plains (Md.) youth, whose father lost a leg in a shooting accident 15 years ago, yesterday was recovering in Georgetown University Hospital from a similar accident which cost him his left arm.

Harry J. Langley had been hunting rabbits Saturday morning when he paused to rest, setting his shotgun against a tree. The gun started to fall, and as he lurched to catch it, an explosion resulted which tore off most of his left arm.

The accident took the victim back to the age of 6 when his father, Robert T. Langley, a tenant farmer, had been carried home with one leg mangled. His father, too, had been hunting rabbits with a shotgun, and had leaned the gun against a tree when it slipped and discharged into his limb.

Young Langley was rushed to Physicians Memorial Hospital in La Plata, Md., then to Georgetown University Hospital, where he was given two blood transfusions before his arm was amputated Saturday night.

11 P.M. Bandit Robs 2 Hotels In 10 Minutes

The Eleven O'Clock Bandit struck again last night, exhibiting as usual his penchant for small hotels, a small black automatic and the hour of 11 p. m.

At precisely 11, he walked into the Adams Hotel, 1006 I st. nw., asked for a room, then flashed his black automatic.

"This is a stickup," he made it perfectly clear to the clerk, Mike Popovitch, 61, who yielded up $14.

Ten minutes later the thug asked for a room at the Central Hotel, 903 New York ave. nw. He ordered the clerk, Horace D. Brigham, 29, to lie down on his stomach, which Brigham did, at gunpoint. The robber snatched $10.50 from the register and fled.

A man answering the same general description, about 25 to 30 years old, slender, and feet 8 inches to 6 feet tall, robbed the clerk, John J. Tracey, at the Crown Hotel, 933 H st. nw., of $38, on Saturday at 11 p. m.

Only two nights before the same hotel yielded up $7.60 to a thug—at 11:07 p. m. In all four holdups the robber was described as wearing brown clothes and sporting a small automatic.

In another weekend holdup, a Capital Transit bus driver reported he was robbed of his coin changer, $10 in cash and 400 tokens early yesterday. He said he was sitting on his bus steps at the loop at 62d and Dix sts. ne., when a car drove up. A man emerged, held him up, and then fled in the car, he said. The driver is Frederick A. Hoppe, 32, of 1221 51st st., Hillside, Md.

Husband Finds Wife Dead After Quarrel

The woman, Mrs. Carol F. Murphy, 1709 N st. nw., was pronounced dead by Emergency Hospital doctors.

Police said the woman had quarreled with her husband, Charles A. Murphy, a Postoffice employe, earlier in the day, and had locked him out of the house.

Later, Murphy climbed a fire escape, broke the bathroom window and found his wife on the floor. Police found a penciled note on a crumpbled piece of paper but were unable to read it.

Detective Sergt. Lawrence Hartnett of the homicide squad began an investigation. Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner, said he would perform an autopsy today.

Overflow Crowd Of 6000 Attends Mission Service

Almost 6000 persons packed in to Washington Cathedral and overflowed into adjoining St. Albans Church last night to hear England's evangelist, the Rev. Bryan Green.

He declared religion gives, rather than takes away, privileges from believers.

"Being a true Christian does not mean giving up our fun, abandoning thoughts of a desirable marriage, risking failure in business, disillusionment and frustration," Mr. Green said.

The evangelist, whose voice reached his listeners by way of an augmented public address system, will end his present mission of nine services with a sermon at the Cathedral at 8 o'clock tonight.

Sen. Anderson Doubts Tax Boost Next Year

Senator Clinton P. Anderson (D., N. Mex.) yesterday said he "doubts very much" that Congress will vote higher taxes next year even if President Truman demands them.

He made the statement in a radio debate with Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) on the National Broadcasting Co.'s "American Forum of the Air." Subject of the debate was "Campaign Issues in the 1950 Congressional Election." Bridges predicted that the chief issues will be the Truman Administration's spending program.

Falls Church Vote Aid in Annexation

Approval of a $700,000 school building loan by Falls Church property owners has stimulated the city's plans for annexation of adjacent areas of Fairfax County.

City officials agreed yesterday the result of Saturday's referendum, in which the bond issue was approved three to one, had strengthened their position for the impending court battle with the county over acquisition of new territory.

Without a school system of its own, the city might have had some difficulty in supporting its claim that it has "something to offer" residents of outlying areas, it was conceded prior to the referendum.

Now, however, the newly authorized funds will permit construction of a high and elementary school which can be construed as an added inducement to potential new residents in the annexation zone.

Although the City Council will meet in special session tonight, it is not scheduled to discuss the annexation question, Mayor Albert Orme said. He indicated, however, that early action on the proposal would result from the favorable result of the bond referendum.

The council's first step, Orme stated, will be to draft an annexation ordinance setting up the boundaries of the territory it proposes to acquire.

The council agreed last week to revise the "annexation zone" to eliminate areas in which Fairfax County plans to build new schools. The new zone is less than half the size of the territory the city originally proposed to acquire.

Meanwhile, a special meeting of the city's school board will be called for Wednesday night to explore means of borrowing the funds authorized by Saturday's balloting. Mrs. Mark Regan, board chairman, said she would ask other members to meet with her so that the school program may be launched without delay.

The school board hopes it can obtain most of the funds from the State Literary Fund, set up to provide for school construction in Virginia. In the event State funds are not available, the bonds will be sold on the open market.

Mrs. Regan expressed gratification at the result of the referendum because it "not only assures us our own school system, but because the board members feel it represents a vote of confidence from the people."

The same view also was expressed by School Superintendent Irwin Schmitt, who said the action "reflects a vote of confidence in the school board."

Mayor Orme termed the vote "a real step toward true independence for the city, not only schoolwise but in the over-all picture." He said he was "extremely gratified" at the result.

Acacia Official

J. M. Robeson Dead After Long Illness

J. Myron (Dutch) Robeson, 44, assistant treasurer of the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co. and active in Masonic groups, died yesterday at Doctors Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Robeson, born in Washington, was graduated from Central High School, where he was an outstanding athlete. He studied accountancy at Southeastern University and George Washington University, joining the Acacia in 1928.

In Masonic activities Mr. Robeson was master of Myron M. Parker Lodge, 27, F. A. A. M., in 1939, secretary of the Masters Association in 1939; membor of Capitol Chapter Royal Arch Masons, member of Potomac Commandery, Knights Templar and Kallipolis Grotto, and a life member of Almas Temple.

He was cited by the Secretary of the Treasury in World War II for his efforts in selling war saving bonds.

Mr. Robeson is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mildred Yates Robeson, and daughter Joan, 5113 44th st. nw.; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Robeson, and a sister, Mrs. Mildred Morrison, 418 Oneida pl. nw.

Services will be held Wednesday at 11 a. m. at Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Sunday School in a Jeep . . .

The Washington Post

CLASSES ON WHEELS—St. Luke's Episcopal Church, at Wellington Villa, Va., is forced to hold its Sunday school classes wherever it can. Some are in homes of teachers, and this one is in a jeep station wagon. Members of the junior boys' class listen to lessons read by P. E. Smith. When the weather's nice, the boys stand outside the car

Sunday School Space Scarce, Class Meets in Station Wagon

When St. Luke's Episcopal Mission was founded at Wellington Villa, five miles south of Alexandria, its small chapel adequately served the few families who lived nearby.

Today, 15 years later, so many homes have been built in the area that the church is hard-pressed to serve the community.

On Sunday mornings so many children come to St. Luke's for Sunday school that they must meet in every available space in the building. Classes are held in different corners of the chapel, in a small vesting room, and in fine weather they overflow onto the church steps.

Since the weather has become cooler, some of the children meet in a jeep station wagon near the church and in the homes of neighbors a block away for their classes.

Population Is Factor

The St. Luke's situation is not unusual in northern Virginia, according to the Right Rev. Frederick D. Goodwin, Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Virginia.

In the past few years, the population of Arlington and Fairfax counties and Alexandria has grown so rapidly that the diocese has been called upon to aid in establishment of several new churches.

This week a committee from the diocese will visit Wellington Villa to study the situation and to see what can be done to help the small congregation erect a parish house. Their study will be used to help the diocese make plans for serving the whole northern Virginia area.

Mission Is Only Church

St. Luke's, since its founding, has been served by students from the Virginia Theological Seminary at Alexandria. Alexander M. Robertson, a senior from the seminary, has been in charge of the mission for the past two years.

The mission is the only church serving the area. Because of this, Mr. Robertson has welcomed persons of every denomination to the services.

Although the worship is completely Episcopal, denominational differences are respected. When the church elected its first vestry recently, two associate members, representing the non-Episcopalian members of the congregation, were named.

Attendance at church services is about 80 persons each week, and the Sunday school enrollment is over 100.

John Tucker Dead, Aide At Standards

John Tucker, jr., 69, a Bureau of Standards official, died yesterday at Doctors Hospital after a long illness. He lived at 5403 39th st. nw.

For 23 years, Mr. Tucker had been chief of the concreting materials section in the bureau's mineral products division. He had joined the Bureau of Standards staff two years earlier in Pittsburgh, Pa.

A native of New York City, Mr. Tucker was graduated from Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, N. J., as a mechanical engineer. He was a member of the Washington Academy of Sciences.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Agnes B. Tucker, a daughter, Nancy Jane Tucker, of the 39th st. address; a son, John B. Tucker, Erie, Pa., and his mother, Mrs. Agnes J. Tucker, Bronx, N. Y. Interment will be on Tuesday in New York.

UAW Orders Strike Of 8000 Budd Workers

Philadelphia, Nov. 20 (AP).—The executive board of Local 813, United Automobile Workers (CIO), today today ordered a strike of approximately 8000 Budd Co. employes for 10 p. m. next Sunday.

President James B. McCaffrey of the local said the board's action was authorized by the membership two months ago.

The strike order followed five months of negotiations on a new contract that has as its principal items new pension and insurance provisions, the union official said.

The Budd Co. is one of the country's largest manufacturers of automobile parts and railroad cars.

Zimmerman Funeral Rites Set for Today

Funeral services will take place at 1 p. m. today for John S. M. Zimmerman, bandmaster of Soldiers Home from 1900 to 1944.

Mr. Zimmerman

They will be at the Hines Chapel, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will follow at Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Zimmerman, 73, died Thursday. He lived at 1314 Belmont st. nw.

Born at Annapolis, he was educated at St. John's College, became a pianist, composed and conducted music. He served in the Spanish-American War, and played in a number of orchestras before taking over the bandmastership at Soldiers Home.

In the silent movie era he played pianos in theaters here, improvising his music to suit the mood action on the screen. In later years, he composed marches, intermezzos, pastorals and waltzes, several of which were published. His brother, the late Charles Zimmermann, was said by relatives to be the composer of the famous Navy song, "Anchors Aweigh."

Surviving Mr. Zimmermann are two sons, John S. M., jr., Detroit, and Charles W., Baltimore; two daughters, Mrs. James R. Newberry, Berwyn, Md., and Mrs. Richard A. Lane, Washington; 10 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Murphy, Once Actress, Dead at 85

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Murphy, 85, one-time actress, who died Saturday, will be held at 1 p. m. Tuesday at the Walsh funeral home, 741 11th st. se. Burial will be at Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Murphy died Saturday at her home, 1321 Euclid st. nw., after a two-week illness.

A native Washingtonian, Mrs. Murphy was born Anna deVantier and used her maiden name on the stage. She met her husband, James Murphy, who died about 10 years ago, while the two were participating in amateur theatricals in Washington. He used the name James Manley on the stage.

The couple toured the country in vaudeville productions staged by Mr. Murphy's brother, the late Tim Murphy of New York. The couple retired from the theater more than 30 years ago.

Mrs. Murphy is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Selma Swart of the Euclid st. address and Mrs. Paula Chase of 4427 45th st. nw. and a nephew, Capt. Robert Swart, USN.

Charles D. Fletcher

Charles D. Fletcher, 75, retired Department of Agriculture employe and resident of Beltsville, Md., for 24 years, died Saturday night at his home following a heart attack.

Born in Warrenton, Va., he lived there until moving to Beltsville. He retired 10 years ago from the Research Center of the Beltsville Experimental Bureau.

His wife, Annie E., died in May, 1948.

Surviving are three daughters, Miss Lillie Lee Fletcher, Mrs. Mabel B. Phucas, of Beltsville, and Mrs. Julia K. Embrey, of Buena Vista terrace se., four sons, Horace D., of Riverdale, Clayton W., and Norman N., of Hyattsville, and Charles E. Fletcher, Burnt Mills Fletcher, Warrenton; and three sisters, Mrs. Betty Kearns, of Warrenton, Mrs. Jennie Wagner, of Kensington, Md., and Mrs. Lena Bryant, of Ellicott City, Md.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m., at the home. Burial will follow in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mrs. Sarah E. Kendrick

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 20.—A son, six daughters, 60 grandchildren, 79 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren are among the descendants surviving Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Kendrick, 80, who died at the home of a son yesterday. Also surviving are two brothers and a sister.

She was a native of Red Bud, Frederick County, Va. Services will be held here Tuesday.

Ham Bolsters Turkey on Gala Buffet

MRS. MAJORY HENDRICKS
Offers Holiday Cooking Tips

By Lucia Brown

THE gracious season of Thanksgiving lends itself beautifully to entertaining, for there's no holiday in which food plays such a stellar role.

If it's a buffet supper you're planning, these tips from Restaurateur Marjory Hendricks, long famed hereabouts for her culinary skill, will come in handy.

Roast turkey and Virginia items are prime items in the Thanksgiving buffet, points out Mrs. Hendricks. Below she gives her own mouth-watering recipe for Normandy Farm baked ham, plus others for Thanksgiving sea food salad, holiday deviled eggs and autumn vitamin salad.

These will round out the buffet nicely, and then, of course, you'll want to top it off with pumpkin pie (maybe a little mincemeat, too.) Mrs. Hendricks' favorite pumpkin recipe is one that comes from up around the Delaware Water Gap, and has brandy, as well as ginger, cinnamon and nutmeg among its seasonings.

Normandy Farm Baked Ham

LET a 16-pound Virginia ham soak in cold water for six to eight hours. Drain and place in a deep pot of fresh, cold water to which has been added three cloves of garlic, two onions, the green tops of three stalks of celery, a tablespoon of mustard seed and a tablespoon of whole cloves.

Bring to a boil and simmer gently for three hours. Remove skin and score checkerboard fashion. Stud with whole cloves at the intersecting cuts. Sprinkle with black pepper, rub in the mustard, and sprinkle generously with brown sugar. Bake in a quick oven until golden brown. This should take less than an hour.

After an hour, top with two oranges, cut in three slices each, and a handful of raisins. Baste with cider frequently during another hour's baking. Cider sauce will form in the pan, to be served with the ham if it is eaten hot.

Thanksgiving Seafood Salad

ON A BED of chicory, form rings of large shrimp alternating with grapefruit segments. The center of the arrangement is a bowl of dressing composed of one third mayonnaise and two thirds rather tart French dressing.

Holiday Deviled Eggs

HARD cook eggs and color the mashed yolks with beet juice. Season to taste with vinegar, salt and white pepper. Stuff the mixture in the white halves and serve on a bed of salad greens.

Autumn Vitamin Salad

Grate equal quantities of raw carrots, beets and onions, and marinate with French dressing. Add another equal portion of finely cut celery and serve on a bed of crisp spinach.

Delaware Pumpkin Pie

Ingredients: 3 well-beaten eggs, 1 cup sugar, 3 cups canned pumpkin, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon ginger, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons brandy, 2 cups milk.

Heat the pumpkin and blend in the sugar, spices and salt. Then add the milk, beaten eggs and brandy, mixing thoroughly. Place in a precooked pie crust and bake 20 minutes at 350 degrees.

Ask Anne — All About Spot Removal

Is there a pamphlet or book available that covers spot and stain removal generally?
W. L. H.

There is an excellent Government bulletin called "Stain Removal from Fabrics by Home Methods." To get it write for Farmer's Bulletin No. 1474, Superintendent of Documents, United States Government Printing Office, Washington. The price is 5 cents per copy.

I have a set of waterless saucepans with pouring lips and covers to fit. When should air be allowed to escape and when should the cover be on completely?
H. D. F.

The best plan is to follow the directions which come with your utensils as to use of the covers. Generally speaking, however, with very heavy utensils where little water is added the cover must be tightly in place throughout the cooking period to prevent escape of steam. This way, the steam is held in the pan and cooks the vegetables throughout.

When the vegetables are cooked, the cover can be removed for a short time to allow complete evaporation of moisture. By completely evaporating the moisture all the nutrients such as minerals and vitamins which may have been transferred from the vegetable to the liquid will be saved and served in the vegetables. In the case of potatoes for mashing, complete evaporation of all moisture gives a dry, fluffy product.

I would like to know what kind of detergent can be used at home to flush out a pipe line which is full of oil. I understand a soda solution is good but cannot find out just what kind. Neither the plumber nor a well concern seem to know what to use. Please publish answer as soon as possible because if a detergent cannot be found a whole new pipe system will have to be installed, which will be quite expensive.
E. C. H.

The best suggestion I can make is to discuss this problem with a plumbing firm which specializes in cleaning pipes. I have discussed your problem with one such firm which cleans all sizes of pipes from 1 to 30 inches in diameter by mechanical means and they say they should be able to clean it. It is surely worth a try. You can reach them by calling Taylor 0900.

However, before you decide how to handle the problem it might be worth while to discuss it with two or three pipe-cleaning firms. You'll find others listed under "plumbers" in the yellow pages of the telephone book.

Is there an organization in the District that has use for old lenses or eye glasses? M. J. S.

I haven't been able to find an organization which can use eye glasses. Do our readers know of a group which uses them?

I would like to know if it would be in good taste to dress up Hollywood beds with dust ruffles and quilts used as spreads, or must the ruffles be reserved for poster beds, or at least those with headboards and feet? Would an addition of headboards make a difference?
C. S. I.

I have just leafed through two well known books on home decoration and find illustrations of as many Hollywood type beds with valances or dust ruffles as without. It seems to be an entirely correct and very attractive way to cover the bed.

What is the proper method to care for lizard or alligator shoes? M. J. S.

Reptile shoes should be cleaned with a cream type leather conditioner sold in shoe stores. This conditioner is applied according to the directions which come with the product. Only other care necessary is to place the shoes on trees to hold the shape when not being worn. Also, when stored, they should be protected from dust. If they should become wet, they should be allowed to dry slowly on shoe trees away from heat.

Inquiries and contributions to the Ask Anne column must be in written form. We regret that time does not permit handling them by telephone. Address letters and cards to Anne, Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Glamour for the Asking

If Beauty's Skin Deep, Watch That Epidermis!

By Magnolia Lee

WILL he love you in December, same as he did in May?

We-ell, maybe. If he's a gem of a guy who adheres to the code that beauty is more than skin deep, he probably will.

But let's face it—that proverbial skin-deep beauty is not to be sneered at. Not when man-bait is the goal. And December skin is practically never what it was in the good old summertime.

It's not the cold ;it's the lack of humidity in winter time which does the damage to your complexion, oddly enough. Cold weather brings steam heat, and steam heat brings dry rooms. Dry rooms bring scaly epidermis, and there you are! Withering away, so to speak, in the very prime of your life.

Hope Springs Eternal

ONE OF THE first and most obvious remedies isn't a beauty treatment at all. It's more of a meteorological trick—i. e., doing something about the weather. In other words, don't let the rooms in which you spend most of your time become too dry. You can raise the humidity content of a steam-heated room very easily—by keeping a container of water in it at all times.

If your skin is not abnormally dry, you may find that the addition of a cream-type foundation under your powder will be the only necessary change in your beauty routine. The thin film protects your skin from the elements, and tends to seal in the natural lubricants of your own skin. It does not add lubrication.

A Little Less Soap

IF YOUR skin is dry even in summer, you will probably have to do more than protect it as the season changes. Cutting down (not necessarily cutting out) the use of soap and water on your face will help retain for you what natural lubrication your skin produces. If, even after this precaution, your skin continues to chap or flake, better add a rich night cream to your beauty ritual.

Of course, if this seems a lot of bother (which, of course, it is), you can always break open your piggy bank and take a trip to the tropics, where it's summer all year long.

But then, HE won't be there, and HE's the one you're trying to please.

Hungry Child Howls; Discipline Won't Help

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

MRS. V. G. P. says her third child has been reared by the present new-old system. "We have loved and enjoyed him so much and in return he is an adorable, affectionate child.

"He slept through the night from 10 to 11 o'clock when he was 3½ months old. About a month later he began waking again. We tried water, rocking, cereal at 6 p. m. to avoid giving him the bottle again. Nothing would do. This went on until he was 18 months old.

"My question is: What would be your answer to the reason he wanted the bottle? What would your advice have been?"

WHEN he started waking at 3½ months I would have given him the bottle immediately. If you were respectful of feeding him in daytime when he was awake and hungry, why did you try to divert him at this early age at night when apparently he was hungry?

Then he would have taken a bottle until such time as his growth and better daytime nutrition had made it unnecessary. By depriving him of it, you set up such a determination to have it that it took him 18 months to get over it. You crystallized the habit of waking and crying for a bottle, which wouldn't have happened had you fed him when he needed it.

"Grand Old Party" Will Give a Few

Rally Won't Be Political

By Marie McNair

A Republican rally in Kansas City next month will have no political connotations. It's a signal tribute to our Dolly Gann.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, as her visiting cards would read, cut her eye teeth on politics, has remained a staunch GOP through the years. When she leaves Washington on December 5 for her former home, it will be her first visit there in three years, and her first stay of any length in three times three or more.

Old friends have planned a real homecoming week, starting off with a Republican Club dinner in her honor on December 6. She will stay with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stratton—he's political writer for former Senator Arthur Capper's newspaper—who will entertain at dinner on December 7.

Senator Capper has taken December 12 as the date for his fete for his old friend and on the same day there'll be a luncheon, with Mrs. John Dean and Mrs. George Crawford, Senator Capper's sister-in-laws, as joint hostesses.

Mrs. Gann will also spend a few days with Mrs. William Davis whose husband is a former Secretary of State of Kansas, and Mrs. Davis has added two more luncheons to the whirl of parties for her guest.

Eastward bound again on the eighteenth, Mrs. Gann will stop briefly in Washington before going on to Providence for Christmas with her niece, Mrs. Webster Knight.

The Austrian Minister and Mme. Kleinwaechter were among the guests at the luncheon given yesterday by David E. Finley, director of the National Art Gallery, and Mrs. Finley at their home in Georgetown. Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson were ranking guests, and the company of 30 left the luncheon for the preview of the Austrian art collection at the National Gallery from 3 to 5 p. m.

At 5 o'clock the Minister and Mme. Kleinwaechter entertained at a reception at the legation for about 400 members of diplomatic and official Washington, many of whom had been first to the preview. Eight thousand tickets, each admitting two, had been sent out for the private view of the paintings, sculpture and other art treasures. Dr. Roland L. Redmond, president of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, came down from New York for the luncheon and exhibit.

Mrs. Parker West keeps an unbroken record of parties for the Chief of Staff when she entertains on December 18 in honor of Gen. and Mrs. J. Lawton Collins.

It was back in 1915 that she and the late Major West gave their first tea for Gen. Hugh Scott, then Army Chief of Staff. Since then not a year has passed without a Chief of Staff fete. And, proving that it's the people who make the party, the hostess never serves anything stronger than coffee—yet the men flock to her house in droves!

Before the first of "the Three Dances"—Washington's most exclusive dancing club—on December 10 at the Sulgrave Club, practically every member will entertain or be entertained at dinner.

Mrs. Lee Warren has already planned a party. So have the Bradley Nashes, Clarence Hewes, Maj. and Mrs. Julius Wadsworth and the Harold Jefferson Coolidges.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gardner will have guests; so too, will Mrs. Kent Legare.

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

MME. HENRI BONNET, wife of the French Ambassador (left), presents a pastel tapestry to Mrs. Julian Friant, president, Woman's National Democratic Club. In making the presentation at the club's luncheon yesterday, Mme. Bonnet emphasized, "this is in token of the French people's gratitude to the people of the United States."

English Union To Take Tea At Embassy

Sir Carl Berendsen, Ambassador of New Zealand, and Lady Berendsen will entertain members of the English-Speaking Union at tea this afternoon at the embassy and will have receiving with them Albert W. Atwood, president of the Washington branch, and Mrs. Atwood.

Those who will assist at the tea table will be Miss Bertha Noyes, Mrs. George P. Schven, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Swagar Sherley, Mrs. Edward B. Meigs and Mrs. Frank Baldwin.

Among those who have accepted Lady Berendsen's invitation are Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, Mrs. Paul Magnuson, Mrs. Franz Henderson Ridgeway, Miss Anna Mitchell, Miss Althia Ruggles, Mrs. William Taylor Barry, the Rev. Thomas A. Whelan, Col. John C. Paw Paw Choo-Choo Makes With the Do-Si-Do

By Sonia Stein

OVER 250 people from Washington, Baltimore and Silver Spring climbed aboard a train Saturday night to go square dancing in Paw Paw, W. Va.

Why? Washington is full of square dancing opportunities. Ralph Case, local chief mogul of the square dance, is often called upon to provide a dozen callers a night for parties around town.

This metropolis which had one—count 'em—one square dance group at the YWCA nine years ago, now has square dancing in the Shoreham Hotel, Fort Belvoir, almost every country club and is about to invade the Hotel 2400. Such notables as Gen. Omar Bradley and Margaret Truman have studied the art.

Went for Ride

SO why go to Paw Paw, West by damn—Virginia? Well, it seems it was for the ride. There was some lure in going to the apple-picking country to tiny little Paw Paw to see how the country folks do it really. But an astonishing number of people seemed as hungry for the ride, the companionship of a group, as they were for an allemande right and do si do.

The train which the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad ran as an experiment started in Baltimore at 4:45 p. m., picked up more people in Washington and Silver Spring and sped to Paw Paw. From 8:30 to midnight, the city slickers, jockying for space with the Paw Pawians, Cumberlands and other West Virginians who turned out in unexpected numbers, did a bit of square dancing, ate crisp cold apples, doughnuts, gingerbread, drank cider. Then back aboard the train for a 2½-hour trip home.

They Loved It

AND they loved it. "There's 16 of us from Gaithersburg, Md.,' one man explained on the way home, "but there'll be 20 next time."

"I had the best cider I ever had," one Georgetown University student said. "It was worth it," he added, referring possibly to the cider, possibly to the starlight walk he and his date had taken around Paw Paw.

"With all the strikes, atom bombs and upheaval, it's nice to get back to the days of the surrey with the fringe on top," an advertising man from Baltimore said. "And it's wonderful not to have to be your own driver," he said, sinking peacefully into his seat, aglow with enthusiasm and unaccustomed exercise.

Students Learn Something

"THIS isn't real square dancing," said one student of the dance in an appalled tone as she watched a West Virginia couple jitterbugging to the country music. But it was real country dancing, just as the Paw Pawians do it.

Tradition, be hanged. It was just a good Saturday night shindig—with the phonograph spelling the fiddlers when they got tired.

Some of the city slickers were dressed pretty slick. For every corduroy skirt and peasant blouse, there was a black dress with sequins and a feathered had. Washingtonians who made the trip were not the town sophisticates. They were just people—Government clerks, taxi drivers, servicemen—out for a Saturday night outing. Wearing what they pleased, dancing how they pleased, making friends with whom they pleased.

Like the ski trains north to the snow land, this train west to the farm land was a party from start to finish. The dancing was almost incidental.

Originally, when the B. & O. put on these four cars on the run, executives thought they were being optimistic. Now, watching the experiment succeed under their own doubtful noses, they have hopes for future runs—maybe one a month.

Nehru Declares Hard Work Made America Great

New Delhi, India, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Premier Jawaharlal Nehru, who recently returned from the United States, told his countrymen today "the secret of America's advancement lies in hard work and increased production."

Nehru scoffed at reports he had gone to the United States to curry favor, saying that "those who accused me of going to America to beg dollars and commit India to the Anglo-American bloc obviously did not know me or my country."

The Indian Premier said "America is playing a vital role in the world today," but reaffirmed India's intention to keep aloof from the world blocs and followed a foreign policy based "neither on appeasement nor belligerency. In that way, we best serve the cause of peace."

De Gasperi Promises Gradual Land Reform

Cosenza, Italy, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Premier Alcide de Gasperi today promised the landless peasants of southern Italy, who have been seizing farms on big estates, that agricultural reforms will be carried out "gradually and thoroughly."

"We will bear in mind the social and productive needs of Calabria," Gasperi promised.

As he spoke, dispatches said that peasants, led by Communists, had seized properties at Capaccio and Battipaglia south of Naples, and at San Severo north of Foggia near the Adriatic coast.

Egypt Elections Jan. 3

ZONING COMMISSION, Washington.
November 7, 1949. Ordered: That after public notice and hearing as prescribed by law, the following changes in the Zoning Regulations are adopted, and the district hereto-fore established by the Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia, as shown in the official height, area, and use atlases, are hereby modified and amended as follows: The residential portion of lot 15, square 2865, located on the west side of 17th st. between Euclid st. and Columbia rd. nw., is changed from Residential 60' "C" Area to First Commercial 90' "C" Area. Lots 106 to 110, both inclusive, 862, 76, 872 and 97, square 2893, said property located on the north side of Lamont st. between Georgia and Sherman aves. nw. are changed from First Commercial 40' "C" and 60' "D" Area to First Commercial 60' "C" Area. The south 200 feet of parcel 61/152 located on the north side of Military rd. from 27th to 28th sts. nw. is changed from Residential 40' "A" Restricted Area to Residential 40' "A" Semirestricted Area. The Residential 60' "C" Area District is extended to include all of lot 1, square 2035, said property located on the southeast corner of Connecticut ave. and Ellicott st. nw. Parcels 199/54, 199/44, 199/64, 199/63, 199/52, 199/62 and 199/61 except that part of parcels 199/62 and 199/61 bounded on the north by Hilltop terrace, proposed, on the east by a line 125 feet easterly of and parallel to the east line of Chaplin st., proposed, 60 feet wide, on the south by a line 125 feet easterly of and parallel to the east line of Burnaby st., and on the west by the east line of said parcels, and except that portion of parcel 199/61 lying north of Hilltop terrace, proposed, and east of a line being the extension of the east line of Chaplin st., 60 feet wide, said property located south of O st. between Ridge rd. and Alabama ave. se., as shown by plat on file in the Office of the Zoning Commission, are changed from Residential 40' "A" Restricted Area to Residential 40' "A" Semirestricted Area. Add a new paragraph 32, Part 2, Section XIII, to read: "32. Permit a waiver or modification of the required location or conditions of off-street parking facilities, or in the amount of off-street parking facilities required, of both, as provided under Section XIV (a) if the Board finds that such action is necessary to secure an appropriate development of a specific piece of property which is made difficult or impracticable by reason of unusual physical conditions inherent in or directly affecting the specific property, as follows: "(a) Topography, grades, shape, size and dimensions. (b) Lack of appropriate ingress or egress facilities through existing or proposed public space such as alleys or streets. (c) Geographic location caused by density of development of nearby or contiguous property, or by lack of alley facilities. (d) Where parking area would create a traffic hazard due to street grades. (e) Where for any of the above reasons reduction in permissible lot occupancy or cubic residence content would be necessary in order to provide the required parking area. In exercising these powers the Board shall find that the waiver or modification will not be inconsistent with the spirit and purpose of the regulations, with public safety, with the present character and future development of the neighborhood, and with substantial justice. The Board may also impose any condition or limitation reasonably necessary to reduce the need for off-street parking facilities and to insure compliance with the purpose of paragraph XIV (a). Before making such findings, except in the case of a single family dwelling, the Board shall submit the application to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Director of Vehicles and Traffic, and to the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency for report." Amend Paragraph 1, Section XIV (a), to read: "1. In all zoning districts there shall be provided at the time of the erection of any building hereinafter designated, minimum off-street parking area for motor driven vehicles in amounts not less than hereafter specified and, except as provided in Section XXIII, such area shall thereafter be maintained and not reduced below the requirements of this section." Add at the end of the first paragraph of Paragraph 3, Section XIV (a), the following: "For single-family dwellings and flats a driveway entrance or exit shall be not less than eight feet in width with a maximum grade of twenty percent. All other types of buildings shall provide driveways not less than ten feet in width with a maximum grade of twelve percent." Amend Paragraph 14, Part 2, Section XXIII, to read: "14. Where the boundary line of any use or height district divides a lot in single ownership at the time the boundary line was or is fixed by the adoption of any order or regulation under the Act of March 1, 1920, or the Act of June 20, 1938, the Board may permit a use or height authorized on either portion of such lot to extend to the entire lot, but not more than 25 feet beyond the boundary line of the use or height district." Amend the last paragraph of Section III to read: "Until June 30, 1950, lodging or rooming house or boarding houses providing for compensation meals, lodging, or lodging and meals, for not more than four (4) persons may be permitted in the 'A' Restricted and 'A' Semirestricted districts in accordance with the following conditions: (a) No such use shall be made of or in any dwelling or other structure or part thereof, whether now existing or erected in the future unless the owner or lessee of the building or structure applies to the Building Inspector and obtains a special certificate of occupancy for use as a lodging or rooming, or boarding house. (b) The application for such special certificate shall contain an unconditional statement that on June 30, 1950, all use of the dwelling or structure, or any part thereof, as a lodging or rooming or boarding house will cease and terminate, and that the applicant recognizes that any such use thereafter will be illegal and subject him to the penalties provided in the Zoning Act and regulations. (c) The certificate by its terms shall be expressly limited to the period above set forth. Certificates of occupancy issued under the authority of sub-paragraph lettered "C" of the new paragraph added at the end of Section III on December 3, 1941, as amended to include the calendar years 1946, 1947, the first nine months of 1948, and from October 1, 1948, to October 1, 1949, shall be valid to the same extent as if issued hereunder." Amend Paragraph 25, Part 2, Section XXIII, to read: "25. Permit the temporary use of buildings for lodging or rooming or boarding houses in the 'A' Restricted and 'A' Semirestricted Area Districts when, for compensation, meals, lodging or lodging and meals are furnished to more than four persons, provided: (a) The permit for such use shall terminate on June 30, 1950; (b) The Board shall find that the use proposed will not have a tendency to blight permanently the restricted character of the neighborhood; (c) No such use shall be permitted if, by such use, the erection of exterior fire escapes on any such building would be required by existing law; and (d) The application for permission to establish such use shall contain an unconditional statement that on June 30, 1950, all such use of the building, or any part thereof, as a lodging or rooming or boarding house will cease and terminate, and the applicant recognizes that any such use thereafter will be illegal and subject him to the penalties provided in the Zoning Act and regulations. The certificate of occupancy for such use shall be expressly limited to the period above set forth. Certificates of occupancy issued under the authority of this paragraph as adopted on July 28, 1942 as amended to include the calendar years 1946, 1947, the first nine months of 1948, and from October 1, 1948, to October 1, 1949, shall be valid to the same extent as if issued hereunder." The alley in square 2631 which was closed by order of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and recorded in Book 128, Page 42, records of the Surveyor, District of Columbia, is included in the Residential 40' "A" Restricted Area. The alley in square 28 which was closed by order of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and recorded in Book 128, Page 68, records of the Surveyor, District of Columbia, is included in the Residential 50' "C" Area. The alley in square 369 which was closed by order of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and recorded in Book 128, Page 28, records of the Surveyor, District of Columbia, is included in the Residential 50' "D" Area. That part of K st. in square 4468 which was closed by order of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and recorded in Book 128, Page 99, records of the Surveyor, District of Columbia, is included in the Residential 40' "B" Area. CERTIFICATE OF ADOPTION OF RESOLUTION

We, the undersigned, Charles Bauer and George R. Dressler, being the President and the Secretary, respectively, of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, a corporation formed under the provisions of Chapter XVIII and subchapter III of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia, being an Act of Congress approved March 3, 1901; that as such Secretary, the undersigned, George R. Dressler, is the custodian of the books and records of the corporation and its corporate seal.

We further certify that on August 11, 1949, at the annual meeting of the members of said corporation, the following resolution was adopted by more than two-thirds of the members of the Association present at the meeting: Be it resolved that the name of this Association be changed from the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers to the National Association of Retail Meat and Food Dealers.

The undersigned further certify that at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the said corporation held on August 11, 1949, the aforesaid resolution was unanimously adopted by the Board of Directors of said corporation.

The undersigned further certify that the above resolution is a true and correct copy of the resolution as contained in the minute book of said corporation.

We further certify that the said resolution was duly adopted at said meeting; that at the time of the adoption there was full power and authority in the Board of Directors and in the members of the said corporation respectively to adopt the resolution.

We further certify that there was a quorum present at said meetings, and that said meetings were duly held and conducted. (Corporate seal.) CHARLES BAUER, President; GEORGE R. DRESSLER, Secretary.

Arlington Hall Is Promised County Help on Auto Problem

Harassed residents of the area near the Army's Arlington Hall reservation, who have complained of parking difficulties, were assured yesterday that the Arlington County Board is "in full sympathy" with their problem.

More than 20 residents turned up at yesterday's board meeting to complain for the second time that Government workers hog all street parking space and even block them from using their own driveways.

The residents received the board's assurance from member F. Freeland Chew, after County Manager A. T. Lundberg said a special conference on the matter will be called.

The board also approved installation of lights on a ball field at Four Mile Run Park. It was told a group of citizens will attempt to raise necessary funds to purchase the $12,000 lights.

West Va. Man Accepts Petersburg City Post

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—Roy F. Ash, 53, city manager of Clarksburg, W. Va., for eight years, has accepted the city managership of Petersburg, and will begin work here about January 1, Mayor William Hodges Mann, jr., announced.

Ash, who will succeed Joseph M. Hatcheti, was selected unanimously by city council last week. He will receive $8000 annually.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Jack Harrison Pollack, writing a New Year's article for This Week magazine, about the optimistic views of 10 leading Americans, received only one turn-down—from General Eisenhower, whose secretary said: "The general isn't feeling very optimistic these days, and when he does he'll let you know" . . . Although the J. Arthur Rank organization lost millions in film production this year, his American organization sent him almost five million dollars profits for pictures shown here this year . . . Harold Baynton, who was Dave Bazelon's aide, will succeed him as alien property custodian.

Ernest Hemingway, now in New York, is asking the pardon of all his friends for his inability to see them—because he is busy finishing the final chapter of his novel. He wants his friends to know that "considerable champagne will be burned when the job is done." Temple Fielding is the new president of the Society of Magazine Writers . . . The re-issue of the Shaw film, "Major Barbara," is grossing more than did its original run—because the cast, practically unknown 10 years ago, consists of people who since have become stars: Deborah Kerr, Rex Harrison, Robert Morley, Emlyn Williams, Wendy Hiller and Robert Newton . . . Sherman Billingsley has a flash-bulb light up in his cloakroom every hour, to remind the girls to put Stork Club and Sortilege matches into the pockets of the checked topcoats.

S. Hurok, who brought the Sadler's Wells Ballet from England, sat disconsolately in El Morocco's champagne room and discoursed his Canadian problems. The auditorium in which the ballet will give 10 performances there holds 1600 people. "Gross capacity for the run, 16,000 people; ticket applicants to date, 32,000," he sighed. . . . He told of when he was Mischa Elman's manager, accompanied the violinist to a Montreal concert and called upon the theater manager, who was in the hospital. "My voice is gone," the man told Hurok. "My throat went bad—because I couldn't get myself to tell ticket applicants, 'Take back your money; we're all sold out.'"

Jaycees Set Campaign for Hoover Plan

The executive board of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce yesterday completed plans for a Nation-wide drive for signed petitions urging enactment of the Hoover Government reorganization plan.

The board winds up its two-day session at the Hay-Adams House, 800 16th st. nw., today presided over by Clifford D. Cooper, 33, Alhambra, Calif., president.

According to the USJCC plan, a drive for signatures will be launched at 12:01 p. m., January 5, 1950, in more than 1500 cities. Expenses of $80,000 for the plan have been authorized by the Junior Chamber.

The USJCC expects to play "an important role" in the national forum on the Hoover proposals in Washington December 12-14, Cooper said.

C. William Gilchrist of Cumberland, Md., was one of 10 USJCC vice presidents attending the executive board session yesterday.

How to Appreciate Children's "Art"

When you and I were in school, the art period usually consisted of each of us trying to draw the same banana, lily, oblong box or whatever object it was that the teacher had for us to copy. The ones who made a reasonable facsimile of the object were praised. The rest of us learned to dislike the drawing period.

Today, in most schools, art is a different sort of thing. Children are permitted and encouraged to develop their own ideas. Even 3-year-olds in the nursery school have easels, paints and brushes. Teachers have learned one lesson about appreciating children's "art" that the parents should learn.

If Johnny or Mabel drew at home, if they paint with bold strokes and then come to us with their creations, we shouldn't start off with, "What is it?" To do so will often discourage them. They haven't necessarily tried to make anything. They have drawn a picture that pleases them.

A word or two appreciating the fine colors or the sweep of lines is what is called for. Don't "third-degree" them to try to establish identity at the drawing. As they grow older, they will move toward representing things. But it is good for them first to feel free to use paint in an uninhibited way.

Stricter Rules On GI Insurance Effective Jan. 1

By The Associated Press

The Veterans' Administration reminded ex-GIs yesterday that there's another insurance deadline coming up January 1.

Any World War II veteran may take out a national service life insurance policy, or reinstate a lapsed policy, before that date simply by proving satisfactory evidence of his good health, the agency said.

It added that a less-than-total service-incurred disability will be disregarded in determining good health of the applicant.

Beginning January 1, however, each candidate for a policy or a renewal must demonstrate that he is an insurance risk.

The rules also become stricter January 1 for veterans applying for the national service life insurance "total disability income provision."

Ths revision gives veterans extra coverage for a small additional premium, in the form of a specified monthly income in event the insured person becoming totally disabled.

Over $2 Million Raised for Work On C. U. Shrine

One-third of the total amount necessary for completion of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Catholic University has been raised, according to the Most Rev. John F. Noll, Bishop of Fort Wayne.

Bishop Noll last week told a meeting of the American Roman Catholic hierarchy that $2,112,854 of the necessary six million dollars has been raised. Work will not be resumed until three million dollars has been raised, he said. Original plans called for completion of the shrine by 1954, 100th anniversary of the promulgation of the doctrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Snuggy Sleepers

Kristina puts pajamas on . . . When it is time for bed . . . And they are quite a special kind . . . As we have always said . . . For they are soft and woolly and . . . They keep her snuggy-warm . . . Whenever there is snow or sleet . . . Or any windy storm . . . We call them snuggy sleepers and . . . She loves to have them on . . . Especially to cuddle up . . . When it is early dawn . . . But when she eats her breakfast egg . . . And lifts her glass or cup . . . She always manages somehow . . . To get them spotted up . . . And when she starts to dress herself . . . She does not seem to care . . . Because she pulls her snuggies off . . . And throws them anywhere.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

That's No Problem; We Sell Back Issues

G. R. Simcox of 262 N. Barton st., Arlington, Va., mourns:

"I've received a postcard asking for copies of my contributions to the District Line, for use in a book of such contributions which is to be published.

"Shucks, Bill, how can I send them my clippings? I've worn them all out, showing them around."

HEAR, HEAR!

IT'S ALL OVER BUT THE WISECRACKS

R. A. Staley of 809 N. Wayne st., Arlington, Va., assures me that when a Navy officer called his office in the Pentagon recently, the phone was answered with:

"Johnson's Air Force—Water Division speaking."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Maybe if you print this, it may help some mothers realize how we seem to little children.

The other morning I was rushing around getting three children off to school, giving orders left and right.

When they were gone, I turned to the other two—aged 4 and almost 3—and in a very cross tone said: "Get in that chair until I put your shoes on."

Denny's reply was a real shock. He said: "You are not pretty."

Aghast, I asked: "Why do you say that?" His answer was: "You're an old crab."

I realized how right he was, and my mood changed at once. Nobody wants to be "an old crab," but I guess sometimes we forget ourselves.

Mrs. Marie Brown
8418 Cunningham dr.,
Berwyn Heights, Md.

Dear Mrs. Brown:

I take my hat off to the woman who has courage enough to tell a story like that on herself.

What you say applies with equal force to fathers. I've caught myself grouching around the house because things didn't go right at the office, and have been thoroughly ashamed of myself.

But gee whiz—admitting it right out loud in public is something else again.

Of course, in my case it's pretty safe. My wife reads Mary Haworth and my son reads Povich but I don't think either of them will see this, unless the neighbors call it to their attention.
Bill.

APPROPRIATE?

Margaret Devaney of 4317 15th st. nw. gets a chuckle out of the ad: "See 'The Bells of Sarna' at 1204 18th st. nw."

I didn't get it until she explained that 1204 18th st. nw. is the "Ring Building."

PERSONAL NOTES

Catherine Eastep, 20 Plattsburg ct. nw.: I agree with you that anybody who has never heard my radio program is extremely fortunate—which rates about nine tenths of all Washingtonians very lucky.

WHOINUMS?

Joseph W. Cheyney of No. 1 Walker ave., Gaithersburg, Md., takes issue with the reader who complained that The Washington Post's crossword puzzles are too easy. Asks Joe, a bit wistfully:

"Did she solve the one that contained the word 'Houyhnhnms?'"

That one should send even our proofreaders to the dictionary, and they know practically everything. Mr. Webster says Houyhnhnms (hoo-IN-umz) are a race of horses endowed with reason and noble qualities, and that you'll find them in "Gulliver's Travels."

Mrs. Alice Butler of 771 Howard rd. se. is another who thinks the puzzles are hard enough. She says:

"I have enough trouble with your puzzles as it is. If you make them any harder, I won't even be able to complete them."

Personally, I don't even hope to complete them. I'll settle for filling in one solid corner.

MEMO TO A TRAFFIC COP

The signs on the north side of Massachusetts ave. nw., just above 22d st., proclaim that parking is prohibited there from 7 to 9:30 a. m. The restriction is designed to open up an extra traffic lane during the morning rush.

But a Virginia resident who drives to work along that street every morning wonders why the police never bother a '47 Pontiac which is "always" there at 8 a. m.

I wonder, too. With my luck I'd have a ticket 5 minutes after the wheels stopped turning.

ADD DEFINITIONS

Jess Veihmeyer of 307 34th pl. ne. wonders if the fellows who compiled his dictionary did this accidentally or on purpose. Their definition of the word "plenum" is:

"A body of gas under heavy pressure; a full meeting of a legislative body."

Almost as good as a magic wand!

Senator's Wife Describes Junket

By Drew Pearson

When the Swedes failed to roll out the royal carpet for a party of junketing Senators, two of the snubbed solons—Elmer Thomas, the Oklahoma speculator, and John McClellan, the Arkansas Dixiecrat—actually threatened to cut off Marshall Plan aid to Sweden.

Pearson

This served as a none too subtle hint to other countries that the best way to stay on the Marshall gravy train was to butter up the wandering Senators. As a result, the Senators and their wives are now having the vacations of their lives.

This has been revealed in a personal letter from a feminine member of the troupe—McClellan's wife, Norma.

Though the Senators are supposed to be studying how to save the taxpayers' money, Mrs. McClellan writes: "John is truly relaxing and having the time of his life, and he and I are having a long delayed honeymoon."

To help the McClellans enjoy their second honeymoon and the other Senators to take a round-the-world vacation, the taxpayers are furnishing an Air Force plane and crew plus five Army and State Department officials. There is even a special doctor along.

The Senator's wife also gives an idea of how other European countries, anxious for Marshall Plan dollars, are bowing and scraping before the junketing Senators.

"These people over here stand in awe of us," writes Mrs. McClellan breathlessly. "Each country that we visit seems to be trying to outdo the one we have just left in entertaining us. Nothing that can be done is left undone.

"Just as an example . . .When we arrived in Norway, we were met at the plane by our ambassador and many top officials, and the King's top officials, army, navy, etc. . . . A spectacular air show was planned as a greeting to us, and then a luncheon by the Minister of Defense. Every minute of the afternoon was filled with interesting and exciting things to do . . .

"That evening," continued the wife of the Senator from Arkansas, "the Prime Minister of Norway opened one of the oldest castles in Europe and gave a state dinner in our honor . . .Our way to the castle after entering the gate . . . was lighted by flaming torches like those used in ancient times and sentries stationed every few feet. I wore a silver satin gown with train . . . but it broke my heart to get my train so dirty on those stone floors.

"When we left our hotel to enter the limousine that took us to the castle," Mrs. McClellan continued, "the police had to keep the crowds back that had gathered to see us . . . part of Norway borders Russia, and we have to be well guarded over here.

"I have to pinch myself to believe all this could be happening to 'little ole me.'"

All at the taxpayers' expense.

"Ike" Loses Priority

General Eisenhower, who once had the best view out of the Pentagon Building, has been crowded out of his plush office overlooking the Potomac.

As a five-star general, he is entitled to a permanent office in the Pentagon. But the exclusive, outer ring of offices—reserved for big shots only—is so crowded with brass hats that Eisenhower has been squeezed out.

An attempt was made the other day to find a room for Eisenhower, but Lieut. Gen. Willis Crittenberger, a working general, got first priority.

Lewis Wary of Law

It's an odds-on bet that John L. Lewis will not again defy the law, as he did in the 1948 strike, by continuing the coal strike in opposition to the Taft-Hartley Act.

Those close to him say that Big John is certain to keep the mine workers on the job when the three-week strike "truce" expires December 1. There are several good reasons:

One is that his union members wouldn't stand for another fine, such as the $1,420,000 contempt-of-court levy slapped on him for refusing to obey a back-to-work injunction last year.

There has been considerable rank-and-file grumbling among the destitute miners, who haven't received a full pay check since June 30—and no pay checks at all in almost two months. They say they could have used some of that $1,420,000 to feed their families.

Furthermore, several U. M. W. locals already had returned to work before Lewis declared the current "truce," while other defiant locals were preparing to do so on the very day he ordered them back.

Finally, the solid front presented by all the operators has dashed Lewis's efforts to make a separate contract with one group to be used as a lever on the others. In past coal strikes, it was the operators who usually were divided, while Lewis' union was strongly united behind him.

All of which explains why John L. Lewis has lost this strike—the first one lost since Franklin D. Roosevelt came to his rescue and saved the U.M.W. from folding up in 1933.

Big John can't possibly salvage enough in increases in a new contract to make up for the lost pay of the miners in their 52 days of idleness.

Capitol Chaff

Congressman Wayne Hays of Ohio discovered a microphone hidden in the telephone base in his hotel room. He and Committee Clerk Tom Kennedy jabbered into it, gave the eavesdroppers an earful—of gobbledegook . . . United States Intelligence reports that a mysterious anti-Russian underground has sprung up in eastern Germany. It has Moscow plenty worried. The leaders are reported to be Russian Army officers on duty in Silesia. The underground has derailed trains and shot many of the top Communists. It goes by the initials "NTM"—an abbreviation for "Death to the Tyrants."

Berlin Paper Reports Manhunt for 'Titoists'

Berlin, Nov. 20 (AP).—The West Berlin newspaper Anzeiger today said the East Zone people's police has set in motion a huge manhunt for 15,000 persons accused in a "black book" of being Titoists and Trotskyites.

Some of those being rounded up, the newspaper said, are guilty of nothing more than resisting transfer of their property to people's-owned enterprises.

SEE Cinderella rolling out dough to bake cookies for her little friends, Gus and Jog, while they help with the kitchen chores.

SEE how the glamorous, glistening glass slipper fits only the foot of Cinderella, as her lazy step-sisters look on with envy.

Whether you're 1 . . . 21 . . . or simply not telling your age . . . you'll want to see the Cinderella story in the windows of The Hecht Co. Washington. Is she real? Well, she's big as life, just as Walt Disney created her. And to every kid her actions are as real as that bed-time story he heard last night. Now guess who is spending Christmas with us besides Cinderella? That's right! Santa Claus . . . that old Prince of a fella who makes. The Hecht Co. a fairyland of wonderful gifts. Bring the kiddies . . . bring yourself . . . see Cinderella and Santa Claus at The Hecht Co., the place where Christmas wishes come true.

P. S. Santa Claus has his workshop in full swing in the windows of The Hecht Co., Silver Spring. The Kiddies will surely want to see that too!
